HOT AFTER TAFT

Bryan Winds Up Strenuous Day of Campaigning

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 16.—Pleading hot shot into Mr. Taft and the republican party at every point where he stopped, William J. Bryan last night concluded a strenuous day of campaigning. Switching into national politics, he said that the republican standard-bearer promised that there would be no battles, and that Mr. Roosevelt, as Mr. Taft's God-father, promised the same thing. He wanted to know how Mr. Taft could prevent battles when Mr. Roosevelt already had one on his hands.

Mr. Bryan's reception in New Jersey was a demonstrative one. At Washington park he addressed 20,000 persons. A statement by him that his nomination for a third time after two defeats and with no president to help him with his patronage, was due to the growth of the ideas for which he stood, provoked the wildest enthusiasm. His every utterance almost, was directed at Mr. Taft.

PRIMROSE CLUB

OF PRESIDENT

The Primrose club met at its headquarters at 219 Central street last night and transacted considerable business. The election of officers resulted in Mr. Grady being elected to the presidency to succeed Mr. Boland, who has been president of the club since its organization.

Mr. Dowd as vice president was unanimously elected. It was voted to retain the other officers, namely Mr. Eastman as treasurer and Mr. Barker as secretary for the following term of four months. A smoke talk will be held at the rooms of the club on the first anniversary of its organization, October 15, and a good time is assured.

SKETCHES OF THE REPUBLICAN BARBECUE AT POINT OF PINES YESTERDAY.

G. O. P. BARBECUE

With Gathering of Leaders at the Point of Pines

BOSTON, Sept. 16.—Thousands of republicans from all parts of New England took part in the first great republican meeting of the national campaign at the Point of Pines, Revere, yesterday. The meeting of the oxen and the speech-making was preceded by a program of athletic events. After the speech-making was over the visitors were entertained by the different Massachusetts county delegations.

The list of speakers in the afternoon included United States Senator Wm. E. Borah of Idaho; Secretary of Agriculture James Wilson of Iowa and Lieut. Gov. Draper of Massachusetts. The endorsement of the republican party and the Chicago ticket—Taft and Sherman—was the keynote of the speeches.

The events of the day started in Boston, when Governor Charles M. Floyd of New Hampshire, Governor

SPANISH QUEEN

Won the Empire State $10,000
Purse at Syracuse

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 15.—Spanish Queen won the Empire State $10,000 purse yesterday after one of the most stubbornly fought five heat battles of the season, over the fastest course that the grand circuit horses have raced on this year. Eleven good horses paraded for the word in the rich, classic, but when the race was concluded, Spanish Queen between the fast daughter of General Silver and the champion four-year-old trotter of the year, Aquila of the Illinois tribe, for the Boston horse fought every heat to the wire, and after showing the way in the first two heats, he came back game and was beaten in the third heat by only inches.

After some tedious racing the field got away well, and at the eighth Aquila had the rail. Spanish Queen went to a long break and the Boston colt, carrying Dewitt to a break 30 feet from the wire, was eased up. A serious accident was barely averted at the far turn in the opening heat, as a local mare, May King, going well to the front, went to a startle and caused havoc among the closely bunched leaders. Spanish Queen's colt was cut down, but cool work saved a bad smash.

In the second heat Aquila raced off in front four or five lengths, the Spanish Queen sitting across the big field at the half, could not get within striking distance of the great colt, who stopped to a new record, which is the best for a four-year-old trotter this year.

The two high class trotters clinched from the word in the third heat, and racing like a pair, they reached the quarter in 22 seconds. Spanish Queen, in 22 seconds, and Spanish Queen, in 22 seconds, and Spanish Queen, in 22 seconds.

With defeat staring him in the face, the game Boston colt fought stubbornly for the lead throughout the two to two miles, but the Boston mare was a crafty fighter, and won the race by a narrow margin.

The victory of Spanish Queen was a remarkable race, the first step toward the second heat of the 2000 dollar race, and doing it in such a convincing manner that there is still no line on his true ability. Gone away in the first heat, the big horse won a tactical break, and Gallagher stepped on in front, with Draper, Grant, and as usual and Resprochless, racing in the laps for the first time, a fourth heat.

With positions changed they reached the three-quarter mile, when Spanish Queen pulled the 2000 dollar of Champions winner wide and away, beating back the crowd by a wide margin.

sideways into McDonald's sulky, crashing him into McCarthy, but both got away without damage. Compressor ran to the turn, where Mr. Russell stopped him suddenly to let McAfferty catch the horse by the rein, and another accident was averted when the fair to be serious.

THE NASHUA RACES

NASHUA, N. H., Sept. 16.—The second day of the September race meeting at the fair grounds ended with two races unfinished, one of which at least, promises some sport today. The 2nd race was started yesterday, but only one heat was raced. The racing of the big lot of horses in the 2 1/2 mile race delayed the racing for the afternoon, but this race, with all its starters, proved to be one of the interesting ones.

Five heats were raced in this event, with not one of the 12 horses drawn until the rule set in yesterday's final heat. Alice Mack and Ace Wilkie finished the day's work with two heats each, and Northern Spy with one to his credit. Every heat was a race, and several of them were stopped off in fast time.

Grace Mack and Ace Wilkie, the first heat of the 2 1/2 mile race, but Graydon stepped in and handily took the next turn. The summary:

THE PRESIDENT MAY MAKE A FLIGHT IN AN AEROPLANE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—President Roosevelt may become a passenger in Orville Wright's aeroplane during the government tests. As the president went under the sea in a submarine his friends see no reason why he should not go up in the air in a flying machine. Wright has expressed his willingness to give Mr. Roosevelt a ride, and if the president returns here before the tests are over, which is likely, he may accept.

WATERBOARD MET

Discussed the Effect of Watering Car Work

At a meeting of the water board, held last night, the question of the dirty condition of city water in certain sections of the city was discussed, and Supt. Thomas said that the polluted condition of the water was due to the use of certain hydrants for the filling of water carts and the big street car sprinkler. He said that the matter could be easily remedied if the street department would provide standpipes for the filling of the carts. This would prevent the water from setting back in the mains and stirring up the extraneous matter.

IN FORGE VILLAGE

Man Wanted to Kill His Sweetheart

What might have proved to be a tragedy was narrowly averted yesterday afternoon, but it was a long time before the residents of the town who heard of the affair were able to compose themselves. It seems that Michael Mattox, a resident of the village, went to make a call on a girl who resides with Mr. and Mrs. Socha, but he was denied admission. He went away but later returned with a large butcher knife and demanded admission, but he changed his mind very quickly when he saw a revolver pointed at him in the hands of Mrs. Socha. Just then Officer Walter Precious appeared on the scene. The disturber had disappeared, however.

WAGE REDUCTION

AT THE WHITINSVILLE COTTON
MILLS IS ANNOUNCED

WHITINSVILLE, Sept. 16.—Notices posted at the Whitinsville cotton mills and at the Linwood mills at Linwood village announce a reduction in wages on Monday next, and an increase in the running time from 40 hours to 50 hours weekly. The cut will probably average 10 per cent.

The notices will also affect the North Uxbridge manufacturing company's mills at North Uxbridge and the Saunders mills at Saundersville. The Whites of Whitinsville, owners of all four concerns, are the best of the cotton manufacturers in the Blackstone valley to make a wage reduction; the others did so some time ago. About 1000 persons will be affected.

NORTH BILLERICA

The fire department of Billerica Centre was called out Sunday afternoon to extinguish a fire which burned over land owned by Mr. Simmons of East Billerica. About 45,000 feet of lumber was destroyed. The loss will be about $500.

HUGHES RENOMINATED

N. Y. Republicans Select Him as Standard Bearer

SARATOGA, N. Y., Sept. 15.—The republican state ticket, for governor Charles E. Hughes, of New York (re-nominated), for lieutenant-governor, Horace White, of Onondaga, for secretary of state, Samuel S. Koenig, of New York, for attorney-general, Edward R. O'Malley, of Erie, for comptroller, Charles H. Gans, of Albany, for state engineer and surveyor, Frank M. Williams, of Madison, and for state treasurer, Thomas R. Dunn, of Monroe.

For associate justice of the court of appeals, Albert Haught of Erie (re-nominated). Charles Evans Hughes of New York, was nominated yesterday by the republican state convention, by an overwhelming majority, and on the first ballot to succeed himself as governor of the state of New York. He received 827 votes out of a possible 1000 as against 151 for James W. Wadsworth, Jr., of Livingston county, speaker of the state assembly and 31 for former Congressman John K.

Stewart of Montgomery.

The nomination was made unanimously upon motion of State Committeeman William Barnes, Jr., of Albany, who has been perhaps the bitterest and most outspoken opponent of the governor's re-nomination, seconded by those who had placed Speaker Wadsworth and Mr. Stewart in nomination.

The governor's re-nomination followed the failure of a struggle on the part of a number of the county leaders who have spared no efforts to discover a candidate upon whom they could unite to defeat him. The balance of the ticket was made up, as an organization "state" announced an hour or more before the session of the convention began, by Chairman Timothy L. Woodruff of the state committee after a conference of the local leaders. Sen. White, who was chosen as a candidate for lieutenant-governor, was put for the governorship until the early afternoon, when after a meeting of his delegation he requested his friends to present his name. The fifteen votes of his county delegation (Onondaga) were cast for Speaker Wadsworth.

It was the 183 votes of all but one district in New York county that carried the governor's total beyond the 500, a majority of the convention, required to nominate.

The votes of Nassau county had brought the Hughes' total to 395. Amid a breathless hush, in which was incarnate all the intensity of bitterness and suspense, which up to that moment had characterized the struggle to prevent the re-nomination of Hughes, the secretary of the convention called "New York."

Herbert Parsons, president of the New York county republican general committee, rose in his place under the gallery, his slender figure alert and tense with the excitement of the crucial moment, his lean features, if possible, more inscrutable than is their wont, his eyes, nevertheless, alight with the consciousness that he was for the moment the custodian of words which would be flashed in a few seconds on waiting wires to far corners of the civilized world, and said: "New York county, second assembly district, gives four for Wadsworth; the balance of the county 183 for Charles Evans Hughes."

Hardly less sensational had been the moment when State Chairman Woodruff delivered to Hughes, in spite of a general expectation to the contrary, the entire vote of King's county, 138, bringing the governor's total to 532, for Woodruff had been avowedly opposed to the governor's re-nomination and even after William Berri, the choice of King's county for the governorship was withdrawn from the race was expected that some, at least the king's county vote, could never be delivered to the Hughes column. In fact, it was really the action of kings which signified what might be called the "Stampede to Hughes" and when its 138 votes were cast in a block for the governor, any remaining doubt of his nomination was swept away.

Orange, the home of ex-Governor Odell, divided its vote, five for Hughes and three for Wadsworth. St. Lawrence, home of Congressman Malby who had been regarded as anti-Hughes, gave the governor its total of 38.

The convention went fairly wild with the first real surprise of the roll call.

when Saratoga answered "eleven for Charles E. Hughes" for Saratoga is the famous home of racing, and almost anywhere you go in Saratoga you will be told that election day will show how Saratoga feels on the subject of the race track gambling bills. Few would have believed that Hughes could by anything short of a miracle have received the unbroken total vote of the Saratoga delegation. It was a full minute before order was restored.

The plump face of Sen. James A. Emerson, who voted against the anti-gambling bills and against the personal of Insurance Supt. Kelsey and whose opposition to Gov. Hughes has been almost unmitigated, was very red when, in answer to the call for Warren, he rose in his place in the exact center of the front row and answered, "Six for Charles E. Hughes."

Some minutes were required by the convention secretaries for the checking up of the totals and when Secretary Gleason came forward to announce the result the hall was again a place of suppressed excitement as if every person in the great room held his breath.

John K. Stewart receives 21, James W. Wadsworth receives 15, Charles E. Hughes receives 827, announced the secretary, and then it was pandemonium.

"I move, Mr. Chairman," said Mr. Barnes, in his somewhat high pitched voice, "that the nomination of Gov. Hughes be made unanimous."

It was a full minute before anything else could be heard or done, and then Frank K. Cook of Livingston, who had nominated Wadsworth, and Judge J. L. Moore of Montgomery, who had nominated Stewart, seconded the motion of Mr. Barnes.

The motion was carried with a deafening shout and Secretary Root announced: "The unanimous choice of this convention as its nominee for governor is Charles E. Hughes of New York."

It was again some minutes before order could be restored. So far as the great majority of the people in the hall were concerned, the rest of the business was routine, the work of the day was done. The remainder of the ticket, as agreed upon by the leaders in control of the convention, was generally known. There was an almost continuous murmur and shuffling of feet. It became necessary, even for the chairman pointing loudly with his gavel, to call attention to the fact that the business of the convention was by no means completed.

The remainder of the ticket was then quickly completed, the usual routine resolutions were passed, and at 5:30 p. m. Secretary Root declared the convention adjourned without date.

GOVERNOR HUGHES
Pleased With the Action of the Convention

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 15.—"I am deeply sensible of the honor conferred upon me. I wish to express my appreciation of the confidence reposed in me by the republican party."

Thus did Gov. Hughes make his first public statement after his notification of re-nomination for governor last evening.

Beyond that the governor would say nothing, either as to his running mates on the republican ticket or his policies for the second term, should he be elected.

He gave no reply to a question as to whether he would disregard the republican platform in relation to primary reform.

TO STOP WEDDING

Mother Appeals to the Clergyman

BOSTON, Sept. 15.—The proposed wedding at Hingham today by Miss Sybil Hodges, daughter of the late E. C. Hodges, the banker, to Warren Hingham Child is likely to result in a decided turmoil if Mrs. Hodges carries out her threats.

Mr. Child is a Harvard man and his father is one of Boston's wealthy men. Miss Hodges is wealthy in her own right, and both young people are very prominent in society.

Mrs. Hodges has been doing all in her power to prevent the wedding, aided by her son.

She has even begged the clergyman not to perform the ceremony.

She has declared that she will use extreme measures to stop it at the last moment.

So far she has failed utterly, and her daughter declares that her mother shall not prevent the marriage.

The wedding, to which fashionable Boston society has looked forward to for months, is scheduled to occur in Hingham in the presence of hundreds of Boston society people.

The announcement that Mrs. Hodges is to try and prevent the marriage has caused a tremendous stir.

While Mrs. Hodges says her only reason is her desire to keep her daughter with her, it is said that there is a far deeper reason, which if made public would create a big sensation.

Miss Hodges firmly refuses to call off the church ceremony and will be married in public, taking the risk of her mother appearing at the church to stop it.

None of the young woman's immediate relatives will be at the church, for the feud is bitter.

PAPER INDUSTRY

THROUGHOUT THE COUNTRY TO BE INVESTIGATED

APPLETON, Wis., Sept. 15.—"I am not prepared to state whether or not my endeavors here have added much to the knowledge I already possessed concerning conditions in the paper industry, but feel that the investigation in Wisconsin will surely result in much good," said Chairman James R. Mann of Chicago, of the congressional paper and pulp investigating committee, after holding an all day session at Menasha, during which time Augustus Spies, president of the Marinette and Menominee Paper company of Marinette, Wis., and Sen. William Jones of Bangor, Me., testified.

Continuing, Chairman Mann said: "While our committee will investigate the paper industry generally in Wisconsin, we will pay particular attention to the present and probable future supply of pulp wood and its availability in this locality. We will look into the price of wood, paper and labor, hours of labor and combinations."

When asked whether or not he intended calling to the witness stand Henry Dean of Providence, R. I., promoter of the proposed print paper and pulp mill syndicate, Mr. Mann replied that he would not say who he intended to call upon to testify.

MOROSINI DEAD THE CITY LIBRARY

Banker a Victim of Some Alterations to Be Made

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—Giovanni P. Morosini, banker and noted philanthropist, died suddenly yesterday of heart disease at his country place, Riverdale, in the upper section of the city. His death was unexpected, although Mr. Morosini had been ill for a year following a fall he had, after which kidney trouble and weakness of the heart developed.

Mr. Morosini, who was 74 years old, is survived by a son and two daughters. His wife died in 1893. Mrs. Victoria Morosini Schilling, his youngest daughter, created a sensation a few years ago by eloping with the family coachman and the aged banker disinherited her. Miss Giulia Morosini, the other daughter, is a noted horsewoman. Ottilio P. Morosini, the son, married a Virginia belle.

The rise in life of banker Morosini was romantic. He came to this country at the age of 16 years, after having served in the Italian army and the Austrian navy. One day he saw a crowd of boys beating another boy and he rescued the youth. The battered lad proved to be a son of Nathaniel Marsh, secretary of the Erie railroad. Mr. Marsh gave young Morosini a position and his industry and aptitude for figures brought about his rapid advancement until at the time when Jay Gould became associated with the Erie, Morosini was auditor of the road. In this position he earned Mr. Gould's confidence and profited by Mr. Gould's friendship thereafter.

A PRIVATE SCALE ALL WANT WALLER

To be Adopted by the Artisans
He May Lead Connecticut Democrats

The local branches of the Artisans Canadiens-Français are dissatisfied with the new graduated scale of fees adopted at the last convention at Montreal, and it is thought the result will be the cutting away by all the local branches from the central sick benefit fund of the society.

The Pawtucketville branch has taken the initiative and organized a private benefit fund of its own, cutting away from the central fund, toward which the members will no longer subscribe. This does not estrange the branch from the society, however, for the members will still retain their death insurance in it.

The following officers have been elected by the Pawtucketville branch to take care of the fund: L. N. Milet, president; Shale Mattie, vice-president; Joseph Sawyer, secretary and treasurer; Arthur N. Boudais, Rossire Tourangeau and Azarie Hanael, auditors.

The scale adopted by the Pawtucket branch is also a graduated one but a lesser amount than for the general fund.

St. Andre's branch, the oldest branch in the city, and St. Louis' branch will both act upon the matter tomorrow night.

The fees up to the adoption of the graduated scale by the last convention, were 30 cents a month for everybody, young or old. Following the example of nearly every other benevolent society in the country, the adoption of the graduated scale was resolved upon because the society could not meet its obligations at the low rate of membership fees exacted. The new scale, upon approval of the Quebec authorities is expected to be in force by October 1.

This new scale calls for the payment of 30 cents by members 18 years of age with this figure increasing by one cent with every additional year till 32 years, then by two cents for every additional year till 52 years, and finally by five cents with every additional year from 52 to 55 years. The new arrangement makes the fees of a member 35 years of age, 50 cents a month; of a member 45 years of age, 70 cents a month, and of one 55 years of age, $1.00 a month.

CAN LEGALLY WED

Court Decides in Favor of 13-Year-Old Girl

given up to acrimony and bitter debate, expressed themselves amazed with the quietest attitude of the delegates. They realized that after twelve years of disunion the entire party wants peace and that every element seemingly was willing to join in and help along the peace plan. The delegates last night were demanding that former Governor Waller should lead them in the state fight. They returned to their hotels after the county caucuses and went to bed. There were no gatherings in the hotel corridors, no discussion of the outlook amid wreaths of tobacco smoke. Everything happened in a quietness that was unexpected. This morning the delegates arose and breakfasted and they still wanted Waller. Even in the county delegations which last night tried or did not put themselves on record for second and third choice, the magic word of "Waller" made them forget they had a second choice. Former Senator William Kennedy of Naugatuck early announced that Mr. Waller was coming to the convention. He was not the permanent chairman, however, as the understanding was that he could take a seat on the floor and so be in a position to fight the singular battle, almost single handed of holding the convention in check lest it nominate him against his protests. Mr. Kennedy said to many inquires that there was not a single democrat in the convention who could prophesy that would be done. The call had been made for Gov. Waller, the call would be made when Gov. Waller appeared and he said that he had been wondering if it were possible for Gov. Waller to stand against it. Mr. Kennedy said that the entire democracy in the state believes Mr. Liley can be defeated for governor if the right man is put up by the democrats.

GIRL'S FATHER
Fears That She Has Committed Suicide

NORTHAMPTON, Sept. 16.—Bloodhounds will be used in the search for Miss Esther A. Hilbert, the young Philadelphia girl who disappeared Sunday, according to the decision of the girl's father, J. C. Hilbert of Lansdown, a suburb of Philadelphia, who arrived here late yesterday.

An unsuccessful search was made in the woods about this city and in the vicinity of neighboring ponds and streams yesterday and will be continued today.

Think Body is in Woods
Mr. Hilbert said last night that he believed his daughter must have committed suicide and that her body must be somewhere in the woods in the vicinity of Chesterfield, where she had been spending the summer with her mother.

Mr. Hilbert said that he did not believe it was possible for the girl to have walked a mile and a half to the nearest body of water in broad daylight without being seen by some one, and so far no one has been found who remembers having seen Miss Esther.

Sunday after she disappeared in the grove near her mother's summer home. The girl had not been well for some time and her ill-health had interfered with her studying for the entrance examinations for Smith college, which opened today. She was a girl of a cheerful disposition, but it is thought that worry over some two or three of her studies, combined with her illness, had temporarily unbalanced her mind.

SENT TO PRISON
Judge Bell is Determined to Stamp Out Crime

BOSTON, Sept. 16.—Taking the same action as did Judge Crosby several weeks ago in an effort to stamp out crime in Greater Boston, Judge Bell of the superior court yesterday sentenced three men to state prison and a fourth to a three-year term at Deer Island. All had been convicted of robbery.

James Brady, who held up and robbed Arthur Leeds, a lawyer of this city, several weeks ago, got a three-year sentence in state prison. George H. Brier, a young man who claimed to be a baker half the night and a second-story worker the remaining hours, was sent to the same institution for a term of not less than five or more than seven years.

Antonio Ballarino was sent to the house of correction for three years. He was convicted on a charge of robbing H. C. Pickering during the Knights of Pythias convention.

William Crotty, who has already served four terms in state prison, was sent back for a term of not less than three or more than five years. Crotty was convicted of stealing a horse. In 1891 he was sentenced to a 25-year term in state prison under the old statute relative to common thieves. He was released after serving 11 years of that sentence.

Pimples, Rash, Eruptions, Etc., Quickly Eradicated by New Skin Remedy.

Since its discovery one year ago, poslam, the new skin remedy, has, in its extraordinary accomplishments, exceeded the most sanguine expectations of the eminent specialist who gave it to the world. It has cured thousands of cases of eczema and eradicated facial and other disfigurements of years' standing. The terrible itching attending eczema is stopped with the first application, giving proof of its curative properties at the very outset.

In less serious skin affections, such as pimples, rash, herpes, blackheads, acne barbae's itch, etc., results show after an overnight application, only a small quantity being required to effect a cure. Those who use poslam for these minor skin troubles can now avail themselves of the special 50-cent package, recently adapted to meet such needs. Both the 50-cent package and the regular $2 jar may now be obtained in Lowell at Falls & Burkinshaw's, Carter & Sherburne's, and other leading drug stores.

Samplers for experimental purposes may be had free of charge by writing direct to the Emergency Laboratories, 32 West Twenty-fifth street, New York.

PRESENTED A LOCKET
Miss Annie Wetherall was surprised at her home last evening when a party of her friends called and presented her a beautiful locket. Gammes were enjoyed during the evening and refreshments were served.

There was also a piano solo by Miss Irene Christian; song, Miss Annie Wetherall; readings, Miss Margaret Dow. Mr. David Goodwin favored his friends with a cornet solo. The party broke up at a late hour. Mr. Romeo Choche made the presentation speech.

All orders promptly delivered and free of charge. No goods missing in your order.

LOCKS &amp; CANALS

TO GIVE $1000 FOR PHILANTHROPIC WORTH

The Locks and Canals Co. has voted to give the Middlesex Women's club $100 to be devoted to district nursing. Clubs in other cities have undertaken such work, and the Locks and Canals company, believing there was need of such work in Lowell, voted to give the club $100 for the first year's work, the club to assume the responsibility of disbursing the fund.

SHOULDER BROKEN

15-YEAR-OLD BOY FELL FROM A TREE

George Gardner, a 15-year-old boy, while picking walnuts in upper Gardner street near the East Chelmsford line, fell from the tree, a distance of about 14 feet, dislocating his right shoulder yesterday afternoon about 5.30 o'clock. He was taken to his home, 25 Saratoga street, in the ambulance.

DORCHESTER MAN

WAS INJURED BY COLLIDING WITH IRON POST

Ray Stafford, a traveling man residing in Dorchester, struck an iron post on a sidewalk near the corner of Middle and Central streets last night while running after some companions. It was at first thought that he had suffered internal injuries and he was hurried to St. John's hospital in the ambulance. A careful examination by the surgeons there failed to disclose anything more serious than superficial hurts.

BASEBALL NOTES.
 The Western league season ended Monday. Sioux City wins the pennant.
 Young Jimmy O'Rourke is proving a handy utility man for the New York Yankees.
 The American Association season closed Monday, with Indianapolis winner of the pennant.
 Billy Gilbert of the Cardinals says Kenerly is the best first baseman in the big leagues.
 Christy Mathewson has been the busy fellow lately. He has made twenty-seven assists in his last two games.
 Topsy Harrel will not make the final western trip with the Athletics. Not that he is to be deposed. Simply taking a vacation.
 The New York Nationals keep up an exchange of rapid fire verbal shots at one another on the field that doesn't give anyone a chance to lag.
 Wagner may beat Denlin out in the batting averages, but if Denlin is a member of a team which beats the Pittsburghers, he will be the winner.

WRESTLING NEWS.
 A strenuous wrestling battle will be pulled off in Associate hall Friday night, when Chief War Eagle, the famous Indian grappler, clashes with Young Prokes, the best wrestler of his weight ever produced by Athens. While War Eagle is not so well known in the east, his record in the northwest is one that any athlete might be proud of. Friday night of last week, War Eagle dropped off at Syracuse and in a grueling match defeated the Syracuse champion, Leroy Kelley, in straight falls. The Indian wrestling is a revelation to Syracuse sports. In Young Prokes, however, War Eagle is up against a superior man, one who is as clever as he is strenuous, and should the Indian win he will establish his right to place in the very front rank of American wrestlers. War Eagle will have a well-earned advantage of several pounds.

The license for the match was granted by the board of police at a special meeting held today. The stipulation being that either Jim Giligan or George V. Tully be the referee.

Harry Metropole and Lou Conte are having a merry war of words over their last match. Metropole says Conte did not wrestle with the right while Conte claims he did not receive anything in wrestling law, and that had he done so, Metropole would have been disabled him. The pair are to settle the question of superiority in one of the preliminaries Friday night.

With the passing of Billy Keeler goes one of the best batting eyes that ever looked toward the box. Willie was sometimes fooled by the good ones, but who ever saw him offer at a bad one?

If the New Yorks and Detroit play off for the world's championship a pleasing feature will be that spit ball pitchers will be very much in the background. There is none on the New York team, and the Tigers go in very little for the damp delivery.

STRUCK UMPIRE AND BASEBALL ENTHUSIAST WAS PLACED UNDER ARREST.
 ST. LOUIS, Sept. 15.—Umpire Jack Sheridan of the American Baseball League was attacked by an angry baseball enthusiast as he was leaving the American League park yesterday afternoon. Sheridan was pelted and hooted by a mob as he left the park. When one of the mob struck Sheridan, a policeman rushed into the crowd and seized the assailant. The crowd then pressed about the policeman and his prisoner, and the officer drew his revolver. Umpire Bush, who was with Sheridan, struck one of the mob in an effort to protect his colleague. The man who was arrested escaped. The trouble was the result of ill-feeling over a decision by Sheridan in yesterday's game, declaring Outfielder McIntyre of the Detroit team safe, which proved to be the winning out.

DEATHS.
 O'BRIEN—The many friends of Mr. Patrick O'Brien, aged 45 years, will be pained to learn of his death, which occurred Wednesday morning, at his home, 12 Hudson street. He leaves a wife, two sons, Frank and Willie, and three daughters, Edith, Lillie and Mary; two sisters and one brother in Lowell; one brother and one sister in Ireland. Deceased was a prominent member of the United Workmen, the Holy Name Society of St. Peter's church, and Court Middlesex, Foresters of America.

SHEEHAN—In Westford, Sept. 15, John Sheehan, aged 49 years. He leaves two brothers, Charles A. and Daniel H. and two sisters, Mrs. Kate Howard and Miss Mary Sheehan. Funeral will take place this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the funeral parlors of Higgins Bros., in Lawrence street.

McNULTY—Margaret A. McNulty, aged 7 months, daughter of Edward and Ellen McNulty died this morning at her parents' home in North Billerica.

MONETT—John Monett, aged three months, child of John W. and Mary, died yesterday at the parents' home, 742 Lawrence street.

FUNERALS.
 CONNELLY—The funeral of Mrs. Ann Connelly took place this morning at 9 o'clock from her late home, 282 Fletcher street. High mass of requiem at 9 o'clock, Rev. Fr. Callahan officiating. The casket was borne by Messrs. Riley, Kearns, Leblanc, McGovern, Smith and Carroll. Interment was in the Catholic cemetery where Rev. Fr. Callahan read the committal prayers. Turial was in charge of Undertakers Chas. H. Molloy & Sons. Among the floral offerings were a large pillow inscribed "Mother" from children of deceased; spray of asters with inscription "Gone Home"; P. A. Zedler and Mrs. Chas. Heller and a spray from the Walters family.

WRESTLING NEWS.
 A strenuous wrestling battle will be pulled off in Associate hall Friday night, when Chief War Eagle, the famous Indian grappler, clashes with Young Prokes, the best wrestler of his weight ever produced by Athens. While War Eagle is not so well known in the east, his record in the northwest is one that any athlete might be proud of. Friday night of last week, War Eagle dropped off at Syracuse and in a grueling match defeated the Syracuse champion, Leroy Kelley, in straight falls. The Indian wrestling is a revelation to Syracuse sports. In Young Prokes, however, War Eagle is up against a superior man, one who is as clever as he is strenuous, and should the Indian win he will establish his right to place in the very front rank of American wrestlers. War Eagle will have a well-earned advantage of several pounds.

The license for the match was granted by the board of police at a special meeting held today. The stipulation being that either Jim Giligan or George V. Tully be the referee.

Harry Metropole and Lou Conte are having a merry war of words over their last match. Metropole says Conte did not wrestle with the right while Conte claims he did not receive anything in wrestling law, and that had he done so, Metropole would have been disabled him. The pair are to settle the question of superiority in one of the preliminaries Friday night.

W.J. TRAVIS JEROME D. TRAVERS

In Golf Contest for Championship at Garden City, N. Y.

GARDEN CITY, N. Y., Sept. 15.—In a day of interesting play on the Garden City club's links, the national amateur championship tournament match advanced to the finish of the first match lay-round of eighteen holes and the big field of aspirants for the title was reduced from 132 to 16.

The final round of medal play which was started at 8 o'clock yesterday resulted in the elimination of all but 21 players, with Walter J. Travis, the gold medal winner, turning in the low score of 79-74-153.

H. H. Wilder, of Lowell, Mass., won a silver medal match from H. B. McFarland of Philadelphia, and fully lived up to all the reports which preceded him from New England.

Summary:
 First match play-round, 18 holes.
 Kenneth Edwards, Chicago, beat Mason Phelps, Chicago, 1 up (21 holes).
 J. D. Travers, Montclair, beat F. R. Upton, Jr., Baltimore, 2 up and 1 to play.

W. C. Fones, Jr., Pittsburg, beat B. T. Allen, Staten Island, 5 up and 4 to play.
 Albert Sackett, Chicago, beat S. D. Bowers, Bridgeport, 1 up.
 T. M. Sherman, Utica, beat Howard J. Gee, East Orange, 2 up and 1 to play.

C. E. Van Vleet, Jr., Montclair, beat L. A. Hamilton, Englewood, 3 up and 2 to play.
 H. H. Wilder, Lowell, Mass., beat H. B. McFarland, Philadelphia, 1 up (19 holes).
 Walter J. Travis, Garden City, beat Chadwick Sawyer, Middland, L. I., 2 up.

Fred Herreshoff, Manchester, Vt., beat P. W. Whittemore, Boston, 2 up and 2 to play.
 W. P. Smith, Philadelphia, beat R. C. Watson, Westbrook, 2 up.

John M. Ward, Westbrook, beat Findlay S. Douglas, Nassau, 1 up.
 E. M. Myers, Pittsburg, beat Ralph Pelletier, Jr., Middland, L. I., 6 up and 4 to play.

Max H. Behr, Morristown, beat Nelson M. Whitney, New Orleans, 2 up.
 H. E. Whitney, Nassau, beat S. J. Graham, Greenwich, Conn., 1 up.
 Thomas M. Chaffin, Weston, Mass., beat T. R. Fuller, Boston, 7 up and 6 to play.

Archie M. Reid, St. Andrews, beat J. C. Parrish, Shinnecock Hills, 2 up.

The survivors include several seasoned players, as well as some of the most promising young golfers in the western and eastern clubs. Jerome D. Travers, who holds the championship, and W. J. Travis and Even M. Myers, former champions, are among the survivors, but Findlay Douglas, who won the national honor ten years ago, was put out of the running yesterday afternoon by John M. Ward of Westbrook.

Lost the Decision to Joe Jeannette

BOSTON, Sept. 15.—By doing all the fighting in a 12-round bout and knocking his opponent to the floor, Joe Jeannette, of New York, (colored) won the decision over Sandy Ferguson of Chelsea, in the Armory Athletic club last night. In the semi-final which was the most interesting match of the evening, Eddie Murphy of South Boston defeated Harry Scroggs of Baltimore in 3 rounds.

In the preliminaries Billy Rolfe of South Boston knocked out Jack Killean of Ireland in the fourth round of a bout scheduled to go 8 rounds.

CORBETT WENT LIMIT
 PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 15.—To the surprise of the many followers of Mickey Gannon, formerly of Pittsburg, now of this city, the latter allowed Young Fred Corbett to go the limit of six rounds with him in the windup at the Douglas athletic club last night.

Many times during the six rounds Mickey had plenty of chances to place a sleep-producer on Corbett's features, but the latter kept fighting close and by doing a little holding in the clinches managed to get out of some tight places. Corbett started well, taking the first and having a shade the best of the second session, fighting Gannon close and using a right jab to advantage. Gannon's bunch began to look for him to do something in the knock-out way, but he could not get Corbett away from his body.

In the semi-windup Grassy Shields was knocked out in the third round by Eddie Stinger. The preliminaries were all classy.

LONDON, Sept. 15.—In addition to her ability as an actress Julie Opp has shown that she is a clever dramatist, "The House of Pierre," which up at the Longacre A. C. stage last night Billy Barrett defeated Frank Mangan. Barrett was floored in the second round. In the third Barrett fought back manly and outpointed his opponent in the four last rounds.

Jim Holland of England made a great showing in beating Young Cy Young in the semi-final. Dick Broad and Joe Gannon fought a draw, and Jack Lloyd knocked out Young Gans in the second round.

HURLEY BEAT WILLIAMS
 GLENS FALLS, N. Y., Sept. 15.—Three of the fastest six-round bouts ever seen here took place last night in the Knickerbocker A. C. "Bill" Hurley of this city had the better of "Kid" Hurley of New York. Young Larry of Pittsburg had a shade the better of Frank Sheridan of Boston, and Franklin Fay of New York had a slight advantage over "Tommy" Burns of Watervliet.

MORAN AND HANLON MATCHED.
 SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 15.—Promoter Sam Berger last night signed Owen Moran and Eddie Hanlon to fight 20 rounds Sept. 20. The men are to weigh 133 pounds at 3 o'clock. This will take the place of the fight between Freddie Welsh and Hanlon, which had been arranged for the same date. Moran will draw a far better house than Welsh.

STEYN-KEYES FIGHT OFF
 ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 15.—The Steyn-Keyes fight, scheduled for this place last night, was declared off, the participants refusing to go on because of small gate receipts.

AUTOMOBILE NOTES
 The first national assembly of the American Motor League will meet at New York during the coming fall. Delegates will be appointed to this assembly from thirty-seven states and many subjects of importance to motor car users will be discussed. It is also probable that at least one day will be set apart for the discussion of road improvement subjects, and upon this day prominent experts will be invited from various states.

Indiana is rapidly coming to the front in highway improvement and Madison county, of which Anderson is county seat, has under construction or contemplates the building of eighty-nine new gravel roads under the three mile road law. These improvements will cost about $600,000. A number of Indiana cities and towns are preparing to improve their streets under the three mile law, which provides for the improvement of any road that connects two improved roads not to exceed three miles long, at the cost of the township.

The La Crosse Automobile club is being helped in its efforts to curb automobile speeding by Mayor W. A. Anderson. The club has a system whereby each speeder is brought before him, examined in true Scotland Yard style, lectured and sent away to sin no more. It works every time he says. Mayor Anderson's example is to be followed by other city executives, and he will explain his system at the annual convention of the Wisconsin League of Municipalities at Oconomowoc, Wis.

Ce. fireproof vehicles formed part of the first automobile exhibition in Delaware as a feature of the New Castle county fair held in Wilmington from September 1 to 5. The fair association was enthusiastic over the innovation and arranged to provide a special building for it. All sorts of machines were exhibited, business cars taking a conspicuous part.

The grand jury of Baltimore has joined forces with the Automobile club of Maryland in efforts to abolish reckless and careless driving of automobiles. The jury has adopted resolutions favoring a scheme to compel drivers, whether owners or chauffeurs, to pass examinations and secure licenses before operating automobiles in an efficient manner. The automobile club at its next meeting will take action upon the resolutions of the grand jury. The club already has a bill ready which requires drivers to pass an examination before an efficient jury before being allowed to drive a motor vehicle through the city streets and suburban highways.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 15.—Freddie Welch, the British champion, knocked out Frank Carsey of Chicago in the fourth round before the Pacific A. C. here last night. Carsey was down twice when the clever Englishman worked the corner shift and sent a crashing right to the jaw that dropped Carsey like a log. Carsey was out for two minutes and was unable to move for thirty seconds.

FITCHBURG, Sept. 12.—Charles J. Glidden of Boston, taking as passenger Prof. W. H. Pickering of the Harvard Observatory, made an ascension in his balloon yesterday. The balloon left the earth at 3:35 p. m. and rising to a height of about 200 feet, passed directly over the city. It was in sight for a little more than half an hour, traveling slightly northward. The landing was made successfully at Woburn, about 13 miles from here, in an aerial line. Mr. Glidden is away today for Nashua, where he has planned to make an ascension.

THE MAINE ELECTION.

The returns from the Maine election, if they indicate anything, show that the democrats will sweep the country. The slump in Maine is more discouraging than that of Vermont, for it came in spite of the organized efforts of the party leaders to prevent any such result. The republican press will attribute the slump to republican apathy. That will do as well as anything else, for General Apathy is a powerful factor in politics.

SHEDDING CROCODILE TEARS.

The republican press seems to have great sympathy for the democratic party in its inability to sidetrack Bryan for some better man. It would be well for these papers to remember that charity begins at home and that the republican party with a candidate pushed upon it by the president needs all their sympathy and will need also their most earnest support. But even that in our opinion will not avert a political landslide. We would advise the republican papers to reserve all their sympathy for the leaders and candidates of their own party likely soon to be found bewailing the bitterness of defeat.

WILL SOON HAVE AUTOS.

The time is at hand when our police department, as Commissioner Boulger says, must have an automobile. Having an auto, the department must also have a chauffeur and mayhap a mechanic.

These will come high, but in the march of events we must have them. What is true of the police department in this respect is equally true of the fire department. The auto fire truck is becoming popular on account of its speed and its efficacy in raising long ladders.

The one great obstacle to the use of motor vehicles in the police and fire departments is, that they cannot be safely used in time of frost and snow. In both cases, therefore, the autos would be useless to a large extent in the winter.

THE LATE DR. HARRINGTON.

The late Dr. Harrington of the state board of health was a man of very broad and very positive views upon matters concerning the public health. He saw that the public was being imposed upon by the use of poisonous adulterants in food, and he insisted that the people should know where these adulterants are used. Then if they still persist in using the material so preserved they can blame only themselves.

With this view in mind Dr. Harrington instituted a successful crusade against the use of salicylic acid as a preservative, and formaldehyde he put under the ban with equal vigor. As a result it is difficult today to find either of these preservatives used without having a label announcing the fact in legible form.

Dr. Harrington enlarged the scope of the work done by the health department of the state. He was a great authority upon hygiene and all kindred matters and as a result of his work great progress has been made in this direction.

In his death the state has sustained a serious loss, as men of the Dr. Harrington type make their appearance but seldom. He eschewed notoriety; he loved the profession of which he was an ornament; and he abhorred the medical faker.

GREAT VICTORY FOR THE COAL ROADS.

The declaration by the supreme court that the commodity clause of the Hepburn act is unconstitutional is a great victory for the railroad companies engaged in the coal business. It had been decided that a company interested in coal mining had no right to give lower rates and better car facilities to the mining companies which it controlled than to others.

That being so the framers of the Hepburn bill introduced a clause providing that no railroad should transport any material in which it was itself interested with the single exception of lumber.

This was a roundabout way at best to stop the railroads mining coal. It might have been done on the ground that it is opposed to public policy to have railroads in the coal business or mining companies in the railroad business.

While the commodity clause had a different scope, if enforced it would have prevented the coal roads from handling their own coal and would, therefore, have forced them to keep to one line of business.

The commodity clause has been decided to be unconstitutional by the circuit court of appeals in Philadelphia, because it would deprive the companies of their property without due process of law because it invades the rights of the states, and because it provides an unwarranted centralization of power.

Some other method must now be devised to deprive the railroads from the business of coal mining. They have preempted about three-fourths of the anthracite lands in the country, and by running both lines of business conjointly they can take advantage of the public without detection. If their rates are regulated they can put up the price of coal to the consumer so that it is very difficult to secure fair play to the public in freight rates, in price of coal and general service where the railroads are allowed to do a coal mining business.

The railroads have won a great victory in this decision, and they look to the supreme court to confirm it in every particular. The fight must be taken up on new lines.

SEEN AND HEARD

John Delaney, the tailor, says that the best way to make a pants last is to make the coat and vest first.

Persons who break up camp and get back to the city on or about the first of September lose the two best camping months of the year. September and October. Unless that the spark of life is dying out entirely, to wake up beneath the pines one of these fine September mornings is enough to awaken the gladness in the heart of any man. Even a bad case of hay fever is not powerful enough to blot out one's happiness after one has ailed one's lungs with the ozone of the pines. Even the fall crow of the crow is music to the ear when the heart is glad.

THE DISSATISFIED BOY

It was a Discouraged Boy Who lay upon the lawn. And grieved because vacation days. With all their pleasant sports and plays. Too soon, alas! were gone.

Some sparrows near him hopped around. And, as he watched, the boy became filled with an envy most profound. Because the birds were free from rules. And never even heard of schools. And, sitting by, I overheard. This boy wish he was "just a bird."

Scarcely had the words been said—alas!—When, swift as lightning, from the grass.

Puss bounded, and one cruel blow. Laid one poor chirping sparrow low. Then said the Discouraged Boy: "I really never thought of that—Ah, well! I wish I was a cat."

Just then a dog of monstrous size. Came up the street—the cat he spied; Springs for her, and halt dead with fright. Puss drops her prey and takes to flight. Then said the Discouraged Boy: "Instead of either bird or cat, I'd like to be a dog like that."

But even as he spoke, a man Seized on the dog, and in a van Trust the unhappy hound. "Where will you take him?" said the boy.

The man said: "To the pound; And if nobody comes for him Tomorrow he'll be drowned."

"Ouch," said the boy. "I'm very sure I shouldn't fancy that; Nor being pounced on, like a bird. Nor being like the cat. It seems, somehow, that everything Has sorrow mixed with joy; So after all, I guess that I Would rather be a boy."

If Congressman Ames' aeroplane is a go, Lowell will receive still more advantage, and we may expect to see a new plane, entitled the United States Airship company, manufacturers of war balloons, erected in upper Lawrence street.

It is now up to Humphrey O'Sullivan to invent an auto tire of new rubber.

The burning leaves in the gutters are unmistakable signs of the departure of summer. Likewise the appearance of the high school football player in his uniform, going out for practice.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

DR. HARRINGTON'S WORTH

Boston Herald: Following boldly the plain path of duty, Dr. Harrington benefited the city and the state. Working thus without thought of self, he won a fame that was national. His career is a proof of the statement, so often doubted in these days, that there are true and competent servants in public office; that the work of these servants is appreciated so that a standard is set up by which others will inevitably be judged. The career of Dr. Harrington must be for years to come in this city an incentive to all that would, according to their opportunity and ability, contribute to the common weal.

LOOKS LIKE THE LAST STRAW

New Bedford Times: President Roosevelt's term does not expire until the fourth of next March. But he is quoted as saying:

"My main interest at present is in getting Taft elected. When that is done I'll be through with my job as president. Then I'll turn my attention to Africa."

"Getting Mr. Taft elected" has been the uppermost thought in the brain of Pres. Roosevelt for several months, and that is about all he will think of until Nov. 2.

"Getting Mr. Taft elected" is not the duty of the president. He has no right to give one thought to the election of his successor—and even if he has that right, he has no business to throw his official influence for or against any of the seven presidential candidates.

As president of this great country, Theodore Roosevelt has no right to dictate to the American people one thought or one suggestion as to his successor—no right to even insinuate that he would like to see So-and-So elected.

It is not his business to take any part in the presidential campaign. And what do we see?

We see President Roosevelt using all the power of his high office to control republican caucuses in the various states.

We see President Roosevelt marshaling his army of federal officeholders to support a certain man in the republican national convention.

ALIENIST AGAINST EXPERTS

Philadelphia Public Ledger: When a distinguished alienist launches the oft-written law of "emotional insanity" some good effect on public opinion ought to follow. It is an almost invariable rule that emotional, crime lessons rapidly as public opinion stiffens itself and gathers strictness. Even insanity has its kind of wisdom in avoiding a community punishment and rebuke. Lynching, husbands' revenges and personal feuds cannot survive an educated public opinion. Just and certain administration of the law is one of the first necessities, and one of the surest indices of an advanced society. Alienists, too often prone to grasp notoriety and protestations, have been responsible for a degree of public laxity in dealing with certain classes of criminals. Dr. Hamilton's satire helps to restore the balance of credit to his profession.

PEOPLE OF NOTE

Moses Zangwill, whose death in Jerusalem recently occurred, was the father of Israel, Mark and Louis Zangwill. He was born in Russia, but when he was 15 years old went to England. About 10 years ago he gave up his home in England and went to Jerusalem, where he joined the colony of pious Jews who devote their lives to prayer and the study of the ancient law. His biographer says that during his whole career in England he at no time possessed a means which would have been sufficient to satisfy the requirements of the present status act.

As the father of Israel Zangwill he was a conspicuous figure in the Jerusalem colony, where Jacob H. Schiff, the New York banker, visited him recently. He died at the Bithur Cholim hospital, where a Moses Zangwill bed will be founded by his sons.

The Hawaii Territorial College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts will start structure with eleven departments of instruction, and President Gilmore, who goes to the institution from Cornell university, has with him a number of thirty professors in various branches. The new college is supported both by the territory and by the federal government, being on exactly the same footing as the states and territories of the Union, which under an act of congress are this year drawing $3,000 for maintenance, the sum to be increased by $500 each succeeding year until a maximum of $3,500 a year is reached. Hawaii's college with this year be in temporary quarters, but a site has already been secured for the permanent location, and it is expected that by next year a permanent building will have been completed.

The domesticated Lapland reindeer, introduced into northern Newfoundland at the end of last year by Dr. Grenfell of the British Deer Sea Mission, have passed through their first and most trying winter successfully. According to Fur News, all are reported strong and lusty. The one mischance was an attack on some of them by the savage dogs owned by the settlers. One stag was seriously wounded, but Dr. Grenfell continued to patch up his wounds and the beast is now right again. One other difficulty has been overcome. The Lapp herdsmen are gradually learning English, and are now able to make themselves understood. The Lapps have also shown the natives how to get over the snow and ice with ski.

H. C. Andrews of New York, representing the American Museum of Natural History, has left for home after a stay of three months on the west coast of Vancouver Island, where he engaged in the study of whale life, making many trips to the feeding grounds and the whaling stations at Sechart and Kyauquot. He obtained an interesting collection of photographs showing the whale feeding, sleeping, romping and being taken by the harpoon. Mr. Andrews' mission was to add to the store of scientific knowledge concerning the whale and to ascertain if there exists any unmarked difference between the whales of the Atlantic and Pacific waters. Up to the present there has been little available information as to the whale life of the Pacific. The whales of the Atlantic had been the subject of careful measurements of many specimens and will make comparisons with recorded measurements of specimens on the Atlantic side. At present it is not apparent that any material difference exists.

Gardner Dexter Hixon, well known as a writer on scientific subjects, died on Sunday at his residence, 314 Springfield avenue, East Orange, after a short illness. He was born in Elizabethtown, N. Y., eighty-six years ago and although without college training had devoted his life to scientific and technical work. He was best known as the author of "Common Air and Its Application," "Modern Steam Engineering" and "Hydraulic Engineering." After teaching school for a time in his early years he became interested in scientific ventilation and with prominent contractors of the time experimented in the rural system of heating and ventilating, in which he became an authority. He lived in Brooklyn for many years, but five years ago moved to East Orange. His wife, three sons and a daughter, survive him. He was a member of the American Astronomical Society.

Mrs. Andrew Beazner, widow of the former superintendent of the Morris and Essex division of the Lackawanna Railroad, died on Sunday night at her residence in Arlington avenue, East Orange, of the influenza due to age. She was 55 years old and survived her husband nine years. Since his death she built at an expense of $10,000 the Andrew Beazner Memorial Chapel of the Dutch Avenue Presbyterian church in East Orange and gave it to other churches and churches. In 1907 her marriage in 1844 Mrs. Beazner was Miss Abby E. Ryckman of Newark, Conn. Her only child died forty years ago. The funeral arrangements were made by Charles Geo. John Franklin Ford and his friends of the family and for many years past an adviser of Mrs. Beazner.

RIGHT AISLE

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—The body of a woman about 20 years of age, who was believed to have either fallen or jumped from one of the small steamers, was found in the water at North Beach, Astoria, today, and is now in the morgue there awaiting identification. A watch attached to a gold chain around her neck bore the initials "E. K." and a white leather purse suspended by a silver chain was stamped inside "Provincetown, Mass." In addition to the jewelry the material of her clothing further indicated she was a person of refinement. She was of the blonde type, medium in height and weighed 130 pounds. The coroner said the body could not have been in the water more than two days.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC

Charles E. Blaney's great melodrama, "The Factory Girl," is making a big hit at the Academy of Music this week where it is being given a most admirable presentation by the Boston-Pitt Stock company with Miss Della Dwyer in the title role. The play abounding in every interest and a strongly dramatic in parts has also a fine vein of clean humor running through it, which is fully brought out by Miss Benson and Mr. Mackay. The play is superbly staged, and the third act, the interior of the factory, is one of the most realistic interior scenes ever presented in a popular theatre. In this act a live coal furnace is in operation during the act, and makes a powerful impression. The volume of the most popular and well known songs is being sung by the company, and the whole will be a most successful and profitable work. On Friday evening the company will appear at the conclusion of the season's performance.

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE

The Clara Turner company presented "The Chorus Girl" before a large audience at the Opera House last night.

Miss Turner is "Polly," a chorus girl, and she overcomes all kinds of troubles in the company playing the piece last night were the following: "Dan McNamara," Mr. Walsh; "Thomas Ryan," Mr. Lander; "Polly," Miss Clara Turner; "Ellie," her sister, Miss Lander; "Stanford Black," Mr.

CLARA TURNER

Democrat: "Mrs. De Shire," Miss De Villi; "Percy Stone," J. Golden; "Jack Gray," Mr. MacLennan; "Miss Louisa," Mr. Moore; "Thomas Dougherty," Mr. Lander; and Mr. Morris, Mr. Golden and Mr. Gray, in minor roles.

Several specialties are given between the acts. One of the best is the one given by the Brothers Chalmers, good French tumblers and acrobats. Fred Walsh and Miss Turner also appear to advantage during the performance. "Diversions" will be given in the afternoon and tonight the bill will be "The Woman Tamer."

EMPIRE THEATRE CO

The production "Romeo and Juliet" was given at the Empire Theatre last night, and the company will appear next Monday, Sept. 21. As the play is a most interesting and profitable work, it has been selected for the season's performance.

fresh and sweet as the breath of new mown hay, telling a dainty love story of an innocent country girl. No lover of good, clean theatrical entertainment should miss seeing this company, as a seldom occurs that such high class players are seen at a scale of prices ridiculously small in comparison to their merits. The prices for the matinee will be 25 and 35 cents, and at the evening performance 25, 35 and 50 cents.

MICAGLIO'S BAND

There was great commotion among musicians in New York upon the arrival of the famous Giuseppe Micaglio and his international prize winning band. Early numbering first-class selected artists. There was no such thing as scolding them out of this band, as Signor Micaglio will take his band entire back to Europe immediately after the close of his American tour in January. Nevertheless, there were keen and envious eyes bent upon Signor Micaglio and his Italian companions in New York, but no opposition was offered. Micaglio is said to possess a wonderful repertoire. His magnificent organization will be heard here on Thursday, Sept. 24.

HATHAWAY'S THEATRE

Dan Burke and his school girls, featured at Hathaway's this week, are genuine entertainers and their little skit, mixed with good music, first class singing and dancing, is pretty from its start to its finish. The number of women singers is the best ever heard here, strikingly good being the work of Miss Helen A. Baker, who was formerly soprano soloist at St. Patrick's church here. Other members of the quartet are Misses Bertha Deane and Mollie and Dagmar Moller. Mr. Burke is a remarkable dancer of the old school. The barefoot dance by the school girls is one of the features of the act.

The remainder of the bill is of the first rank. "Fiddlers," Helen Pullman and Edith Shays, in the sketch with heart throbs, entitled "Paddy and the Dream Lady," Haines Trio of instrumentalists: Pauline, Helen and Lou, character comedians: Billy Von, musical monologist: Lancelotti, and others, with the "Grand assemblage" in "The Fools' Parade," Bert and Mrs. Vinton, in comedy, and the Hathaway.

The school girls will be given every afternoon and evening during the remainder of the week.

Outlook at Many Big Colleges Is Bright -- Elberfeld as Manager.
* * * Burns' Shrewdness -- Baseball at Night * * *

Followed by the conference rule to begin practicing before Sept. 20, many of the players are learning the knack of throwing and have been kicking the ball and going on little jogs every day to harden their muscles so that they will be ready to take up hard work when the official practice day arrives.

This year's changes in the rules will make accurate handling and passing of the ball of unusual importance. The risky nature of the game has been done away with by the adoption of the plannets. It is absolutely necessary to have the man who will receive the for-

Indians try with Minnesota. Cornell will journey to Chicago and play the Indians on their own stamping ground. This will, in a way, give a comparative line on eastern and western football, but the comparative score method is a poor way of comparing the two sections of the country.

Elberfeld Won't Do as a Manager.
Nonpareil Elberfeld as manager of the New York Americans will not do. Elberfeld is a ball player of more than ordinary ability, but when it comes to handling a ball team or directing its movements on the field he is several points shy, and this has been proved. One of the greatest requisites of a baseball manager is brains, and the individual who attempts to make good in the position without at least an ordinary amount of gray matter is sure to find himself a failure. The New York team in its present condition is weak, but it is hampered more by Elberfeld's guidance than by the absence of several good players.

A friend of the writer attended a game in Washington recently between the home team and the Yankees. Elbertsd was shouting orders and abusing his players from a box next to the bench in a most boisterous manner. His players resented the interference by not heeding his orders. In the eighth inning of the game in question the players openly refused to get on the coaching lines. How many managers would stand for this? Would Jennings, McGraw or Chance? I guess not.

Just how some of the players on the team regard Eberfeld is best shown by the remark one of the team made: "It's great to play ball on this team. We are down in the race and playing under the direction of a crazy man. He thinks he is a manager, but he can't convince any one but himself that he has the first qualification for the place. It's a joke."

Burns a Great Ring Trickster.
We must all doff our hats to Champion Puglist Tommy Burns as a past master of shrewdness in the prize ring. Recently, in Sydney, Australia, Burns met Bill Squires for the third time. Previous to this Burns had twice clearly demonstrated that he was Squires' master in fistfights.

Their second scrap was held in Paris. In one of the early rounds of the fight Burns fell to the floor, ostensibly from a blow which Squires contrived to deliver. The cable said that the bell saved Burns. Two rounds later Tommy knocked out Bill, but stories of Squires' wonderful showing were quickly sent to Australia. The people in the antipodes were led to believe that Burns escaped death by a hair line.

Then Burns had his agents in Australia work up interest for another night between them, and finally a club offered a purse of $10,000, which was quickly snapped up by Hull and Tommy. In order to give the night fans a run for their money and knowing that the longer he let the fight go the more cash he would receive from the moving picture concern, Burns permitted Spivace to remain until the thirtieth round, when he could have done the trick just as easily in first or second.

Baseball Games at Night.
If the plans of Harry H. remain, president of the Cincinnati National ites at night. If the plans work, this is what we may expect to hear in the near future:

"Have you got anything to do to night, BILL?"

"Well, let's go out to the bañ game So-and-so is going to pitch. The game doesn't begin till 8 o'clock."

"Will the game be over before midnight?"

"Sure. They're not playing a double header this evening. It'll be pretty chilly, but I guess we won't mind that."

[From Our New York Dramatic Correspondent.]

THE dainty little comedy, "Love Watches," which has recently launched winsome Miss Billie Burke into stardom at the Lyceum, has been given a very hearty welcome. There has never been the slightest doubt as to the quality of Miss Burke's personal attractiveness, and now it is equally manifest that she is as clever as she is "agreeable to behold." It must be admitted also that the vehicle which has been chosen for the clever young woman's appearance in the stellar field is singularly attuned to her methods of expression.

It is not a stretch of the imagination to say that "Love Watches" is a gemmiferous little play. The situations are fresh, the lines are unusually bright, and the underlying idea is one that is likely to appeal to those who enjoy a social comedy in which the dialogue is fairly good literature. Most adaptations from foreign languages suffer in the transition, but if "Love Watches" is not as good as the original French play of De Piers and Colleville there are few who will be the wiser. Miss Gladys Unger has done the work into Anglo-Saxon with commendable skill. Wholesomeness is one of the comedy's best qualities. One does not always look for this in adaptations from the French, but "Love Watches" is as innocuous as it is amusing.

A Simple Story. "Love Watches" is the species of play which cannot be done justice in the mere telling. The story is exceedingly simple, and it is the treatment that brings out its charm. Jacqueline—played by Miss Burke—is a lovely maiden, a veritable flower of a girl, whose pretty head is full of sentimental ideas. She falls in love at first sight with her cousin, Count Andre de Juvingy. This happens one day when he has been thrown from his horse and is sitting forlornly in a mud puddle. Jacqueline tries hard for several months to conceal her passion, but finally gives up trying and tells the count frankly that she is very fond of him.

Andre had been something of a trifter in matters of the heart, but he was touched by his pretty cousin's ardent messages and makes up his mind to marry her without delay. When they return from their wedding journey with Jacqueline still pretty badly gone over her husband and the couple now honestly devoted to her, it comes to the ears of the charming little bride that another woman, her cousin Lucile had once formed an attachment for Andre and that the latter had been interested in her. Right here it is pertinent to remark that Lucile's real name for Andre was Spoodlees.

are must see her home. That settles the business. Jacqueline sends word promptly to all the members of her family that she has left her husband and is about to console herself with another man.

This "other man" is Ernest Argaude, an intimate friend of the entire family. He is incapable of treachery, but he has long loved Jacqueline in secret, and the announcement of her arrival at his home sets him all in a flutter. A most amusing scene follows, in which the two children—for that is what they really are—attempt to make themselves believe that they are engaged in a desperate love affair.

Presently the relatives begin to arrive one by one to inquire after Jacqueline, who at the first jingle of the doorbell conceals herself in another room. When her relatives have all departed, still in ignorance of her whereabouts, she makes the discovery that she continues to love Andre, and after promising Ernest that she will never tell anybody she has been in his house goes back home. Ernest agrees to win back her husband for her.

When Jacqueline arrives at home the first thing she does is to give it all away, even to the name of the man with whom she has been trying to fix up her revenge. The family regards the whole business as a gigantic joke. When Ernest arrives on his mission of reconciliation he finds that Andre is the only one who does not know everything. He tells Andre how Jacqueline went away and spent the entire afternoon in the company of another man. At this shocking revelation Andre is properly heartbroken. At this moment Jacqueline, who has been eavesdropping, bursts into the room and berates Ernest for his cruelty to her husband. All forgetful of her promise, she tells the latter that it is Ernest whom she visited.

At this confession it is Andre's turn to laugh, and he does most heartily. Ernest is not quite sure that things are as funny as they seem, but in time he, too, sees the humor of the situation. At the last he is so inspired by the domestic felicity which settles down on Andre's household that he weds a young woman who has long been devoted to him, and everything turns out as it should.

A Tale of the Rifle.

Not quite such an unmitigated success as the recent production at the Hudson theater of George Broadbent's dramatization of Edward Bulwer-Lytton's novel, "The Gunpowder Tragedy," Mr. Broadbent has named it "The Call of the Rifle," and it is emphatically a tale of the rifle. Although it contains some very telling situations and is really a very delightful in spots, it is far too wordy and possibly too artificial in its treatment to escape criticism. Mr. Robert Edeson, as Ned Trent, makes the most of his opportunities and really does some very creditable work, and the acting of the company is vastly superior to the play.

Marie Bonaparte has made "great changes in the Bonaparte family." Her intelligent work in smaller roles has prompted her managers to put her in the larger parts in a company named "The Lion of Me," which precedes "The Mother," in which Joseph Cornell has written at the starry theater, New York.

The story of the play is not especially novel or even striking. Ned Trent's father has been killed by orders of Galen Allort, superintendent of the trading post at the extreme north of the Hudson bay territory. That happened years before the play begins. Ned Trent is a free trader—practically an outlaw, with a price set for his capture—and he is forever in quest of information concerning his father's murder, bent on vengeance. He is captured by the men whom Allort has put out on his track and sentenced to be put out on his track to traverse alone and weaponless, with a deadly rusekinik in his wake to make a record of him should he contrive to escape starvation or death from exposure.

In order to secure a wife he resolves to make love to Albert's daughter, and he proceeds, of course, to win the girl and the coveted gun. At that stage of the business he doesn't want the girl but he has very urgent use for the gun. So he stills his conscience a bit by eating and lets it go at that. It is quite essential for the purpose of the story that he should be re-captured and be his. When he is brought before the judge Albert in the council chamber and is being tempted to name the person who provided him with the shooting place Mr. Edison has an opportunity to get in some of the fine work of which he is abundantly capable, and he does.

One of the hits of the play—none, the critics would say, which came as a genuine surprise—was made by Miss Beatrice Frontie as Julie Rameau, a little French girl who had come to the east for news of her missing father and who, when she learned that he had been murdered broke out into a paroxysm of grief, rage and defiance of the tyrant that was extremely realistic. Miss Frontie's effort was so well received that she came purposely near to "running out with the play."

An Influx of Russian Pianists.

According to the announcements already made, we are to have a veritable invasion of Russian pianists the coming season. Most of them provided with the customary impressive names are heralded by their enthusiastic introduction as the "best ever." It that is true, there are at least one Russian "best ever" who will always find a warm welcome in this country. Those who had the good fortune to hear Joseph Leduc play last season will be grieved to learn that he will not return this fall and will be heard in the larger cities. Some Russians are no less great but so qualified and great lovers of their playing as well as Leduc.

LEADING POWER IN THE WORLD'S STAGE AFFAIRS

The title of Frohman the Mysterious well applies to the head of the American theater world, who is now a leading factor also in England and the continent. Charles Frohman's person is surrounded by mystery. There is hardly a single person who is existing. The latter is talking regarding himself as if he were a slave at foreign shore. No one knows when he will appear at the office in New York or London, or if he. No one can tell at what moment he will be his as-

CHANLER NOMINATED

All Was Harmony in New York Democratic Convention

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 16.—At ten o'clock, the hour fixed for the reassembling for the democratic state convention, only a handful of delegates were in the hall.

The majority of them lingered about the corridors of the Whitcomb house where Tammany Leader Charles F. Murphy, Chairman W. J. Conners of the state committee, National Chairman Mack, former Judge Alton B. Parker, the permanent chairman, and other leaders were still in conference over the makeup of the state ticket. The galleries, however, were well filled.

The selection by the leaders of Mr. Dix as the candidate for lieutenant governor came as a big surprise as it had been taken for granted that Francis Burton Harrison of New York would be the choice.

It is believed that the leaders desired to strengthen the ticket by naming a far up-state man.

William S. Jackson, the present attorney general, was again an anxious waiter in Leader Murphy's anteroom this morning. The conversation was brief and Mr. Jackson hurried away.

Delegates on their way to the convention hall today were deluged with handbills headed in big black type by the word "warning." The bills were freely scattered in the hotel lobbies. They read in part:

"The people will no longer stand for Wall street nominees. They demand candidates who are known to have been Bryan men BEFORE his nomination. Men who are in sympathy with both the letter and the spirit of his platform."

"They were signed 'Bryan Federation, Frederick C. Leubaucher, state chairman'."

At 10 o'clock the committee on resolutions was still in session considering the platform reported by a sub-committee of nine. It is expected most of the delegates' seat had been filled and the leaders were still absent.

Finally Senator McCarren of Brooklyn entered, and his adherents set up a loud cheer. A few moments later United States Senator Thomas P. Gore of Oklahoma was escorted into the hall and to the platform.

TRIED TO KILL ARREST DOCTOR

Girl Attacked Her Alleged Betrayer He is Held on Fugitive Warrant

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—Just as Charles Mulholland, a young lithographer, was about to enter his home, No. 985 Ulica avenue, Flatbush, last night, a young woman stepped from a shadow twenty feet away and fired a shot at him from a small pearl-mounted revolver.

The bullet whizzed past his head and flattened against the wall. Mulholland opened the door hurriedly and ran into the house, just as the girl attempted a second shot, at closer range. But the gun missed fire.

"I did the shooting," she said to Policeman Donald McLean when he came up after hearing the shot. "Here is the revolver, and you can take me to the station house. I only regret that I missed."

"Why did you do it?" McLean asked, for she was a pretty, well-dressed little brunette of twenty-two or twenty-three years.

"He ruined my life," she replied. "He betrayed me and left me nothing to live for. Our baby died a few weeks ago, and I made up my mind to kill him and then be executed."

As the policeman took her to the Flatbush station, the girl told him she was Lena S. Brown, 23 years old, of No. 205 East Sixty-seventh street, Manhattan. She was formerly a choir singer, but of late has been a manicurist. She had her manicure set in her hand-bag with a 22-calibre revolver.

LEAVES MILLION

For Educational Institute at Salem

SALEM, Sept. 16.—An institute to provide a higher education which shall be special usefulness to men and women entering a business career will be established in the town of Ipswich, known as the will of John Brown, Burnham Brown of Ipswich and Chicago, which was filed for probate in this city today. After making personal bequests of $75,000, he leaves the rest and residue of his estate which estimated at more than a million dollars for the foundation of this institute. The will names as trustees to carry out his plans Dr. Joseph Fairhill of Chicago; Charles A. Sayward of Ipswich; John H. Proctor of Ipswich; Henry B. Brown of Ipswich and Rev. Milo H. Bates of New York city. Mr. Brown was born in Ipswich in 1821 and died there on Thursday last. He had for many years maintained a handsome residence in Ipswich, situated on the summit of Town hill. The buildings on this estate will be utilized as the nucleus of proposed educational institution which is to be known as Ipswich institute. The will provides that the school is not to paralyze any existing high school or college. Young men and young women must have a high school education in order to be eligible to admission. In selecting the students, preference is to be given first to residents of Ipswich, then to residents of Massachusetts and lastly to residents of Chicago.

CROWLEY WILL CASE

Interesting Testimony Was Offered Before Judge Lawton Today

Miss Lyons Who Had Lived With Mrs. Jeremiah Crowley Was Chief Witness This Forenoon

Robert J. Crowley, Adopted Son of Deceased, Contests the Will

The postponed hearing in the contest over the will of the late Mrs. Johanna Crowley, widow of the late Hon. Jeremiah Crowley, was resumed in the probate court at East Cambridge, this morning, before Judge George Lawton. The case was started in June but came to an unexpected ending at that time owing to the sudden illness of Hon. Mr. Sughrue, who with James T. O'Hearn of this city, appears for the contestant, Major Robert J. Crowley.

Miss Mary J. Lyons, niece of Mrs. Crowley, resumed the stand at the opening of the case and in response to Mr. Pratt's question stated that she knew that Mrs. Crowley had made a previous will. Mr. Pratt produced the will and after Miss Lyons had identified the handwriting it was admitted as evidence. The will was dated Oct. 6, 1906, and attached to it was a codicil dated November 23 of the same year.

Crowley claimed that Mrs. Lyons said that she lived with Mrs. Crowley nine years. After Mrs. Crowley's death, James Lyons, her uncle, remained there until the following July, while she and Robert constituted the remainder of the family. Mrs. Crowley, she said, adopted Robert after Mr. Crowley's death. Mrs. Crowley told witness that she adopted Robert because he was a poor boy, saying to her that he had no name. Later Mrs. Crowley, she said, told her that Robert would give her no peace until she adopted him, and she told him that the adoption would make no difference in regard to the distribution of the property, if he didn't behave himself.

Mrs. Crowley, she said, was a bright, strong-willed woman and kind-hearted. She transacted all her own business. Two years ago Mrs. Crowley spoke to her about Robert. At that time he went away to Cape Elizabeth, Maine, on July 21 and did not return until Aug. 22. At this time Mrs. Crowley telephoned to Mr. Dew and asked him if he knew where Robert was, and he replied that Robert was in Boston.

Mr. Pratt interrupted at this time, as the result of the last remark, and in reply to his question witness said that she heard Mr. Dow's answer through the telephone as she stood beside Mrs. Crowley and held the telephone.

Witness continued that, upon Robert's return in August he went away again in September, and Mrs. Crowley told her that she knew that Robert was not going right. Robert telephoned from Boston to send him some clothes and linen, and Mrs. Crowley told her not to send him anything. Mrs. Crowley wrote him a note, telling him that he had better close his office in Lowell and make his living in Boston.

Witness gave several dates when Robert went away. In May, Robert returned home, after an absence from home, and requested $30 of Mrs. Crowley, which the latter refused him.

Robert was at home on Christmas, 1907, witness said, and saw Mrs. Crowley. Witness was with Mrs. Crowley when Robert entered the house. Mrs. Crowley said she would not see him, and witness said: "Don't aunt; don't be hard on him; it's Christmas day." Witness then went down stairs, and told Robert to go up and see his aunt, and he went up and saw her. Mrs. Crowley told witness that Robert spoke to her about the will, and told her he was going to be mayor of Lowell. Mrs. Crowley told her that she told him that he would never be mayor of Lowell if he didn't behave himself.

A year ago last June Mrs. Crowley told witness, she said, that if Robert touched any more of her money she would prosecute him.

At this point Mr. Pratt objected to the witness' manner of answering questions, claiming that witness was not repeating Mrs. Crowley's language or the substance of it, in repeating their conversations, but was substituting her own conclusions. Judge Lawton instructed the witness how to answer.

Last December Mrs. Crowley spoke to witness about making a will and spoke of having Mrs. Reilly make it.

In the following January Mrs. Crowley told her that she could not die happy and meet her God and her husband if she knew that Robert was to have her husband's money and company. Mrs. Crowley told her that she would not give Mr. Crowley's watch to Robert as she did not want it to be pulled out in barter.

Witness recalled the fact that Mrs. Crowley told her three years ago that Robert was going to carry on his old game, and she would find he was making a mistake. Witness related a conversation between Mrs. Crowley and Mr. Dow in which the latter told Mrs. Crowley that they were going to straighten out Robert and asking her to take him back. Mrs. Crowley said she would not give him any more money.

Lowell Man Convicted of Man-slaughter in Superior Court

The superior criminal court, with Judge Lawton on the bench, opened this session in East Cambridge this morning and the case of George Aleck, a Loweller, indicted for manslaughter in causing the death of John Parakavacos and assault with a dangerous weapon on another fellow countryman went to the jury shortly after the opening of the session. Judge Lawton began his charge to the jury in Lowell yesterday and finished this morning.

His Honor stated that in coming to their conclusions they should not consider or be swayed by the penalty attached to the crime. It made no difference to them whether the penalty was a 10 cent fine or 20 years' imprisonment.

The jury was out but a short time when it returned with a verdict of guilty on both counts.

Owing to the absence of Daniel J. Donahue, counsel for the defendant, sentence was deferred and later in the day.

Household Articles at Shaw Home

The household furnishings of the residence of Mrs. Ellen M. Shaw, against whom injunction proceedings to restrain her from turning her property over to the Mazdaznans are pending, are being sold today at the beautiful residence at Tyler park, the residence that was sold a few days ago. The sale is being conducted by Auctioneer John M. Farrell and a large crowd gathered at the scene of the sale at the opening hour, 10 o'clock. The bidding was quite spicy and it was here and there that the articles sold up to the time of writing brought a very fair price.

HELD THEIR STATE CONVENTION AT KEENE

KEENE, N. H., Sept. 16.—The state convention of the Ancient Order of Hibernians and the state convention of the ladies' auxiliary of the order took place today. A banquet will be held this evening in the armory.

Nearly 300 delegates and other visitors marched to St. Bernard's church today where high mass was solemnized by Rev. Martin Egan, celebrant.

The convention was formally opened at a mass meeting in the local A. O. H. hall when Mr. M. V. Clark welcomed the visitors to the city. Matthew Cummings of Boston, national president of the order in this country, spoke in behalf of the gathering.

The ladies' auxiliary then adjourned to the Knights of Columbus hall and the routine business session of the two orders began.

The election of officers to both state branches was held late this afternoon.

SUPT. NEEDHAM

Refuses to Have Lawrence Streets Watered

LAWRENCE, Sept. 16.—Mayor Kane ordered Supt. of Streets Needham to stop the city's water trucks from watering the streets during high water on the city street watering works and to continue the work of street watering until the water has subsided to the city's normal level. The mayor's order was issued after the city's water trucks had been watering the streets for several days.

But Supt. Needham has refused, and the streets are in a filthy condition as a result of the water. As a consequence, a great deal of criticism has been directed against the city's water works. The city's water works are old and the water is not clean. The city's water works are in need of repair and the city's water works are in need of a new system.

MET IN LOWELL

Taunton Man Was Held Up by a Stranger

Richard Young, 68 years of age of Taunton, Mass., after being held up late Monday evening in a field on the Calef road, near Baker street, Manchester, by a young man whose acquaintance he formed on the electric cars from Lowell to Nashua, and who accompanied him to Manchester, was found by Policeman Sweeney, who sent him to the station where the old man told the story of the holding up.

Fortunately through the presence of mind of Mr. Young the thief failed to get $11, which the old man had in a pocketbook in his trousers pocket. This pocketbook the owner pulled out during the tussle and hid in the grass, where it was afterwards found by the police.

Mr. Young was on his way to Manchester on a business trip, coming the greater part of the way from his home in Taunton by trolley. When he boarded the car at Lowell, he saw a young man who shared his seat and who said that he was going to Manchester. As Mr. Young was also going to Manchester they kept together.

A change of cars was made at Nashua and they started on the trip for Manchester. On the way up the young man told Mr. Young that he had a gun and invited him to spend the night with him, saying that they would go to his mother's house. Mr. Young consented to the stranger's request and the conductor asked the stranger to get out of the car and to go to the Smith farm, which is now best known as the Clarke farm. The stop was made where the place was reached and both got off at a point where the cars turn off on the new double-track section. The men started across a field beside the road.

When Mr. Young and his new-found friend reached the middle of the field, the youth pointed upon the old man and attempted to throw him to the ground, at the same time making violent efforts with one hand to reach the pocketbook which he knew was in one of his trousers pockets. In the tussle Mr. Young pulled the pocketbook out and when he fell to the ground, slipped it into the grass. Failing to find it after pulling Mr. Young's pockets inside out, the thief ran away.

Mr. Young was bewildered and finally made up his mind to spend the night where he was. Fortunately Policeman Sweeney came along and saw him in the grass. He related his story to the officer, and the latter sent him home.

He repeated the same story to Captain Steele and early in the morning taken to the scene of the affair, where after a little search, the pocketbook was found. It is believed that he is a Manchester man in view of the fact that he knew where Smith's farm was and picked out a lonely spot for his attack on the old man.

Mr. Young is detained by the police for further investigation.

Later yesterday Mr. Young told Policeman Hampton that he had gone to Manchester looking for work. The stranger having told him that there was an excellent opportunity for a job in Manchester.

Gov. Higgins Declines Three Went Down in Market Street

The watering cart passed through Market street this afternoon, and just for that three horses met their Waterloo. The water rendered the smooth paving rather treacherous and the horses were a bit careless on their pins. The last one to fall went down opposite the police station and acted the part of the fellow who said: "Go away and let me sleep. I would rather sleep than eat." As many men as had laid in his tail finally succeeded in getting him to his feet and he turned and ran away. ## HARRY THAW

Is Sending $200 a Week to His Wife

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—When Sheriff Lane of Worcester returns today from the republican state convention, it is expected that he will make radical changes in connection with the confinement of Harry K. Thaw in the White Plains jail. It is reported that Thaw has been moved to a larger cell on the second tier, over the wardens' private office. No one is permitted to see Thaw.

Regarding the sale of $200,000 brought against Mrs. Thaw by the state yesterday, it is said that she will pay $200 a week and has $250 for her this week. He would not say more.

Harry K. Thaw's answer to Lawyer John H. Glendon's suit for an alleged balance of $200,000 filed yesterday at Rochester affirms he paid Glendon $20,000, and that the lawyer disbursed $180,000. He said Glendon's services were worth $20,000, and alleged they were worth not more than $20,000, the amount he says specifically agreed upon.

HUGHES RENOMINATED

N. Y. Republicans Select Him as Standard Bearer

SARATOGA, N. Y., Sept. 16.—The republican state ticket: For governor Charles E. Hughes, of New York (re-nominated). For lieutenant-governor, Horace White, of Onondaga. For secretary of state, Samuel S. Koenig, of New York. For attorney-general, Edward R. O'Malley, of Erie. For comptroller, Charles H. Gans, of Albany. For state engineer and surveyor, Frank M. Williams, of Madison. For state treasurer, Thomas B. Dunn, of Monroe.

Safety Gas Cocks

THE S. & A. SAFETY COCKS prevent the turning of gas keys by mistake and do away with the danger of asphyxiation and gas poisoning. Once the gas is turned off it cannot be turned on again until the spring is released by a pressure of the thumb. Gas cocks of this design would prevent accidents such as befell a resident of Clifford street a few days ago, an account of which appeared in the papers of August 28. He had arisen in the night and on turning off the gas it is thought he accidentally turned it on again. When found he was in a serious condition and was taken to St. John's hospital.

Stewart of Montgomery.

The nomination was made unanimously upon motion of State Committeeman William Barnes, Jr., of Albany, who has been perhaps the bitterest and most outspoken opponent of the governor's renomination, seconded by those who had placed Speaker Wadsworth and Mr. Stewart in nomination.

The governor's renomination followed the failure of a struggle on the part of a number of the county leaders who have spared no efforts to discover a candidate upon whom they could unite to defeat him. The balance of the ticket was made up, as an organization, "slate" was announced an hour or more before the session of the convention began, by Chairman Timothy L. Woodruff of the state committee after a conference of the local leaders. Sen. White, who was chosen as a candidate for lieutenant-governor, was put for the governor's nomination.

The fifteen votes of his county delegation (Onondaga) were cast for Speaker Wadsworth.

It was the 153 votes of all but one district in New York county that carried the governor's total beyond the 505, a majority of the convention, required to nominate.

The nine votes of Nassau county had brought the Hughes' total to 395. Amid a breathless hush, in which was incarnate all the intensity of bitterness and suspense which up to that moment had characterized the struggle to prevent the renomination of Hughes, the secretary of the convention called "New York."

Herbert Parsons, president of the New York county republican general committee, rose in his place under the gallery, his slender figure alert and tense with the excitement of the crucial moment, his lean features, if possible, more inscrutable than his wont, his eyes, nevertheless, alight with the consciousness that he was for the moment the custodian of words which would be flashed in a few seconds on waiting wires to far corners of the civilized world, and said:

"New York county, second assembly district, gives four for Wadsworth; the balance of the county 153 for Charles Evans Hughes."

A thousand pencils in two seconds had footed the Hughes total to 578; in many heart beats every person in the great hall knew that the battle was over and the place was instantly a bedlam of cheering.

Hardly less sensational had been the moment when State Chairman Woodruff delivered to Hughes, in spite of a general expectation to the contrary, the entire vote of Kings county, 138, bringing the governor's total to 716, for Woodruff had been avowedly opposed to the governor's renomination and even after William Berri, the choice of Kings' county for the governorship was withdrawn from the race was expected that some, at least the Kings county vote, could never be delivered to the Hughes column.

It was really the action of Kings which signified what might be called the "Stamper" vote, and when its 138 votes were cast in a block for the governor, any remaining doubt of his nomination was swept away.

Orange, the home of ex-Governor Odell, divided its vote, five for Hughes and three for Wadsworth. St. Lawrence, home of Congressman Malby who had been regarded as anti-Hughes, gave the governor its total of 18.

The convention went fairly wild with the first real surprise of the roll call.

when Saratoga answered "eleven for Charles E. Hughes." for Saratoga is the famous home of racing, and almost everywhere you go in Saratoga you will be told that election day will show how Saratoga feels on the subject of the race track gambling bill. Few would have believed that Hughes could by anything short of a miracle have received the unbroken total vote of the Saratoga delegation. It was a full minute before order was restored.

The plump face of Sen. James A. Emery, who voted against the anti-gambling bill and against the removal of Insurance Supt. Kelsey and whose opposition to Gov. Hughes has been almost unrelenting, was very red when, in answer to the call for Warren, he rose in his place in the exact center of the front row and answered, "Six for Charles E. Hughes."

Some minutes were required by the convention secretaries for the checking up of the totals and when Secretary Johnson came forward to announce the result the hall was again a place of suppressed excitement as if every person in the great room held his breath.

"John K. Stewart receives 31, James W. Wadsworth receives 15, Charles E. Hughes receives 527," announced the secretary, and then it was pandemonium.

"I move, Mr. Chairman," said Mr. Barnes, in his somewhat high pitched voice, "that the nomination of Gov. Hughes be made unanimous."

It was full minute before anything else could be heard or done, and then Frank K. Cook of Livingston, who had nominated Wadsworth, and Judge J. L. Moore of Montgomery, who had nominated Stewart, seconded the motion of Mr. Barnes.

The motion was carried with a deafening shout and Secretary Root announced:

"The unanimous choice of this convention as its nominee for governor is Charles E. Hughes of New York."

It was again some minutes before order could be restored.

So far as the great majority of the people in the hall were concerned, the rest of the business was routine, the work of the day was done. The remainder of the ticket, as agreed upon by the leaders in control of the convention, was generally known. There was an almost continuous murmur and shuffling of feet. It became necessary, even for the chairman, to pound loudly with his gavel, to call attention to the fact that the business of the convention was by no means completed.

The remainder of the ticket was then quickly completed, the usual routine resolutions were passed, and at 5:30 p. m. Secretary Root declared the convention adjourned without delay.

GOVERNOR HUGHES

Pleased With the Action of the Convention

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 16.—"I am deeply sensible of the honor conferred upon me, I wish to express my appreciation of the confidence reposed in me by the republican party."

Thus did Gov. Hughes make his first public statement after his notification of renomination for governor last evening. Beyond that the governor would say nothing, either as to his running mates for the republican ticket or his policies for the second term, should he be elected.

He gave no reply to a question as to whether he would disregard the republican platform in relation to primary reform.

TO STOP WEDDING

Mother Appeals to the Clergyman

BOSTON, Sept. 16.—The proposed wedding at Hingham today by Miss Sybil Hodges, daughter of the late E. C. Hodges, the banker, to Warren Hunkewell Child is likely to result in a decided turmoil if Mrs. Hodges carries out her threats.

Mr. Child is a Harvard man and his father is one of Boston's wealthy men. Miss Hodges is wealthy in her own right, and both young people are very prominent in society.

Mrs. Hodges has been doing all in her power to prevent the wedding, aided by her son.

She has even begged the clergyman not to perform the ceremony.

She has declared that she will use extreme measures to stop it at the last moment.

So far she has failed utterly, and her daughter declares that her mother shall not prevent the marriage.

The wedding, to which fashionable Boston society has looked forward for months, is scheduled to occur in Hingham in the presence of hundreds of Boston society people.

The announcement that Mrs. Hodges is to try and prevent the marriage has caused a tremendous stir.

While Mrs. Hodges says her only reason for her desire to keep her daughter with her, it is said that there is a far deeper reason, which if made public would create a big sensation.

Miss Hodges firmly refuses to call off the church ceremony and will be married in public, taking the risk of her mother appearing at the church to stop it.

None of the young woman's immediate relatives will be at the church, for the feud is bitter.

PAPER INDUSTRY

THROUGHOUT THE COUNTRY TO BE INVESTIGATED

APPLETON, Wis., Sept. 16.—"I am not prepared to state whether or not my investigations here have added much to the knowledge I already possessed concerning conditions in the paper industry, but feel that the investigation in Wisconsin will surely result in much good," said Chairman James B. Mann of Chicago, of the congressional paper and pulp investigating committee last evening, after holding an all time Augustus Spies, president of the Maritime and Menominee Paper company of Marinette, Wis., and Sen. William Jones of Bangor, Me., testified.

Continuing, Chairman Mann said: "While our committee will investigate the paper industry generally in Wisconsin, we will pay particular attention to the present and probable future supply of pulp wood and its availability in this locality. We will look into the price of wood, paper and labor, hours of labor and combinations."

When asked whether or not he intends calling to the witness stand Henry Dean of Providence, R. I., promoter of the proposed print paper and pulp mill syndicate, Mr. Mann replied that he would not say who he intended to call upon to testify.

MOROSINI DEAD THE CITY LIBRARY

Banker a Victim of Heart Disease

Some Alterations to Be Made

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—Giovanni P. Morosini, banker and noted philanthropist, died suddenly yesterday of heart disease at his country place, Riverdale, in the upper section of the city. His death was unexpected, although Mr. Morosini had been ill for a year following a fall he had, after which kidney trouble and weakness of the heart developed.

Mr. Morosini, who was 74 years old, is survived by a son and two daughters. His wife died in 1893. Mrs. Victoria Morosini Schilling, his youngest daughter, created a sensation a few years ago by eloping with the family coachman and the aged banker disinherited her. Miss Giulia Morosini, the other daughter, is a noted horsewoman. Otilio P. Morosini, the son, married Mary Bond, a Virginia belle.

The rise in life of banker Morosini was romantic. He came to this country at the age of 16 years, after having served in the Italian army and the Austrian navy. One day he saw a crowd of boys beating another boy and he rescued the youth. The battered lad proved to be a son of Nathaniel Marsh, secretary of the Erie railroad. Mr. Marsh gave young Morosini a position and his industry and aptitude for figures brought about his rapid advancement until at the time when Jay Gould became associated with the Erie, Morosini was auditor of the road. In this position he earned Mr. Gould's confidence and profited by Mr. Gould's friendship thereafter.

A PRIVATE SCALE ALL WANT WALLER

To be Adopted by the He May Lead Connecticut Democrats

The local branches of the Artisans... The Pawtucket branch has taken the initiative and organized a private benefit fund of its own...

The scale adopted by the Pawtucket branch is also a graduated one but a lesser amount than for the general fund.

St. Andrew's branch, the oldest branch in the city, and St. Louis' branch will both act upon the matter tomorrow night.

The fees up to the adoption of the graduated scale by the last convention, were 30 cents a month for everybody, young or old.

This new scale calls for the payment of 30 cents by members 18 years of age with this figure increasing by one cent with every additional year till 22 years, then by two cents for every additional year till 52 years, and finally by five cents with every additional year from 52 to 55 years.

REV. DR. DANIEL

Native of Persia Challenges the Mazdaznan Leader

Hints That He is a Religious Humbug—Says There is no Such Religion in Persia as Mazdaznan

Rev. Dr. George Daniel, a Persian missionary, has issued a challenge to Rev. Dr. Gtoman Zar-Adusht Ha-Nish, leader of the Mazdaznans, and is anxious to meet him in joint debate, in public. Dr. Daniel declares that he is willing to test the "Little Master," and further states that the Mazdaznan cult is unknown in his native country.

The Persian missionary, in conversation with a reporter, said that if Dr. Ha-Nish will let him know within two weeks, that he will meet him at any time. Dr. Daniel has been much interested since coming to this country in the Mazdaznan cult. He first got interested in the cult when he learned that Dr. Ha-Nish represents himself to be a Persian and to teach one of the ancient religions of that country.

"I never heard of it in my life," said Dr. Daniel, in speaking of the cult, "until I came here; and as I am a native of Persia, and only came to this country two years ago, and as I have made a study of religions, I would most certainly have known of the sect, had it existed there."

"We have five worshippers, of course; they are derived from the sun worshippers, who existed before Zoroaster. There is no such thing as a 'Mazdaznan' religion there."

Dr. Daniel was told that Dr. Ha-Nish claims to belong to a secret society that exists in Persia, that has its origin away back in the beginning of things. A kind of royal society. They were members of this society, who carried away the body of Jesus; and it was they who stood around at his crucifixion, and thrust the spear into his side.

"Let me tell you this," said Dr. Daniel, "there are no secret societies in Persia. There are men there who have joined secret societies in this country, but there are none others. The religion of the Mazdaznans is secret, but they are quite different from the sun worshippers or fire worshippers. And there is a religion, not a society."

In Persia all religious leaders wear beards, while the "Little Master" is smooth shaven.

Dr. Daniel spoke at the Central M. E. church last night and gave a very interesting talk on Persian religions and customs.

CHANLER THE MAN

New York Democrats to Decide on Him for Governor

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 15.—A night of conferences was followed this morning in the few hours before convention time by the further consideration by the leaders of a tentative draft of the state ticket which has been drawn for ratification by the delegates to the democratic state convention.

When State Chairman W. J. Conners, Charles F. Murphy and Daniel F. Cohalan of Tammany Hall, and National Chairman MacFarland, returned after practically an all-night conference the following state had been agreed upon for presentation at the convention:

Governor—Lewis S. Chanler of Dutchess county.

Lieut.-governor—Francis B. Harrison of New York.

Secretary of state—John S. Whalen of Monroe.

Attorney-general—Frank K. Kellogg of Glens Falls or George Palmer of Schoharie.

Comptroller—Martha H. Glynn of Albany.

State engineer and surveyor—George Ricker of Erie.

Treasurer—Julius Hauser of Suffolk.

All through the night representative delegates urged the candidacies of Mr. Chanler, Thomas F. Conway of Plattsburgh, and David Robinson of Elmira. William F. Sheahan of New York made an earnest effort to secure the selection of D. Cary Herick of New York.

Meanwhile Mr. Murphy and the Tammany leaders gave no indication of committing themselves to any man. State Chairman Conners insisted that the majority of the delegates were for Mr. Chanler.

THE MATHEWS

INVITED TO TAKE PART IN HAVILL PARADE

The regular meeting of the Mathew Temperance Institute was held last evening with President John J. Coyne in the chair. Considerable routine business was transacted. The society was honored with the presence of a delegate from the Pres. Mathews of Havill extending an invitation to the local society to take part in the grand temperance demonstration of the Essex county union parade to be held in Havill on October 10. The invitation was referred to the 10th of October committee. The literary committee has many interesting lectures mapped out for the members during the winter months. The committee in charge of the grand banquet, concert and ball reported that arrangements have been completed for that event and that the members and their lady friends will be entertained with a grand menu lasting from 8 to 9.30 o'clock.

From 9.30 to 10 o'clock an excellent concert program will be enjoyed. Among those who will entertain are the following:

Glandale quartet: Mr. James E. Donnelly, Mr. Martin Maguire, Miss Alice Bagley, Mr. John J. Murray and Charles Curry.

At 10 o'clock dancing will be held until 1 o'clock. The concert orchestra will furnish music. Mr. Michael J. Dowd will act as master of the evening.

The following awards offered on the coupon tickets were announced: First prize, $5 in gold, donated by the Mathews; Miss Rose McCann, 101 Central street; silk umbrella, donated by Thomas F. McCann; John E. O'Neill, 415 Gorham street; box of Social Tea Cigars, donated by Harms and Bradley, Mrs. 120, Pleasant 207 Concord street; traveling bag, donated by Matthews, John J. Dwyer, Mr. T. L. pipe donated by James J. Gallagher, George Drinan, 10 West street.

ANOTHER CONFERENCE

Has Been Called to Draft a Universal Treaty

THE HAGUE, Sept. 15.—At the request of Germany and Italy, Holland is to invite the powers represented at the second Hague peace conference to participate in a further conference at The Hague probably in 1909 for the elaboration of a draft of a universal treaty.

JAMES J. BRADLEY.

Bright Students Go to American College at Rome

Mr. James J. Bradley, Holy Cross '05 and Denis A. O'Brien, Boston college '08, together with Patrick J. Meagher of St. Dunstan's college, will sail from Boston October 2 to enter upon their studies in philosophy and theology at the American college in Rome. All three young men reside in St. Michael's parish in Centralville, and will no doubt reflect credit on their selection in being sent to such a world renowned institution of learning as is the American college at Rome.

Mr. Bradley is already the recipient of eight gold medals won for excellence in scholarship at school and college. Preparing at St. Michael's college at Manchester, N. H., he has further proved his ability as a student by winning the gold medal in his class for five successive years. At Holy Cross where he went after graduating, he was enrolled in the junior class and again added to his laurels by winning the philosophy medal of the junior year, while last June, at graduation, he won the gold medal for excellence in senior studies. Besides this award, he was victorious in the competition for the Beaven medal with the best essay on "The Right of the Parent to Educate the Child."

Mr. Bradley will continue in his success in the hope of a legion of friends and the wish of his associates.

Mr. O'Brien will accompany Mr. Bradley is also quite well known for his scholarly attainments. Graduating from St. Michael's a year before

BRYAN KEPT BUSY HAD AN ACCIDENT

Democratic Candidate Parseval Airship Buckled in the Air

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—William J. Bryan arrived at the Jersey City terminal of the Philadelphia and Reading road at 2 a. m. from Trenton, N. J., and his special car was immediately taken to the Weehawken terminal of the West Shore road. He leaves for Rochester, N. Y., today.

When Mr. Bryan awoke in his private car, lying in the railroad yards at Weehawken, N. J., this morning, he had an exceedingly busy day in prospect. After the long strain of yesterday when he was almost constantly engaged on his journey, he was nearly an hour after midnight in candidate's tour in which he expects to speak fourteen times the last and most important address of the day to be delivered before the democratic state convention at Rochester.

It will be well after midnight when Mr. Bryan's labors for the day are completed and the night will be spent where another round of receptions and speech-making await him.

The special car bearing Mr. Bryan and his party was attached to a train of the West Shore road leaving Weehawken at 8.45 and his itinerary provided for many brief stops between that place and Rochester. The first scheduled stop was at Cornwall, where his train was due shortly after ten o'clock. Stops also will be made at Newburg, Kingston, Ravenna, South Amherst, St. Johnsville, Little Falls, Utica, Syracuse, Lyons and Rochester. The convention city will be reached about half-past six this evening and it is planned to have the special car attached to a train leaving Rochester at 12.20 a. m. for the return journey to New York.

JOHN W. KERN

COULD NOT ARRANGE TO MEET JOHN T. GRAVES

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Sept. 15.—John W. Kern, the democratic vice presidential candidate last night declined a challenge made here by John Temple Graves, the independence candidate, to join him in a joint discussion in Louisville, Ky., tonight.

Mr. Kern sent this message: "Hon. John Temple Graves, Chattanooga, Tenn. 'My engagement for tomorrow afternoon for non-partisan address. Cannot be in Louisville at night.'"

Registration to Date

The registration for the nominations which closed Saturday evening shows a lively interest in politics. The number registered this year was 275 as against less than 200 last year.

Another Nominee for Health Board

Mayor Farnham has promised that in the event of the board of aldermen failing to confirm his appointment of Dr. Jones to the board of health, that he will send to the board the name of Dr. Frank O'Sullivan. Dr. Jones, however, will be given one more try.

AEON IS MISSING FOUND NOT GUILTY

Nothing Was Seen of the Steamer

HONOLULU, Sept. 15.—The British steamer Aeon which arrived here yesterday from Brisbane, Australia, reports that nothing was seen of the steamer Aeon despite the fact that a sharp lookout was kept throughout the entire trip.

The Aeon sailed from San Francisco July 28, 17 days ago, and as nothing has been heard from the vessel since sailing the gravest fears for its safety are entertained. Insurance today is quoted at 55 per cent.

BRONZE STATUE

To General Banks Was Dedicated

BOSTON, Sept. 15.—For the purpose of commemorating Maj. Gen. Nathaniel P. Banks, elaborate arrangements had been made for the dedication and unveiling today of the bronze statue of the general, recently erected on the state house grounds. All the living descendants of Gen. Banks, familiarly known as the "Bobbin boy general," were participants or spectators in today's proceedings. Rev. Paul Stealing of Melrose, his son-in-law, had been chosen to pronounce the invocation, and the general's grandson, Paul Sterling, Jr., being selected to pull the string which caused the work of artist Henry H. Kitson to be exposed. Gen. Banks' son and daughter, Joseph G. and Mand Banks and Mrs. Paul Sterling, were also present. In addition to a large representation of the officers, who had served with the general during the Civil war, there were present delegations from various patriotic societies.

Acting Gov. Eben S. Draper was the official representative of the commonwealth of Massachusetts, accepting the statue in his behalf from Seward W. Jones. The memorial exercises had been arranged to be held in the hall of the house of representatives, and Herbert Parker, former attorney general of Lancaster, was the chosen orator.

POLITICAL NOTES

Here's an interesting item for Capt. Joe Thompson. While the latter's term is by no means near its expiration, the candidates for the position are already named. William Trull Sheppard and Clinton Tuttle. That's going some.

James P. Griffin of Fayette street is prominently mentioned as a candidate for the common council in ward five. Mr. Griffin's friends urged him to wait until this year and will now go out for the nomination. He is a popular member of the Y. M. C. I. and the Eagles.

ASSAULT CASE

Was Continued Until Next Monday

The case of Albert Rivet, charged with assault and battery on Malcolm J. Lafrance, was continued till next Monday, owing to the fact that the complainant was unable to appear.

James Dacey, who was arrested last Friday for drunkenness on complaint of his wife, was placed in the hands of the probation officer.

Louis Lambert, a parole man from the state farm, will be returned to that institution.

Four first offenders were released without appearing in court.

Evaded Car Fare

Walter A. Sullivan, a porter, giving his residence as Somerville, was arraigned in police court this morning on complaints charging him with evading car fare on the Boston and Maine railroad.

Sullivan, while in an intoxicated condition, boarded the train in Boston. When the conductor came around to collect the fares he found that he was on the wrong train and refused to pay his fare to the conductor. When Lowell was reached the conductor turned Sullivan over to Patrolman Frank Donovan.

A representative of the Boston & Maine was in court and informed Judge Hadley that he thought that Mr. Sullivan did not intend to evade car fare and did not care to press the charge.

The case against Sullivan was placed on file.

The case of Joseph Choquette, charged with cruelly driving a horse, was continued till next Wednesday.

Withdraw Appeal

Susan Marren, who yesterday was sentenced to three months in jail and appealed, was in court this morning and withdrew her appeal.

Proprietor of St. Charles Hotel Was Acquitted in Court Today

The case of Hugh E. Melton, proprietor of the St. Charles hotel, charged with illegally keeping liquor, was heard in police court this morning, and after the testimony had been concluded, Judge Hadley found Mr. Melton not guilty and ordered his discharge.

Sergeant Thomas B. Atkinson of the liquor squad testified that at 12.30 on the morning of Sunday, Aug. 22, according to Officer Philip Dwyer, he visited the St. Charles in Middlesex street. Witnesses went on to testify as to the location of the bar, the office on the left of the main entrance, a baggage room in the rear of the office and also a private dining room which leads from the baggage room.

Continuing with his testimony, witness said: "Officer Dwyer and myself were across the street from the hotel on the morning in question. I saw a man go into the hotel door and he was admitted. He walked into the baggage room, followed by the night clerk. Both came out in a few minutes, and the strange man came out into the street."

"At 12.30 o'clock five men approached the door and were admitted. Three of them took seats in the office. They sat there for a few minutes when the proprietor approached the window and, putting his hand between his eyes and the past light, turned his head in the direction of the baggage room, and then looked in the opposite direction, and pretty soon the night clerk did the same. The night clerk then put his hand up and turned the gas down low."

"The night clerk went to the back of the hotel office, followed by the three men who had been sitting in the office. All four went into the baggage room."

"We then crossed the street and went to the door of the hotel. The proprietor was standing in the office. He turned toward the rear of the hotel office and then walked toward the front door and let us in. We went in through the office toward the baggage room. In the baggage room we found an ice chest. There was a padlock on it and the lock was swinging when we passed through. We then proceeded to the private dining room. I struck a man standing beside me. One had a glass of beer in his hand which he set on the floor."

"Officer Dwyer went to the back part of the room and there were four men there, one of them being the night clerk."

"I called the proprietor and said 'What are these men doing here?' and he said that they must have come in before eleven o'clock to see Frank, the night clerk. I asked him what he had in the ice chest. He said that he thought there was a little beer there. I asked to see it and he said 'Have you got the keys, Frank?' Frank went into the corridor and was gone about five minutes when he came back and gave the proprietor a bunch of keys and the latter opened the lock."

"In the chest were 21 bottles of ale and 13 bottles of beer. There were 10 empty beer bottles in a case. There were about a dozen caps off beer bottles on the floor."

"I asked the proprietor why he kept the beer in the chest, and he said it was for the roomers. I said 'You don't supply guests after the bar is closed.' He said 'No,' and added that it was handled in the ice chest."

"The proprietor then turned to me and said, 'I hope you won't make any trouble for me this time for it will be bad for me. This is what I get for depending on the help.'"

"On the morning of the 28th of August at about 10.05 o'clock, I went into the baggage room and found the night clerk there. On a movable counter were three empty beer bottles and a broken beer bottle. There were three glasses with beer in them on a shelf."

Cross-Examination

On cross-examination Sergeant Atkinson said that on several occasions when he had visited the hotel he had seen a number of empty cases in the room. He also acknowledged that he knew four of the men found in the hotel on the morning of the 20th. Three of them were bartenders at the St. Charles and the fourth was a helper in the Franklin.

Officer Dwyer

Officer Dwyer corroborated the testimony offered by the previous witness, and added that he saw one of the men pick up the bottle and found that it was freshly emptied.

The government rested its case at this point.

The Defense

Edward T. Norton, a clerk at the Franklin, was the first witness. He said that two other bartenders and a helper at the Franklin left the latter place at five minutes before midnight and they stood in front of the Nicholas hotel discussing a proposed trip to Salisbury beach. They then decided to go to the St. Charles hotel to see if Frank Santry, the night clerk, could accompany them on the trip.

Accordingly they went down to the front office, where Santry ordered the men into the baggage room in order that he might have a chance to wash the floor.

Witness said that they were no sooner in the room than both officers entered. He said that neither he nor any other member of the party needed for or received any beer or liquor in the St. Charles on that night.

Brown's Story

William J. Brown, a bartender at the Franklin in Middlesex street, corroborated the testimony offered by the previous witness. He said that it was the intention of the party to stop at the Nicholas hotel that night, or rather the bartender at that hotel, in order that they could get an extra start that morning. Witness said that the dining room was so dark that he had proceeded, but a few feet in the room when he ran up against a chest of trunks and refused to go any farther, and the men went higher.

Mr. Brown acknowledged that once in a while when a bartender or helper off he is up to go around and visit the saloons. He said that the appearance of the officers put a damper on the proposed trip to the beach, but that he made the trip.

William J. Ford, also a bartender at the Franklin, was called, and testified upon the same line as did the two previous witnesses.

SUPT. R. J. THOMAS

Talks of Water Pressure on Andover St.

Supt. Thomas of the water department says there isn't any real cause for alarm relative to the water supply for fire purposes in that part of Belvidere where the hydrants were tested yesterday. He maintains that there is water enough and force enough behind it to cope with the ordinary fire.

He calls attention to the fact, however, that the high water system was intended originally for domestic use and not for fire purposes. The high service is a baby service and applies only to parts of Belvidere and Centralville.

The first pressure shown when the hydrants were turned on yesterday was about 80 pounds, greater pressure than is found in the center of the city. Mr. Thomas admits that a pressure was not maintained but that a pressure was maintained sufficiently strong to cope with the ordinary fire and says there isn't any reason why insurance rates should be affected by the water service in that particular district.

Mr. Thomas called attention to the fact that there are points in the High-lam where the pressure is down as low as 25 pounds. At a point almost opposite the Highland club the pressure is only 21 pounds.

Mr. Thomas, however, is in favor of larger pipes in the Belvidere district in question, not altogether because of water for fire service but more especially because the water would be better and because the high service system, a big pressure in small pipes flats the sediment and makes the water dirty. The change in the size of pipe as suggested for Belvidere would mean at least one mile of new pipe and Mr. Thomas said today that the department was in a position to make the change at this time.

WOMAN ARRESTED

She Is Charged With Stealing Dead Girl's Clothes

NEWTON, Sept. 15.—Charged with stealing the clothes of a girl who in new dead and who had been her patient, Miss Mary Blumie, aged 31, of 31 Crawford street, Roxbury, was arraigned in the police court here today. She was fined $20 and given 10 days to pay.

The 32-year-old woman employed to nurse the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Moore of South Norwood, near Boston, who was ill for several days, and who died last Friday. After the death of the daughter, Miss Blumie left the house and at the time of her departure several articles of clothing were missed. Miss Blumie was arrested by inspectors Fletcher and O'Halloran on the charge of having taken the missing clothing.

THE MAINE ELECTION.

The returns from the Maine election, if they indicate anything, show that the democrats will sweep the country. The slump in Maine is more discouraging than that of Vermont, for it came in spite of the organized efforts of the party leaders to prevent any such result. The republican press will attribute the slump to republican apathy. That will do as well as anything else, for General Apathy is a powerful factor in politics.

SHEDDING CROCODILE TEARS.

The republican press seems to have great sympathy for the democratic party in its inability to sidetrack Bryan for some better man. It would be well for these papers to remember that charity begins at home and that the republican party with a candidate pushed upon it by the president needs all their sympathy and will need also their most earnest support. But even that in our opinion will not avert a political landslide. We would advise the republican papers to reserve all their sympathy for the leaders and candidates of their own party likely soon to be found bewailing the bitterness of defeat.

WILL SOON HAVE AUTOS.

The time is at hand when our police department, as Commissioner Boulger says, must have an automobile. Having an auto, the department must also have a chauffeur, and mayhap a mechanician.

These will come high, but in the march of events we must have them. What is true of the police department in this respect is equally true of the fire department. The auto fire truck is becoming popular on account of its speed and its efficacy in raising long ladders.

The one great obstacle to the use of motor vehicles in the police and fire departments is, that they cannot be safely used in time of frost and snow. In both cases, therefore, the autos would be useless to a large extent in the winter.

THE LATE DR. HARRINGTON.

The late Dr. Harrington of the state board of health was a man of very broad and very positive views upon matters concerning the public health. He saw that the public was being imposed upon by the use of poisonous adulterants in food, and he insisted that the people should know where these adulterants are used. Then if they still persist in using the material so preserved they can blame only themselves.

With this view in mind Dr. Harrington instituted a successful crusade against the use of salicylic acid as a preservative, and formaldehyde he put under the ban with equal vigor. As a result it is difficult today to find either of these preservatives used without having a label announcing the fact in legible form.

Dr. Harrington enlarged the scope of the work done by the health department of the state. He was a great authority upon hygiene and all kindred matters and as a result of his work great progress has been made in this direction.

In his death the state has sustained a serious loss, as men of the Dr. Harrington type make their appearance but seldom. He eschewed notoriety; he loved the profession of which he was an ornament; and he abhorred the medical faker.

GREAT VICTORY FOR THE COAL ROADS.

The declaration by the supreme court that the commodity clause of the Hepburn act is unconstitutional is a great victory for the railroad companies engaged in the coal business. It had been decided that a company interested in coal mining had no right to give lower rates and better facilities to the mining companies which it controlled than to others.

That being so the framers of the Hepburn bill introduced a clause providing that no railroad should transport any material in which it was itself interested with the single exception of lumber.

This was a roundabout way at best to stop the railroads mining coal. It might have been done on the ground that it is opposed to public policy to have railroads in the coal business or mining companies in the railroad business.

While the commodity clause had a different scope, if enforced it would have prevented the coal roads from handling their own coal and would, therefore, have forced them to keep to one line of business.

The commodity clause has been decided to be unconstitutional by the circuit court of appeals in Philadelphia, because it would deprive the companies of their property without due process of law; because it invades the rights of the states, and because it provides an unwarranted centralization of power.

Some other method must now be devised to divorce the railroads from the business of coal mining. They have preempted about three-fourths of the anthracite lands in the country, and by running both lines of business, conjointly they can take advantage of the public without detection. If their rates are regulated they can put up the price of coal to the consumer so that it is very difficult to secure fair play to the public in freight rates, in price of coal and general service where the railroads are allowed to do a coal mining business.

The railroads have won a great victory in this decision, and they look to the supreme court to confirm it in every particular. The fight must be taken up on new lines.

SEEN AND HEARD

John Delaney, the tailor, says that the best way to make a pair of pants is to make the coat and vest first.

Persons who break up camp and get back to the city on or about the first of September lose the two best camping months of the year, September and October. Unless they take the spark of life is dying out entirely, to wake up beneath the pines one of these fine September mornings is enough to awaken the gladness in the heart of any man. Even a bad case of hay fever is not powerful enough to wet-blanket one's happiness after one has filled one's lungs with the ozone of the pines. Even the fall caw of the crow is music to the ear when the heart is glad.

THE DISSATISFIED BOY

It was a Discontented Boy Who lay upon the lawn, And grieved because vacation days, With all their pleasant sports and plays, Too soon, alas! were gone.

Some sparrows near him hopped around, And, as he watched, the boy became Filled with an envy most profound. Because the birds were free from rules And never even heard of schools; And, sitting by, I overheard This boy wish he was "just a bird."

Scarce had the words been said—alas!—When, swift as lightning, from the grass Puss bounded, and one cruel blow Laid one poor chirping sparrow low. Then said the Discontented Boy: "I really never thought of that—Ah, well! I wish I was a cat."

Just then a dog of monstrous size Came up the street—the cat he spied; Springs for her, and half dead with fright Puss drops her prey and takes to flight. Then said the Discontented Boy: "Instead of either bird or cat, I'd like to be a dog like that."

But even as he spoke, a man Seized on the dog, and in a van Thrust the unhappy hound. "Where will you take him?" said the boy.

The man said: "To the pound; And if nobody comes for him, Tomorrow he'll be drowned."

"Ouch," said the Boy. "I'm very sure I shouldn't fancy that; Nor being pounced on, like a bird, Nor worried like the cat. It seems, somehow, that everything Has sorrow mixed with joy; So after all, I guess that I Would rather be a boy."

EDITORIAL COMMENT

DR. HARRINGTON'S WORTH

Boston Herald: Following boldly the plain path of duty, Dr. Harrington benefited the city and the state. Working thus without thought of self, he won a fame that was national. His career is a proof of the statement, so often doubted in these days, that there are true and competent servants in public office; that the work of these servants is appreciated so that a standard is set up by which others will inevitably be judged. The career of Dr. Harrington must be for years to come in this city an incentive to all that would, according to their opportunity and ability, contribute to the common weal.

LOOKS LIKE THE LAST STRAW

New Bedford Times: President Roosevelt's term does not expire until the fourth of next March. But he is quoted as saying: "My main interest at present is in getting Taft elected. When that is done I'll be through with my job as president. Then I'll turn my attention to Africa."

"Getting Mr. Taft elected" has been the uppermost thought in the brain of Pres. Roosevelt for several months, and that is about all he will think of until Nov. 2.

"Getting Mr. Taft elected" is not the duty of the president. He has no right to give one thought to the election of his successor—and even if he has that right, he has no business to throw his official influence for or against any of the seven presidential candidates.

As president of this great country, Theodore Roosevelt has no right to dictate to the American people one thought or one suggestion as to his successor—no right to even insinuate that he would like to see So-and-So elected.

It is not his business to take any part in the presidential campaign.

And what do we see?

We see President Roosevelt using all the power of his high office to control republican canines in the various states.

We see President Roosevelt marshaling his army of federal officeholders to support a certain man in the republican national convention.

ALIENIST AGAINST EXPERTS

Philadelphia Public Ledger: When a distinguished alienist launches the effective weapon of ridicule against the "unwritten law" and "emotional insanity" some good effect on public opinion ought to follow. It is an almost invariable rule that emotional crime lessens rapidly as public opinion stiffens itself and gathers strictness. Even genuine insanity has its kind of wisdom in avoiding a community punishment and rebuke. Lynching, husbands' revenges and personal feuds cannot outlive an educated public opinion. Just and certain administration of the law is one of the first necessities, and one of the surest indices of an advanced society. Alienists, too often ready to grasp notoriously and professionally prone to hunt for a degree of public laxity in dealing with certain classes of criminals. Dr. Hamilton's satire helps to restore the balance of credit to his profession.

PEOPLE OF NOTE

Moses Zangwill, whose death in Jerusalem recently occurred, was the father of Israel, Mark and Louis Zangwill. He was born in Russia, but when he was 16 years old went to England. About 10 years ago he gave up his home in England and went to Jerusalem, where he joined the colony of pious Jews who devote their lives to prayer and the study of the ancient law. His biographer says that during his whole career in England he at no time possessed means which would have been sufficient to satisfy the requirements of the present alienist act. As the father of Israel Zangwill he was a conspicuous figure in the Jerusalem colony, where Jacob H. Schiff, the New York banker, visited him recently. He died at the Bikur Cholim hospital, where a Moses Zangwill bed will be founded by his sons.

The Hawaii Territorial College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts will start instruction, and President Gilmore, who goes to the institution from Cornell university, has with him upward of thirty professors in various branches. The new college is supported both by the territory and by the federal government, being on exactly the same footing as the schools of similar name in each of the states and territories of the Union, which under an act of congress of this year drawing $25,000 for maintenance, the sum to be increased by $500 each succeeding year until a maximum of $50,000 a year is reached. Hawaii's college will this year be in temporary quarters, but a site has already been secured for the permanent location, and it is expected that by next year a portion at least of the new buildings will have been completed.

The domesticated Lapland reindeer, introduced into northern Newfoundland at the end of last year by Dr. Grenfell of the British Deep Sea Mission, have passed through their first and most trying winter successfully. According to Fur News, all are reported strong and lusty. The one mischance was an attack on some of them by the savage dogs owned by the settlers. One stag was seriously maimed, but Dr. Grenfell continued to patch up his wounds and the beast is now right again. One other difficulty has been overcome. The Lapps herdsmen are gradually learning English, and are now able to make themselves understood. The Lapps have also shown the natives how to get over the snow and ice with ski.

R. C. Andrews of New York, representing the American Museum of Natural History, has left for home after a stay of three months on the west coast of Vancouver Island, where he engaged in the study of whale life, making many trips to the feeding grounds and the whaling stations at Sechart and Kyquut. He obtained an interesting collection of photographs showing the whale feeding, sleeping, romping and being taken by the harpoon. Mr. Andrews' mission was to add to the store of knowledge concerning the habits of the whale and to ascertain if there exists any marked difference between the whales of the Atlantic and Pacific waters. Up to the present there has been little available information as to the whale life of the Pacific. The whales of the Atlantic had been the subject of careful measure. Mr. Andrews has made careful measurements of many specimens and will make comparisons with recorded measurements of specimens on the Atlantic side. At present it is not apparent that any material difference exists.

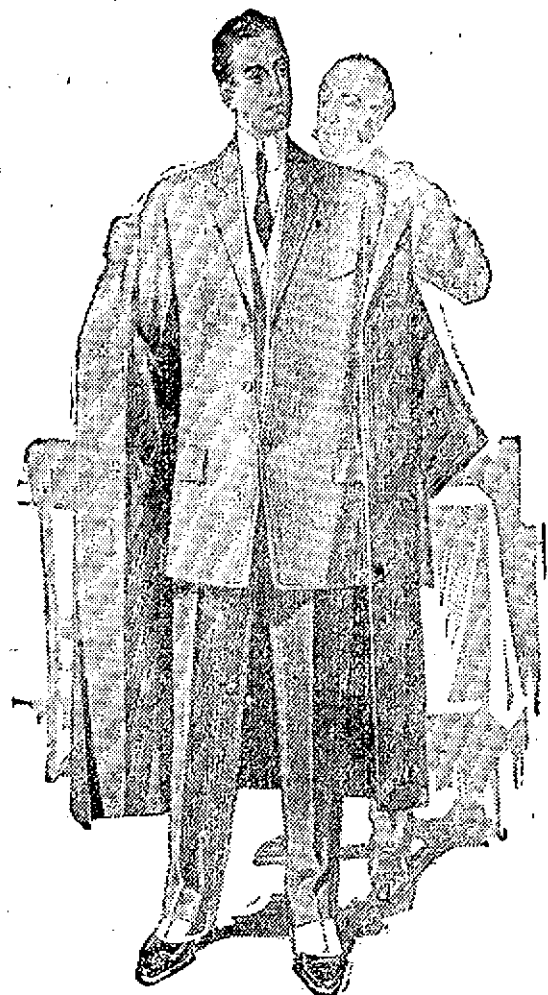

Gardner Dexter Hixcox, well known as a writer on scientific subjects, died on Sunday at his residence, 374 Springfield avenue, East Orange, after a short illness. He was born in Elizabethtown, N. Y., eighty-six years ago and although without college training had devoted his life to scientific and technical work. He was best known as the author of "Commonsense Air and Its Application," "Modern Steam Engineering," and "Hydraulic Engineering." After teaching school for a time in his early years he became interested in scientific ventilation and with prominent contractors of the time experimented in the rural system of heating and ventilating, in which he became an authority. He lived in Brooklyn for many years, but five years ago moved to East Orange. His wife, three sons and a daughter, survive him. He was a member of the American Astronomical Society.

Mrs. Andrew Reasoner, widow of the former superintendent of the Morris and Essex division of the Lackawanna Railroad, died on Sunday night at her residence in Arlington avenue, East Orange, of the infirmities due to age. She was 55 years old and survived her husband nine years. Since his death she built at an expense of $10,000 the Andrew Reasoner Memorial Chapel of the Mount Pleasant Presbyterian church in East Orange and gave largely to other churches and charities. Before her marriage in 1844 Mrs. Reasoner was Miss Abby E. Ryxbee of Norwalk, Conn. Her only child died forty years ago. The funeral arrangements were in charge of Gov. John Franklin Fort, and old friend of the family and for many years personal adviser of Mrs. Reasoner.

TROUBLE FEARED WOMAN DROWNED

Because of the Strike at Hender- Body Found in New York---Be- son, Maine longed in Provincetown

HENDERSON, Me., Sept. 16.—The strike of machinists along the lines of the Canadian Pacific railroad which took almost 100 men out of the shops here, threatens to seriously disrupt the peaceful routine of this little town. The railway shop officials have opposed to them here two distinct forces, having no common cause and at any time a riot may result with three different parties taking sides. So serious is the situation regarded that the members of Company P of the second regiment, Maine National Guard have been ordered to be in readiness for a hurry call to Henderson in the event of a serious outbreak between the contending factions.

The arrival of about sixty laborers late last week who were refused work at the shops because they were unskilled has done more to cause trouble than any other factor thus far and it is believed that this element is the one most likely to precipitate trouble. These men have stayed in the town threatening the railroad officials and assuming a hostile attitude toward the strikers and their quarrelsome behavior has already been responsible for the sending here of a force of deputy sheriffs from Dover.

Gov. William T. Cobb already has been urged to order a detachment of Company F to this town for the purpose of maintaining peace and acting as a check upon any attempt at riot but he stated that he did not regard the situation as sufficiently critical to warrant such action on his part.

FOR SCHOOL PUPILS

Postmaster Wants Them Instructed in Addressing Letters

In order that the number of letters which reach the dead letter office from mistakes in addresses may be reduced, Postmaster-General Meyer has issued a circular letter to the postmasters of the United States directing them to confer with the school authorities as to the practicability of delivering to school children short talks on how to address letters, and describing the scope of the postal service, the system of handling and delivering mails, the classification of mail matter and the registration and money order systems.

Supt. Whitcomb said, this forenoon, that he had not heard from Postmaster Thompson and the latter said he had not as yet received the circular from the postmaster-general.

Supt. Whitcomb, however, is in favor of the proposition. He thinks it would be a good thing and will be pleased to co-operate with the postal authorities in the matter.

The schools in Boston have been furnishing instruction, from the lower grades up, on the matter of addressing letters properly. That has been part of the regular course for years.

Regarding instruction in the other branches of the postal service, it has been suggested that the most satisfactory way for the postoffice department to act in the matter would be to issue a book written for the purpose of being used for instruction.

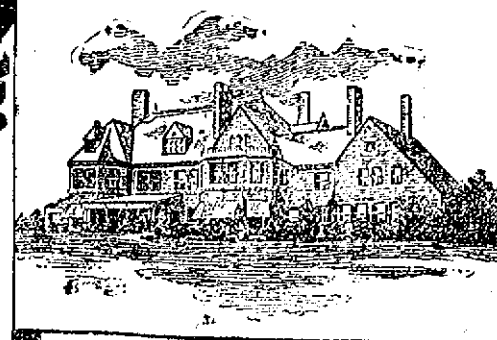

During the last year the postoffice reports show that 13,145,172 pieces of mail matter were sent to the dead letter office. The total number of pupils enrolled in the United States is about 17,000,000.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC

Charles E. Blaney's great melodrama, taken from real life, "The Factory Girl" is making a big hit at the Academy of Music this week where it is being given a most admirable presentation by the Deshon-Pitt Stock company with Miss Della Deshon in the title role. The play abounding in heart interest and strongly dramatic in parts has also a fine vein of clean humor running through it, which is finely brought out by Miss Benson and Mr. Mackaye. The play is superbly staged, and the third act, the interior of the factory, is one of the most realistic interior scenes ever presented in a popular priced theatre. In this act a 1000 volt dynamo is in operation during the act, and makes a profound impression. The voting contest for the most popular girl is going along fast and the number of ballots deposited is steadily growing. The ballots will be found on the program, and the winner will receive a beautiful gold watch. On Friday evening the amateurs will appear at the conclusion of the regular performance.

Several specialties are given between the acts. One of the best is the act given by the Brothers Chahin, noted French jugglers and acrobats. Fred Walsh and Miss Turner also appear to advantage during the performances. "Divorçons" will be given this afternoon and tonight the bill will be "Why Women Tempt Men."

EMPIRE THEATRE CO

The Providence Empire Theatrical company will appear at the Opera House for three nights and two matinees commencing next Monday, Sept. 21. As an initial venture a beautiful pastoral drama has been selected entitled "Sweet Clara," a fragrant, wholesome story, fresh and sweet as the breath of new mown hay, telling a dainty love story of an innocent country girl. No lover of good, clean theatrical entertainment should miss seeing this company, as it seldom occurs that such high class players are seen at a scale of prices ridiculously small in comparison to their merits. The prices for the matinees will be 25 and 35 cents, and at the evening performances 25, 35 and 50 cents.

MICAGLIO'S BAND

There was great commotion among musicians in New York upon the arrival of the famous Giuseppe Micaglio and his international prize winning band at Paris, numbering forty-five selected artists. There was no such thing as shutting them out at Ellis Island, as Signor Micaglio will take his band entire back to Europe immediately after the close of his American tour in January. Nevertheless, there were keen and inquisitorial eyes bent upon Signor Micaglio and his Italian companions in New York, but no composition was offered. Micaglio is said to possess a wonderful repertoire. This magnificent organization will be heard here entire on Thursday, Sept. 24.

HATHAWAY'S THEATRE

Dan Burke and his school girls, featured at Hathaway's this week, are genuine entertainers and their little skit, printed with good music, first class singing and dancing, is pretty from its start to its finish. The quartet of women singers is the best ever heard here, strikingly good being the work of Miss Helen A. Hosen, who was formerly soprano soloist at St. Patrick's church here. Other members of the quartet are Misses Bertha Dann and Mollie and Dagmar Muller. Mr. Burke is a remarkable dancer of the old school. The barefoot dance by the school girls is one of the features of the act.

The remainder of the bill is of the first rank, including Helen Pullman and Edith Shyne, in the sketch with heart throbs, entitled "Plinky and the Dream Lady"; Hucens Trio of instrumentalists; Paulon, Golbe and Lee, character comedians; Billy Van, minstrel monologist; Lantoni-Lucier company, with Con Conrad as comedian in "The Fool's Errand"; Bert and Rene Vedmar in comedy acrobatics, and the Hathascope.

The scheduled acts will be given every afternoon and evening during the remainder of the week.

WILBUR WRIGHT

Broke European Records at Leman's Today

LEMAN, Sept. 18.—On the field of Avours this morning Wilbur Wright relayed all European records for sustained aeroplane flight. He remained in the air for 39 minutes, and 18 seconds. This gives the Wright brothers the records for both hemispheres.

Mr. Wright circled over the field at an average height of 45 feet. His complete mastery of the aeroplane aroused great enthusiasm from the spectators. It is estimated that he covered 25 miles. Mr. Wright used his old motor which has been causing him so much trouble but which has been completely overhauled. Mr. Wright said he could have remained in the air longer had the gasoline not been exhausted.

HOT AFTER TAFT

Bryan Winds Up Strenuous Day of Campaigning

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 15.—Pouring hot shot into Mr. Taft and the republican party at every point where he stopped, William J. Bryan last night concluded a strenuous day of campaigning. Switching into national politics, he said that the republican standard-bearer promised that there would be no panic, and that Mr. Roosevelt, as Mr. Taft's God-father, promised the same thing. He wanted to know how Mr. Taft could prevent panics when Mr. Roosevelt already had one on his hands.

Mr. Bryan's reception in New Jersey was a demonstrative one. At Washington park he addressed 20,000 persons. A statement by him that his nomination for a third time after two defeats and with no president to help him with his patronage was due to the growth of the ideas for which he stood, provoked the wildest enthusiasm. His every utterance almost, was directed at Mr. Taft.

SPANISH QUEEN

Won the Empire State $10,000 Purse at Syracuse

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 15.—Spanish Queen won the Empire State $10,000 purse yesterday after one of the most stubbornly fought five heat battles of the season, over the fastest course that the grand circuit horses have raced on this year. Eleven good horses paraded for the word in the rich classic, but when the race was concluded honors were given to the fast daughter of Duward Silver and the champion four-year-old trotter of the year, Aquila of the Bingen tribe, for the Boston horse fought every heat to the wire, and after showing the way in the first two heats, he came back game and was beaten in the third heat by only inches.

After some tedious scoring the big field got away well bunched, and at the eighth Aquila had the rail. Spanish Queen went to a long break and the Boston colt, carrying Dewitt to a break 20 feet from the wire, was eased up. A serious accident was barely averted at the far turn in the opening heat, as a local mare, May New, racing well to the front, went to a standards break and caused havoc among the closely bunched trailers. Passenger Charms's sulky was cut down, but cool work saved a bad smash.

In the second heat Aquila raced off in front four or five lengths, the Spanish Queen getting around the big field at the half, could not get within striking distance of the great colt, who stepped to a new record, which is the best for a four-year-old trotter this year.

The two high class trotters clinched from the word in the third heat, and racing like a pair, they reached the quarter in 29 1/2 seconds and stopped the second quarter in 59 1/2 seconds. Matching stride for stride, they raced around the last turn and were on even terms at the head of the stretch. A hand-to-hand fight from the wire Spanish Queen was a head and shoulders in front, and in that way they finished past the wire in the fastest heat of the race.

With defeat staring him in the face the game Boston colt fought stubbornly for the lead throughout the next two miles, but the Deaver mare was a true fighter, and the two and won by a narrow margin.

The unbeaten Hollowed Boy paid a remarkable race yesterday, stepping the second heat of the 200 race in 2:07 1/2, and being in such a comfortable position that there is still no line on his true ability. Going away in the first heat, the big horse went to a perfect break, and Gallagher stepped off in front, with Paron Gattien at his wheel and Repechless, racing in the laps for the first time, a length back.

With pishious unchained they reached the three-quarter pole, where Spanish pulled the 197 Champion of Commerce winner wide, and in a burning finish beat General Horse by half a length.

It was all Hollowed Boy after that, although Repechless made the play, to head for at the wire.

Allen Winder, winner of the big Realville Handicap race, had a rest time in getting the big end of the race in the 218 trot, for neither the Northern nor Kid McGregg could exceed him.

When they got the word in the first heat, Compo's back strap broke, and he started to run away. He jumped sideways into McDonald's sulky, crashing him into McCarthy, but both got away without damage. Compo ran to the turn, where Mr. Lasell stopped him sufficiently to let McHenry catch the horse by the rein, and another accident was averted which bid fair to be serious.

Fletcher D. Proctor of Vermont, Governor Rollins S. Woodruff of Connecticut, Lieut.-Governor Ralph C. Walrus of Rhode Island, Lieut.-Governor Eben S. Draper of Massachusetts, Sen. Winthrop Murray Crane of Massachusetts, ex-Governor John L. Bates of Massachusetts, Postmaster-General George Von L. Meyer, Lieut. U. S. Grant, 3d, Irving Garfield, son of President Garfield, and John Hays Hammond of Massachusetts breakfasted at a local hotel. Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge sent word that he was ill at Martha's Vineyard and Gov. Curtis Guild was unable to be present because of his recent illness.

After breakfast automobiles were taken for the Point of Pines. When the 15,000 visitors had at last reached the Point, two big steers, two young pigs and a pair of lambs were hung over the fire, which had been burning since midnight Monday. They were finely roasted and were then served to the waiting republicans and their friends.

Lieut.-Governor Draper was the first speaker of the day. He dwelt at length on the principles of the republican party. He said that here in Massachusetts a lot of hard work was required. "Don't be too sure of victory," he said. "Get off your coats, republicans, and work."

Secretary Wilson of the department of agriculture was next heard and he was followed by Senator Borah.

REV. FR. ROUSSEAU

Prefect at Holy Cross College Has Appendicitis

WORCESTER, Sept. 15.—Rev. Fr. Fernand Rousseau, S. J., prefect of discipline at Holy Cross college, was taken to St. Vincent hospital yesterday, suffering from an attack of appendicitis in aggravated form.

He was operated on as soon as he arrived at the hospital and it is reported the chances are much against his recovery.

WATER BOARD MET

Discussed the Effect of Watering Car Work

At a meeting of the water board, held last night, the question of the dirty condition of city water in certain sections of the city was discussed, and Supt. Thomas said that the rolled condition of the water was due to the use of certain hydrants for the filling of water carts and the big street car sprinkler. He said that the matter could be easily remedied if the street department would provide hydrants for the filling of the carts. This would prevent the water from getting back in the mains and stirring up the extraneous matter.

The board transacted general routine business, and the question of low pressure in the mains in Helybore was discussed.

IN FORGE VILLAGE

Man Wanted to Kill His Sweetheart

What might have proved to be a tragedy was narrowly averted yesterday afternoon, but it was a long time before the residents of the town who heard of the affair were able to compose themselves.

It seems that Michael Mattox, a resident of the village, went to make a call on a girl who resides with Mr. and Mrs. Socha, but he was denied admission. He went away but later returned with a large butcher knife and demanded admission, but he changed his mind very quickly when he saw a revolver pointed at him in the hands of Mrs. Socha. Just then Officer Walter Precious appeared on the scene. The disturber had disappeared, however.

WAGE REDUCTION

AT THE WHITINSVILLE COTTON MILLS IS ANNOUNCED

WHITINSVILLE, Sept. 15.—Notice posted at the Whitinsville cotton mills and at the Linwood mills at Linwood village announce a reduction in wages on Monday next, and an increase in the running time from 40 hours to 50 hours weekly. The cut will probably average 10 per cent.

The notices will also affect the North Uxbridge manufacturing company's mills at North Uxbridge and the Saunders mills at Saundersville. All four concerns are the last of the cotton manufacturers in the Blackstone valley to make a wage reduction; the others did so some time ago. About 1000 persons will be affected.

NORTH BILLERICA

The fire department of Billerica Centre was called out Sunday afternoon to extinguish a fire which burned over land owned by Mr. Simmons of Billerica. About 45,000 feet of lumber was destroyed. The loss will be about $6000.

Annual Football Season Approaches

Outlook at Many Big Colleges Is Bright -- Elberfeld as Manager.
Burns' Shrewdness -- Baseball at Night

WITH baseball nearing the final stages of the great season of 1908, attention of the lovers of athletics will shortly turn to the gridiron. From all sections of the country come reports of the increased interest in football and predictions that the season of 1908 will be one of the greatest the game has ever enjoyed. The old timers who have played on the teams and those who have football ambitions have already begun to condition themselves for the annual fall grind. Although the conference teams are not allowed by the conference rule to begin practicing before Sept. 20, many of the players are learning the knack of throwing and have been kicking the ball and going on little jogs every day to harden their muscles so that they will be ready to take up hard work when the official practice day arrives. This year's changes in the rules will make accurate handling and passing of the ball of unusual importance. The sticky nature of the game has been done away with by the adoption of the changes. It is absolutely necessary to have the man who will receive the for-

LEACH CROSS.

TOMMY MURPHY.

TOMMY MURPHY DELIVERING NEW BLOW HE INVENTED.

Tommy Murphy of New York, better known as the Prize of Harlem, is a fighter who has a brain and who uses it. A specialty of his is the study and trial of new blows and variations, and occasionally he makes a discovery of more than usual value. The accompanying photo shows Murphy delivering against Leach Cross a new blow that is as useful as the Kid McCoy corkscrew punch, the Fitzsimmons solar plexus wallop, the Tommy Ryan kidney punch. Murphy's blow is delivered with the right hand when at close quarters during fighting. The fist is suddenly jerked upward to the point of the jaw and at the same time the body is given an upward lunge to add force to the blow. This blow must be executed very quickly, and it is very disconcerting to an opponent, for he cannot see it coming, as a rule.

WILLIAM A. LARNED, AGAIN WINNER OF NATIONAL LAWN TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIP.

ward pass get out in the open to be free from interference in catching the ball, and this can be done only by careful planning and accurate handling of the play.

This year's football will probably bring out a better exhibition of the new game than ever before, because the coaches realize that they cannot win under the old methods and must learn the possibilities of the new ones. This fact was demonstrated on many occasions last year, and the defeated teams justly can lay their claims of defeat to the coaches who made no effort to give them new plays with which to cope with the varied attacks of their opponents.

Many great games are on the list for this fall, and the east and west will come together in three big battles. Pennsylvania will visit the west and try to duplicate the feat of trimming Michigan, as will the Carlisle

Indians try with Minnesota. Cornell will journey to Chicago and play the maroons on their own stamping ground. This will, in a way, give a comparative line on eastern and western football, but the comparative score in this is a poor way of comparing the two sections of the country.

Elberfeld Won't Do as a Manager.

Norman Elberfeld as manager of the New York Americans will not do. Elberfeld is a ball player of more than ordinary ability, but when it comes to handling a ball team or directing its movements on the field he is several points shy, and this has been proved. One of the greatest requisites of a baseball manager is brains, and the individual who attempts to make good in the position without at least an ordinary amount of gray matter is sure to find himself a failure. The New York team in its present condition is weak, but it is hampered more by Elberfeld's guidance than by the absence of several good players.

A friend of the writer, attended a game in Washington recently between the home team and the Yankees. Elberfeld was shouting orders and abusing his players from a box next to the bench in a most boisterous manner.

His players resented the interference by not heeding his orders. In the eighth inning of the game in question the players openly refused to get on the coaching lines. How many managers would stand for this? Would Jennings, McGraw or Chance? I guess not.

Just how some of the players on the team regard Elberfeld is best shown by the remark one of the team made: "It's great to play ball on this team. We are down in the race and playing under the direction of a crazy man. He thinks he is a manager, but he can't convince any one but himself that he has the first qualification for the place. It's a joke."

Burns a Great Ring Trickster.

We must all doff our hats to Champion Pugilist Tommy Burns as a past master of shrewdness in the prize ring. Recently, in Sydney, Australia, Burns met Bill Squires for the third time. Previous to this Burns had twice clearly demonstrated that he was Squires' master in fistfights.

Their second scrap was held in Paris. In one of the early rounds of the fight Burns fell to the floor, ostensibly from a blow which Squires contrived to deliver. The cable said that the bell saved Burns. Two rounds later Tommy knocked out Bill, but stories of Squires' wonderful showing were quickly sent to Australia. The people in the antipodes were led to believe that Burns escaped defeat by a hair line.

Then Burns had his agents in Australia work up interest for another fight between them, and finally a club offered a purse of $10,000, which was quickly snapped up by Bill and Tommy. In order to give the fight fans a run for their money and knowing that the longer he let the fight go the more cash he would receive from the moving picture concern, Burns permitted Squires to remain until the thirteenth round, when he could have done the trick just as easily in first or second.

ites at night. If the plans work, this is what we may expect to hear in the near future:

"Have you got anything to do to-night, Bill?"

"No."

"Well, let's go out to the ball game. So-and-so is going to pitch. The game doesn't begin till 8 o'clock."

"Will the game be over before midnight?"

"Sure. They're not playing a double header this evening. I'll be pretty chilly, but I guess we won't mind that."

Two Dramatic Successes, One Partial, the Other Complete

[From Our New York Dramatic Correspondent.]

THE dainty little comedy, "Love Watches," which has recently launched winsome Miss Billie Burke into stardom at the Lyceum, has been given a very hearty welcome. There has never been the slightest doubt as to the quality of Miss Burke's personal attractiveness, and now it is equally manifest that she is as clever as she is "agreeable to behold." It must be admitted also that the vehicle which has been chosen for the clever young woman's appearance in the stellar field is singularly attuned to her methods of expression.

It is not a stretch of the imagination to say that "Love Watches" fairly scintillates. The situations are fresh, the lines are unusually bright, and the underlying idea is one that is likely to appeal to those who enjoy a social comedy in which the dialogue is fairly good literature. Most adaptations from foreign languages suffer in the transition, but if "Love Watches" is not as good as the original French play of De Flers and Caillavet there are few who will be the wiser. Miss Gladys Unger has done the work into Anglo-Saxon with commendable skill. Wholesomeness is one of the comedy's best qualities. One does not always look for this in adaptations from the French, but "Love Watches" is as innocuous as it is amusing.

A Simple Story.

"Love Watches" is the species of play which cannot be done justice in the mere telling. The story is exceedingly simple, and it is the treatment that brings out its charm. Jacqueline—played by Miss Burke—is a lovely maiden, a veritable flower of a girl, whose pretty head is full of sentimental ideas. She falls in love at first sight with her cousin, Count Andre de Juveny. This happens one day when he has been thrown from his horse and is sitting forlornly in a mud puddle. Jacqueline tries hard for several months to conceal her passion, but finally gives up trying and tells the count frankly that she is very fond of him.

Andre has been something of a trifter in matters of the heart, but he is touched by his pretty cousin's artlessness and makes up his mind to marry her without delay. When they return from their wedding journey, with Jacqueline still pretty badly gone over her husband and the count now honestly devoted to her, it comes to the ears of the charming little bride that another woman, her cousin Lucie, had once formed an attachment for Andre and that the latter had been interested in her. Right here it is pertinent to record that Lucie's pet name for Andre was Snoodles.

Jacqueline is greatly disturbed over the matter and makes Snoodles promise he will never see Lucie again. That was an exceedingly rash promise, for in less than no time Lucie calls on the newly wed, and it so happens that Andre must see her home. That settles the business. Jacqueline sends word promptly to all the members of her family that she has left her husband and is about to console herself with another man.

This "other man" is Ernest Augarde, an intimate friend of the entire family. He is incapable of treachery, but he has long loved Jacqueline in secret, and the announcement of her arrival at his home sets him all in a flutter. A most amusing scene follows, in which the two children—for that is what they really are—attempt to make themselves believe that they are engaged in a desperate love affair.

Presently the relatives begin to arrive one by one to inquire after Jacqueline, who at the first glimpse of the doorbell conceals herself in another room. When her relatives have all departed, still in ignorance of her whereabouts, she makes the discovery that she continues to love Andre, and after promising Ernest that she will never tell anybody she has been in his house goes back home. Ernest agrees to win back her husband for her.

When Jacqueline arrives at home the first thing she does is to give it all away, even to the name of the man with whom she has been trying to fix up her revenge. The family regards the whole business as a gigantic joke. When Ernest arrives on his mission of reconciliation he finds that Andre is the only one who does not know everything. He tells Andre how Jacqueline went away and spent the entire afternoon in the company of another man. At this shocking revelation Andre is properly heartbroken. At this moment Jacqueline, who has been eavesdropping, bursts into the room and berates Ernest for his cruelty to her husband. All forgetful of her promise, she tells the latter that it is Ernest whom she visited.

At this confession it is Andre's turn to laugh, and he does most heartily. Ernest is not quite sure that things are as funny as they seem, but in time he, too, sees the humor of the situation. At the last he is as inspired by the domestic felicity which settles down on Andre's household that he weds a young woman who has long been devoted to him, and everything turns out as it should.

A Tale of the Rifle.

Not quite such an unqualified success was the recent production at the Hudson theater of George Broadhurst's dramatization of Stewart Edward White's novel entitled "The Conjuror's House." Mr. Broadhurst has renamed it "The Call of the North," and it is emphatically a tale of the rifle. Although it contains several very telling situations and is really quite delightful in spots, it is far too wordy and possibly too artificial in its treatment to escape criticism. Mr. Robert Edson, as Ned Trent, makes the most of his opportunities, and really does some very creditable work, and the acting of the company is vastly superior to the play.

DORIS KEANE, NOW STARRING IN "THE LIKES OF ME," GARRICK THEATER, NEW YORK.

Doris Keane has made great headway in the Frohman forces. Her intelligent work in smaller roles has prompted her managers to put her in the stellar role in a curtain raiser, "The Likes of Me," which precedes "The Mollusc," in which Joseph Coyne has opened at the Garrick theater, New York.

The story of the play is not especially novel or even striking. Ned Trent's father has been killed by orders of Galen Albrecht, superintendent of the trading post at the extreme north of the Hudson bay territory. That happened years before the play begins. Ned Trent is a free trader—practically an outlaw, with a price set for his capture—and he is forever in quest of information concerning his father's murder, bent on vengeance. He is captured by the men whom Albrecht has put on his track and sentenced to be left out on the great tundra alone and weaponless, with stealthy redskins in his wake to make an end of him should he contrive to escape starvation or death from exposure.

In order to secure a rifle he resolves to make love to Albrecht's daughter, and he succeeds, of course—wins the girl and the coveted gun. At that stage of the business he doesn't want the girl, but he has very urgent use for the gun. So he stills his conscience as best he can and lets it go at that. It is quite essential for the purpose of the story that he should be recaptured, and he is. When he is brought before the irate Albrecht in the council chamber and is being tempted to name the person who provided him with the shooting piece Mr. Edson has an opportunity to get in some of the fine work of which he is abundantly capable, and he does.

One of the hits of the play—one, too, which came as a genuine surprise—was made by Miss Beatrice Prentiss as Julie Hargrave, a little French girl who had come to the post for news of her missing father and who, when she learned that he had been murdered, broke out into a paroxysm of grief, rage and defiance of the tyrant that was extremely realistic. Miss Prentiss's effort was so well received that she came perilously near to "running off with the play."

An Influx of Russian Pianists.

According to the announcements already made, we are to have a veritable invasion of Russian pianists the coming season, all of them provided with the customary impossible names and branded by their enthusiastic introducers as the "best ever." Be that as it may, there is at least one Russian piano virtuoso who will always find a warm welcome in this country. Those who had the good fortune to hear Josef Lhevinne play last season will be gratified to learn that he will return this fall and will be heard in the larger cities. Since Rubinstein no Russian pianist has satisfied American lovers of piano playing so well as Lhevinne.

Rhea and Her Fate.
Rhea, an actress of great dramatic power, who mastered the English language that she might play in it, just as Bertha Kalich has done since, died in comparative poverty in France. Norman Hackett, an actor whose home is in Detroit and who left the University of Michigan to become an actor in Rhea's company, started a fund for the purpose of marking in a suitable manner the final resting place of his former star. Fortunately he found that her relatives had cared for the little tomb.

LEADING POWER IN THE WORLD'S STAGE AFFAIRS.

The title of Frohman the Mysterious well applies to the head of the American theater world, who is now a leading factor also in England and the continent. Charles Frohman's person is surrounded by mystery. There is hardly a single photo of him in existence. He hates publicity regarding himself as much as he craves it for his stars. No one knows when he will appear at his offices in New York or London or Paris. No one can tell at what moment "C. F." as his associates term him, will disappear from the haunts of men for an indefinite period. He obeys no man. He determines what to do, and he does it. Millions are his playthings, and the stage of two continents bows to him as its master.

CHARLES FROHMAN.
(From a snapshot taken in the Strand in London.)

LOWELL GAS LIGHT COMPANY

HUGHES RENOMINATED

N. Y. Republicans Select Him as Standard Bearer

SARATOGA, N. Y., Sept. 15.—The republican state ticket:

For governor Charles E. Hughes, of New York (re-nominated). Horace White, of Onondaga.

For secretary of state, Samuel S. Koenig, of New York.

For attorney-general, Edward R. O'Malley, of Erie.

For comptroller, Charles H. Gans, of Albany.

For state engineer and surveyor, Frank M. Williams, of Madison.

For state treasurer, Thomas B. Dunn, of Monroe.

For associate justice of the court of appeals, Albert Haught of Erie (re-nominated).

Charles Evans Hughes of New York, was nominated yesterday by the republican state convention, by an overwhelming majority and on the first ballot to succeed himself as governor of the state of New York. He received 827 votes out of a possible 1000 as against 151 for James W. Wadsworth, Jr., of Livingston county, speaker of the state assembly and 31 for former Congressman John K.

Stewart of Montgomery.

The nomination was made unanimously upon motion of State Committeeman William Barnes, Jr., of Albany, who has been perhaps the bitterest and most outspoken opponent of the governor's renomination, seconded by those who had placed Speaker Wadsworth and Mr. Stewart in nomination.

The governor's renomination followed the failure of a struggle on the part of a number of the county leaders who have spared no efforts to discover a candidate upon whom they could unite to defeat him. The balance of the ticket was made up, as announced by the speaker, by an organization "state" announced an hour or more before the session of the convention began, by Chairman Timothy L. Woodruff of the state committee after a conference of the local leaders. Sen. White, who was chosen as a candidate for lieutenant-governor, was put forth by the governor's friends as the early afternoon, when after a meeting of his delegation he requested his friends not to present his name. The fifteen votes of his county delegation (Onondaga) were cast for Speaker Wadsworth.

It was the 153 votes of all but one district in New York county that carried the governor's total beyond the 595, a majority of the convention, required to nominate.

The nine votes of Nassau county had brought the Hughes total to 595. Amid a breathless hush, in which was incarnate all the intensity of bitterness and suspense which up to that moment had characterized the struggle to prevent the renomination of Hughes, the secretary of the convention called "New York."

Herbert Parsons, president of the New York county republican general committee, rose in his place under the gallery, his slender figure alert and tense with the excitement of the crucial moment, his long features, if possible, more insubstantial than in their wont, his eyes, nevertheless, alight with the consciousness that he was for the moment the custodian of words which would be flashed in a few seconds on waiting wires to far corners of the civilized world, and said:

"New York county, second assembly district, gives forth for Wadsworth; the balance of the county 153 for Charles Evans Hughes."

A thousand pencils in two seconds had fanned the Hughes total to 578; in as many heart beats every person in the great hall knew that the battle was over and the place was instantly a bedlam of cheering.

Hardly less sensational had been the moment when State Chairman Woodruff delivered to Hughes, in spite of a general expectation to the contrary, the entire vote of King's county, 138, bringing the governor's total to 342, for Woodruff had been avowedly opposed to the governor's renomination and even after William Berri, the choice of King's county for the governorship was withdrawn from the race was expected that some, at least the king's county vote, could never be delivered to the Hughes column. In fact, it was really the action of kings which signified what might be called the "stamped" to Hughes, and when its 138 votes were cast in a block for the governor, any remaining doubt of his nomination was swept away.

Orange, the home of ex-Governor Odell, divided its vote, five for Hughes and three for Wadsworth. St. Lawrence, home of Congressman Malby who had been regarded as anti-Hughes, gave the governor its total of 15.

The convention went fairly wild with the first real surprise of the roll call, when Saratoga answered "eleven for Charles E. Hughes," for Saratoga is the famous home of racing, and almost anywhere you go in Saratoga you will be told that election day will show how Saratoga feels on the subject of the race track gambling bill. Few would have believed that Hughes could by anything short of a miracle have received the unbroken total vote of the Saratoga delegation. It was a full minute before order was restored.

The plump face of Sen. James A. Emerson, who voted against the anti-gambling bill and against the removal of Insurance Supt. Kelsey and whose opposition to Gov. Hughes has been almost unrelenting, was very red when, in answer to the call for Warren, he rose in his place in the exact center of the front row and answered, "Six for Charles E. Hughes."

Some minutes were required by the convention secretaries for the checking up of the totals and when Secretary Gleason came forward to announce the result the hall was again a place of suppressed excitement as if every person in the great room held his breath.

"John K. Stewart receives 31, James W. Wadsworth receives 15, Charles E. Hughes receives 827," announced the secretary, and then it was pandemonium.

"I move, Mr. Chairman," said Mr. Barnes, in his somewhat high pitched voice, "that the nomination of Gov. Hughes be made unanimous."

It was a full minute before anything else could be heard or done, and then Frank K. Cook of Livingston, who had nominated Wadsworth, and Judge J. L. Moore of Montgomery, who had nominated Stewart, seconded the motion of Mr. Barnes.

The motion was carried with a deafening shout and Secretary Root announced:

"The unanimous choice of this convention as its nominee for governor is Charles E. Hughes of New York."

It was again some minutes before order could be restored.

So far as the great majority of the people in the hall were concerned, the rest of the business was routine, the work of the day was done. The remainder of the ticket, as agreed upon by the leaders in control of the convention, was generally known. There was an almost continuous murmur and shuffling of feet. It became necessary, even for the chairman, to pound loudly with his gavel, to call attention to the fact that the business of the convention was by no means completed. The remainder of the ticket was then quickly completed, the usual routine resolutions were passed, and at 5:30 p. m. Secretary Root declared the convention adjourned without date.

GOVERNOR HUGHES

Pleased With the Action of the Convention

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 15.—"I am deeply sensible of the honor conferred upon me. I wish to express my appreciation of the confidence reposed in me by the republican party."

Thus did Gov. Hughes make his first public statement after his notification of renomination for governor last evening. Beyond that the governor would say nothing, either as to his running mates on the republican ticket or his policies for the second term, should he be elected.

He gave no reply to a question as to whether he would disregard the republican platform in relation to primary reform.

TO STOP WEDDING

Mother Appeals to the Clergyman

BOSTON, Sept. 15.—The proposed wedding at Hingham today by Miss Sybil Hodges, daughter of the late E. C. Hodges, the banker, to Warren Hunnell Child is likely to result in a decided turmoil if Mrs. Hodges carries out her threats.

Mr. Child is a Harvard man and his father is one of Boston's wealthy men. Miss Hodges is wealthy in her own right, and both young people are very prominent in society.

Mrs. Hodges has been doing all in her power to prevent the wedding, aided by her son.

She has even begged the clergyman not to perform the ceremony.

She has declared that she will use extreme measures to stop it at the last moment.

So far she has failed utterly, and her daughter declares that her mother shall not prevent the marriage.

The wedding, to which fashionable Boston society has looked forward for months, is scheduled to occur in Hingham in the presence of hundreds of Boston society people.

The announcement that Mrs. Hodges is to try and prevent the marriage has caused a tremendous stir.

While Mrs. Hodges says her only reason is her desire to keep her daughter with her, it is said that there is a far deeper reason, which if made public would create a big sensation.

Miss Hodges firmly refuses to call off the church ceremony and will be married in public, taking the risk of her mother appearing at the church to stop it.

None of the young woman's immediate relatives will be at the church, for the feud is bitter.

PAPER INDUSTRY

THROUGHOUT THE COUNTRY TO BE INVESTIGATED

APPLETON, Wis., Sept. 15.—"I am not prepared to state whether or not my endeavors here have added much to the knowledge I already possessed concerning conditions in the paper industry, but feel that the investigation in Wisconsin will surely result in much good," said Chairman James R. Mann of Chicago, of the congressional paper and pulp investigating committee last evening, after holding an all day session at Menasha, during which Augustus Spies, president of the Marinette and Menominee Paper company of Marinette, Wis., and Sen. William Jones of Bangor, Me., testified.

Continuing, Chairman Mann said: "While our committee will investigate the paper industry generally in Wisconsin, we will pay particular attention to the present and probable future supply of pulp wood and its availability in this locality. We will look into the price of wood, paper and labor, hours of labor and combinations."

When asked whether or not he intended calling to the witness stand Henry Dean of Providence, R. I., promoter of the proposed pulp and paper mill syndicate, Mr. Mann replied that he would not say who he intended to call upon to testify.

MOROSINI DEAD THE CITY LIBRARY

Banker a Victim of Some Alterations to Be Made

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—Giovanni P. Morosini, banker and noted philanthropist, died suddenly yesterday of heart disease at his country place, Riverdale, in the upper section of the city. His death was unexpected, although Mr. Morosini had been ill for a year following a fall he had, after which kidney trouble and weakness of the heart developed.

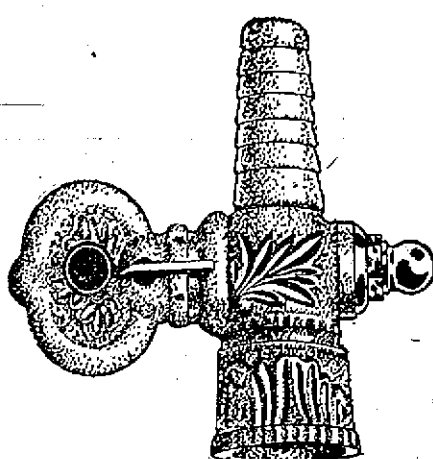

Mr. Morosini, who was 74 years old, is survived by a son and two daughters. His wife died in 1893. Mrs. Victoria Morosini Schilling, his youngest daughter, created a sensation a few years ago by eloping with the family coachman and the aged banker disinherited her. Miss Giulia Morosini, the other daughter, is a noted horsewoman. Ottilio P. Morosini, the son, married Mary Bond, a Virginia belle.

The rise in life of banker Morosini was romantic. He came to this country at the age of 16 years, after having served in the Italian army and the Austrian navy. One day he saw a crowd of boys beating another boy and he rescued the youth. The battered lad proved to be a son of Nathaniel Marsh, secretary of the Erie railroad. Mr. Marsh gave young Morosini a position and his industry and aptitude for figures brought about his rapid advancement until at the time when Jay Gould became associated with the Erie, Morosini was auditor of the road. In this position he earned Mr. Gould's confidence and profited by Mr. Gould's friendship thereafter.

S. & A. Patent Safety Gas Cocks

THE S. & A. SAFETY COCKS prevent the turning of gas keys by mistake and do away with the danger of asphyxiation and gas poisoning. Once the gas is turned off it cannot be turned on again until the spring is released by a pressure of the thumb. Gas cocks of this design would prevent accidents such as befell a resident of Clifford street a few days ago, an account of which appeared in the papers of August 28. He had arisen in the night and on turning off the gas it is thought he accidentally turned it on again. When found he was in a serious condition and was taken to St. John's hospital.

A PRIVATE SCALE ALL WANT WALLER

To be Adopted by the He May Lead Connecti-Artisans cut Democrats

The local branches of the Artisans Canadiens-Francais are dissatisfied with the new graduated scale of fees adopted at the last convention at Montreal, and it is thought the result will be the cutting away by all the local branches from the central sick benefit fund of the society.

The Pawtucketville branch has taken the initiative and organized a private benefit fund of its own, cutting away from the central fund, toward which the members will no longer subscribe. This does not estrange the branch from the society, however, for the members will still retain their death insurance in it.

The following officers have been elected by the Pawtucketville branch to take care of the fund: L. N. Milot, president; Joseph Sawyer, secretary and treasurer; Arthur N. Boudais, Rosaire Tourangeau and Azarie Hamel, auditors.

The scale adopted by the Pawtucket branch is also a graduated one but a lesser amount than for the general fund.

St. Andrew's branch, the oldest branch in the city, and St. Louis' branch will both act upon the matter tomorrow night.

The fees up to the adoption of the graduated scale by the last convention, were 30 cents a month for everybody, young or old. Following the example of nearly every other benevolent society in the country, the adoption of the graduated scale was resolved upon because the society could not meet its obligations at the low rate of membership fees exacted. The new scale, upon approval of the Quebec authorities is expected to be in force by October 1.

This new scale calls for the payment of 30 cents by members 18 years of age with this figure increasing by one cent with every additional year till 32 years, then by two cents for every additional year till 52 years, and finally by five cents with every additional year from 52 to 55 years. The new arrangement makes the fees of a member 35 years of age, 50 cents a month; of a member 45 years of age, 70 cents a month, and of one 55 years of age, $1.00 a month.

CAN LEGALLY WED

Court Decides in Favor of 13-Year-Old Girl

MANCHESTER, N. H., Sept. 16.—Under the law passed at the last session of the legislature, Leon Raymond and Miss Marie Dupuis of this city filed a petition with the probate court here yesterday for permission to marry. The petition says that Miss Dupuis is above the age of 13 and below 18. The court granted it, after a hearing, and the couple will be married at once. It was the second petition of the kind filed in Hillsboro county, and probably in the state.

HAUTFORD, Conn., Sept. 16.—Not a single thing was done overnight, not a conference was held to change the peculiar condition of affairs in which the delegates to the democratic state convention found themselves after the county caucuses last night in the matter of endorsing a candidate for the gubernatorial nomination. Democratic leaders who have been through many a battle, who have seen hours given up to acrimony and bitter debate, expressed themselves amazed with the quiescent attitude of the delegates. They realized that after twelve years of dissension the entire party wants peace and that every element seemingly was willing to join in and help along the peace plan. The delegates last night were demanding that former Governor Waller should lead them in the state fight. They returned to their hotels after the county caucuses and went to bed. There were no gatherings in the hotel corridors, no discussion of the outlook amid wreaths of tobacco smoke. Everything lapsed into a quietness that was unprecedented. This morning the delegates arose and breakfasted and they still wanted Waller. Even in the county delegations which last night tried or did not put themselves on record for second and third choice, the magic word of "Waller" made them forget they had a second choice. Former Senator William Kennedy of Naugatuck early announced that Mr. Waller was coming to the convention. He was not the permanent chairman, however, as the understanding was that he could take a seat on the floor and so be in a position to fight the singular battle, almost single handed of holding the convention in check lest it nominate him against his protests. Mr. Kennedy said to many inquiries that there was not a single democrat in the convention who could prophesy that would be done. The call had been made for Gov. Waller, the call would be made when Gov. Waller appeared and he said that he had been wondering if it were possible for Gov. Waller to stand against it. Mr. Kennedy said that the entire democracy in the state believed Mr. Lilley can be defeated for governor if the right man is put up by the democrats.

GIRL'S FATHER

Fears That She Has Committed Suicide

NORTHAMPTON, Sept. 16.—Bloodhounds will be used in the search for Miss Esther A. Hilbert, the young Philadelphia girl who disappeared Sunday, according to the decision of the girl's father, J. C. Hilbert of Lansdown, a suburb of Philadelphia, who arrived here late yesterday.

An unsuccessful search was made in the woods about this city and in the vicinity of neighboring ponds and streams yesterday and will be continued today.

Think Body is in Woods
Mr. Hilbert said last night that he believed his daughter must have committed suicide and that her body must be somewhere in the woods in the vicinity of Chesterfield, where she had been spending the summer with her mother.

Mr. Hilbert said that he did not believe it was possible for the girl to have walked a mile and a half to the nearest body of water in broad daylight and so far no one has been found who remembers having seen Miss Esther.

Invisible Bifocal Lenses Properly Fitted to the eyes

Sunday after she disappeared in the grove near her mother's summer home. The girl had not been well for some time and her ill-health had interfered with her studying for the entrance examinations for Smith college, which opened today. She was a girl of a cheerful disposition, but it is thought that worry over school or three of her studies, combined with ill health, had temporarily unbalanced her mind.

SENT TO PRISON

Judge Bell is Determined to Stamp Out Crime

BOSTON, Sept. 16.—Taking the same action as did Judge Crosby several weeks ago in an effort to stamp out crime in Greater Boston, Judge Bell of the superior court yesterday sentenced three men to state prison and a fourth to a three-year term at Deer Island. All had been convicted of robbery.

James Brady, who held up and robbed R. Arthur Leeds, a lawyer of this city, several weeks ago, got a 3-year sentence in state prison; George H. Brier, a young man who claimed to be a baker half the night and a second-story worker the remaining hours, was sent to the same institution for a term of not less than five or more than seven years.

Antonio Ballarino was sent to the house of correction for three years. He was convicted on a charge of robbing H. C. Pickering during the Knights of Pythias convention.

William Crotty, who has already served four terms in state prison, was sent back for a term of not less than three or more than five years. Crotty was convicted of stealing a horse. In 1891 he was sentenced to a 25-year term in state prison under the old statute relative to common thieves. He was released after serving 11 years of that sentence.

CLEAR THE COMPLEXION OVER NIGHT

Pimples, Rash, Eruptions, Etc., Quickly Eradicated by New Skin Remedy.

Since its discovery one year ago, postam, the new skin remedy, has, in its extraordinary accomplishments, exceeded the most sanguine expectations of the eminent specialists who gave it to the world. It has cured thousands of cases of eczema and eradicated facial and other disfigurements of years' standing. The terrible itching attendant upon eczema is stopped with the first application, giving proof of its curative properties at the very outset.

In less serious skin affections, such as pimples, rash, herpes, blackheads, acne barbae, etc., results show after an overnight application, only a small quantity being required to effect a cure. Those who use postam for these minor skin troubles can now avail themselves of the special 50-cent package, recently adopted to meet such needs. Both the 50-cent package and the regular $2 jar may now be obtained in Lowell at Falls & Burkinshaw's, Carter & Sherburne's, and other leading drug stores.

Samples for experimental purposes may be had free of charge by writing direct to the Emergency Laboratories, 22 West Twenty-fifth street, New York.

PRESENTED A LOCKET

Miss Annie Wetherall was surprised at her home last evening when a party of her friends called and presented her a beautiful locket. Games were enjoyed during the evening and refreshments were served.

There was also a piano solo by Miss Irene Christian; song, Miss Annie Wetherall; readings, Miss Margaret Dow. Mr. David Goodwin favored his friends with a cornet solo. The party broke up at a late hour. Mr. Romeo Choche made the presentation speech.

All orders promptly delivered free of charge. No goods missing in your order.

LOCKS &amp; CANALS

TO GIVE $1000 FOR PHILANTHROPIC WORTH

The Locks and Canals Co. has voted to give the Middlesex Women's club $1000 to be devoted to district nursing. Clubs in other cities have undertaken such work, and the Locks and Canals company, believing there was need of such work in Lowell, voted to give the club $1000 for the first year's work, the club to assume the responsibility of disbursing the fund.

SHOULDER BROKEN

15-YEAR-OLD BOY FELL FROM A TREE

George Gardner, a 15-year-old boy, while picking walnuts in upper Gorham street near the East Chelmsford line, fell from the tree, a distance of about 14 feet, dislocating his right shoulder yesterday afternoon about 5:30 o'clock. He was taken to his home, 25 Saratoga street, in the ambulance.

DORCHESTER MAN

WAS INJURED BY COLLIDING WITH IRON POST

Ray Stafford, a traveling man residing in Dorchester, struck an iron post over a bulkhead near the corner of Middle and Central streets last night while running after some companions. It was at first thought that he had suffered internal injuries and he was hurried to St. John's hospital in the ambulance. A careful examination by the surgeons there failed to disclose anything more serious than superficial hurts.

REV. DR. DANIEL

Native of Persia Challenges the Mazdaznan LeaderHints That He is a Religious Humbug — Says There is no Such Religion in Persia as Mazdaznan

Rev. Dr. George Daniel, a Persian missionary, has issued a challenge to Rev. Dr. Otoman Zar-Adusht Ha'Nish, leader of the Mazdaznans, and is anxious to meet him in joint debate, in public. Dr. Daniel declares that he is willing to test the "Little Master," and further states that the Mazdaznan cult is unknown in his native country.

The Persian missionary, in conversation with a reporter, said that if Dr. Ha'Nish will let him know within two weeks, that he will meet him at any time. Dr. Daniel has been much interested since coming to this country in the Mazdaznan cult. He first got interested in the cult when he learned that Dr. Ha'Nish represents himself to be a Persian and to teach one of the ancient religions of that country.

"I never heard of it in my life," said Dr. Daniel, in speaking of the cult, "until I came here; and as I am a native of Persia, and only came to this country two years ago; and as I have made a study of religions, I would most certainly have known of the sect, had it existed there."

"We have five worshippers, of course; they are derived from the sun worshippers, who existed before Zoroaster. But there is no such thing as a 'Mazdaznan' religion there."

Dr. Daniel was told that Dr. Ha'Nish claims to belong to a secret society that exists in Persia, that has its origin away back in the beginning of things. A kind of royal society. They were members of this society, who carried away the body of Jesus; and it was they who stood around at his crucifixion, and thrust the spear into his side.

"Let me tell you this," said Dr. Daniel, "there are no secret societies in Persia. There are men there who have joined secret societies in this country; but there are none there. The religion of the Druses is secret, but they are quite different from the sun worshippers or the Mazdaznans. And there is a religion, not a society."

In Persia all religious leaders wear beards, while the "Little Master" is smooth shaven.

Dr. Daniel spoke at the Central M. E. church last night and gave a very interesting talk on Persian religions and customs.

CHANLER THE MAN

New York Democrats to Decide on Him for Governor

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 16.—A night of conferences was followed this morning in the few hours before convention time by the further consideration of the state ticket, which has been drawn for ratification by the delegates to the democratic state convention. When State Chairman W. J. Conners, Charles F. Murphy and Daniel F. Cohalan of Tammany Hall, and National Chairman Mack retired to rest after practically an all-night conference the following state had been agreed upon for presentation at the convention:

Governor—Lewis S. Chanler of Dutchess county.

Lieut. governor—Francis B. Harrison of New York.

Secretary of state—John S. Whalen of Monroe.

Comptroller—Martin H. Glynn of Albany.

Treasurer—Julius Hauser of Suffolk.

All through the night representative delegates urged the candidacy of Mr. Chanler. Thomas F. Conway of Plattsburgh and David Robinson of Elmira, William F. Sherman of New York made an earnest effort to secure the selection of D. Cady Herriek of New York.

Meanwhile Mr. Murphy and the Tammany leaders gave no indication of committing themselves to any man. State Chairman Conners insisted that the majority of the delegates were for Mr. Chanler.

During the conference it became evident to the friends of Mr. Chanler that the Tammany leaders had apparently no candidate of their own and that they were simply seeking to find some candidate stronger than the lieutenant governor. When it was practically decided to place Mr. Chanler at the head of the ticket the rest of the state was quickly drafted and the conference adjourned.

The sub-committee of five of the committee on resolutions having in charge the task of drawing up the state platform, met early today to put the finishing touches on the document.

When the full committee met at 10 o'clock to approve the work of the sub-committee it was found that the platform adhered closely to the lines agreed upon two days ago.

Great preparations are being made to receive W. J. Bryan this evening. County Chairman Mosher expects to have three Bryan meetings tonight. The principal meeting of course, will be at the hall at 8 o'clock tonight when Mr. Bryan will deliver an address on "Mr. Taft and His Successors." Two overflow meetings have been arranged outside of the convention hall. Later there will be a reception for Mr. Bryan, who will leave Rochester shortly after midnight for New York.

At 10:25 a. m. Chairman Conners and Leader Murphy concurred in the announcement of the following slate for the state ticket.

Governor—Lewis Stuyvesant Chanler

INVITED TO TAKE PART IN HAV-VERHILL PARADE

The regular meeting of the Mathew Temperance Institute was held last evening with President John J. Coyne in the chair. Considerable routine business was transacted. The society was honored with the presence of a delegate from the Pr. Mathews of Haverhill extending an invitation to the local society to take part in the grand temperance demonstration of the Essex county union parade to be held in Haverhill on October 19. The invitation was referred to the 10th of October committee. The literary committee has many interesting lectures mapped out for the members during the winter months. The committee in charge of the grand banquet, concert and ball reported that arrangements have been completed for that event and that the members and their lady friends will be entertained with a grand meal lasting from 8 to 9:30 o'clock.

From 9:30 to 10 o'clock an excellent concert program will be enjoyed. Among those who will entertain are the following:

Quartet: Mr. James J. Donnelly, Mr. Martin Maguire, Miss Alice Hagley, Mr. John J. Murray and Charles Curry.

At 10 o'clock dancing will be held until 1 o'clock. The Grand orchestra will furnish music. Mr. Michael J. Dowd will act as master of the evening.

The following awards offered on the coupon tickets were announced: First prize, $5 in gold, donated by the Mathews; Miss Rose McGinnis, 101 Central street, sells umbrellas; donated by Thomas P. McCann; John E. O'Neil, 478 Graham street, box of Social Tea; Cigars, donated by Harbison and Bradley; Mrs. Ed. Brady, 507 Concord street; traveling bag donated by the Mathews; John J. Payer, M. T. L.; tape donated by James J. Gallagher; George Drinan, 17 Bart street.

ANOTHER CONFERENCE
Has Been Called to Draft a Universal Treaty

THE HAGUE, Sept. 15.—At the request of Germany and Italy, Holland is to invite the powers represented at the second Hague peace conference to participate in a further conference at The Hague probably in 1909 for the elaboration of a draft of a universal treaty.

THREE LOWELL BOYS

DENIS A. O'BRIEN.

JAMES J. BRADLEY.

Bright Students Go to American College at Rome

Mr. James J. Bradley, Holy Cross '08, and Denis A. O'Brien, Boston College '08, together with Patrick J. Meagher, St. Dunstan's college, will sail from Boston October 2 to enter upon their studies in philosophy and theology at the American college in Rome. All three young men reside in St. Michael's parish in Centralville, and will no doubt reflect credit on their selection in being sent to such a world renowned institution of learning as is the American college at Rome.

Mr. Bradley is already the recipient of eight gold medals won for excellence in scholarship at school and college. Preparing at St. Michael's parochial school, he won the gold medal in his class and entered St. Andrew's college at Manchester, N. H. There he further proved his ability as a student by winning the gold medal in his class for five successive years. At Holy Cross where he went after graduating, he was enrolled in the junior class and again added to his laurels by winning the philosophy medal of the junior year, while last June, at graduation, he won the gold medal for excellence in senior studies. Besides this award, he was victorious in the competition for the Beaven medal with the best essay on "The Right of the Parent to Educate the Child." That Mr. Bradley will continue in his present is the hope of a legion of friends and the wish of his associates.

Mr. O'Brien will accompany Mr. Bradley who is also well known for his scholarly attainments. Graduating from St. Michael's a year before

Mr. Bradley, he also was successful in carrying off the gold medal of his class. Choosing the five year course at Lowell High, he graduated in '04 and was valedictorian of his class.

At Boston college he distinguished himself in a literary work winning the prize of $25 in 1906 for the best essay on "The Colonization of America." As this prize was open for competition to all the Catholic colleges in America, the winning of it is regarded as a small achievement. In his junior year he again won a $25 prize for the best essay in the college periodical and last year he was one of the editors on the paper. Besides his literary ability Mr. O'Brien distinguished himself in his other studies and lost other medals only through sickness. He is a member of the Mathews, X-19 U-S-S, Y. M. C. I. and Princeton club, besides being prominent in the Holy Name of St. Michael's parish.

Mr. Meagher the third member of the party is perhaps one of the most popular young men in the city. He has attained distinction at St. Dunstan's, and is sure to figure prominently abroad. He is a brother of Dr. M. J. Meagher, the well known Centralville physician.

By embracing a clerical calling each of these young men renounces a worldly life to spread the doctrine of Catholicity. Opportunities for advancement in life had been offered each one, but feeling called to a higher vocation, they have turned their backs on all opportunities and hope at the conclusion of their five year course to return to this country zealous priests to labor in the vineyard of the Master.

BRYAN KEPT BUSY HAD AN ACCIDENT

Democratic Candidate Visits Many Places

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—William J. Bryan arrived at the Jersey City terminal of the Philadelphia and Reading road at 3 a. m. from Trenton, N. J., and his special car was immediately taken to the Weehawken terminal of the West Shore road. He leaves for Rochester, N. Y., today.

When Mr. Bryan awoke in his private car, lying in the railroad yards at Weehawken, N. J., this morning, he had an exceedingly busy day in prospect. After the long strain of yesterday when he was almost constantly engaged from early morning until nearly an hour after midnight in a tour in which he expects to speak fourteen times the last and most important address of the day to be delivered before the democratic state convention at Rochester.

It will be well after midnight when Mr. Bryan's labors for the day are completed and the night will be spent on the return journey to New York where another round of receptions and speech-making await him.

The special car bearing Mr. Bryan and his party was attached to a train of the West Shore road leaving Weehawken at 8:45 and his literary provided for many brief stops between that place and Rochester. The first scheduled stop was at Cornwall, where his train was due shortly after midnight. Stops also will be made at Newburg, Kingston, Ravenna, South Amsterdam, Florida, Palatine, Bridgeport, Plain, St. Johnsville, Little Falls, Ulster, Syracuse, Lyons and Rochester. The convention city will be reached about half-past six this evening and it is planned to have the special car attached to a train leaving Rochester at 12:20 a. m. for the return journey to New York.

JOHN W. KERN
COULD NOT ARRANGE TO MEET
JOHN T. GRAVES

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Sept. 15.—John W. Kern, the democratic presidential candidate last night, declined a challenge made here by John Temple Graves, the independence party vice presidential candidate, to join him in a joint discussion in Louisville, Ky.

Mr. Kern sent this message: "Hon. John Temple Graves, Chattanooga, Tenn. 'My engagement for tomorrow afternoon for non-partisan address, cannot be in Louisville at night.'"

Parseval Airship Buckled in the Air

BERLIN, Sept. 16.—The Parseval airship buckled in the air this morning and had to come down in the Grunewald near Berlin.

At the time of the accident the airship was racing the Gross balloon towards Dohr where Emperor Wilhelm was waiting to see them. Both airships started out this morning between eight and nine o'clock with the object of seeing which could reach Dohr in the shortest time. They faced a light breeze which freshened quickly but was diffied to a higher velocity to make headway against the wind. When the Parseval was crossing the Hohen Zee it was struck by a squall and the cigar-shaped flexible bag began to show signs of trouble. Then the interior balloons half collapsed and the machine began slowly to come down. It cleared the waters of the lake and landed on the roof of a house. Major Von Parseval and his four companions alighted unharmed.

Major Gross whose balloon is of the semi-rigid type fared somewhat better but half an hour later when near Potsdam he saw he was losing headway against the high wind and returned safely to his station at Tegel.

Each of the balloons has made magnificent endurance runs within the last week. The Parseval stayed up for thirteen and the Gross for eleven and one-quarter hours.

CITY HALL NEWS

Mayor Farnham to Nominate Another

Edward J. Richardson has not yet reported for duty as private secretary to the mayor and Edwards Cherry still holds the post as right hander to the Mayor. Mayor Farnham stated this morning that Mr. Richardson had accepted the position, but no more had been set for him to report for duty.

Registration to Date
The registration for the elections which closed Saturday evening produced a large interest in politics. The number registered this year was 115,000 against less than 100 last year.

Another Nominee for Health Board
Mayor Farnham has promised that in the event of the board of aldermen failing to confirm the appointment of Dr. Jones to the board of health, that he will send to the board the name of Dr. Frank O'Sullivan. Dr. Jones, however, will be given one more try.

AEON IS MISSING

Nothing Was Seen of the Steamer

HONOLULU, Sept. 16.—The British steamer Aeon which arrived here yesterday from Brisbane, Australia, reports that nothing was seen of the steamer Aeon despite the fact that a ship lookout was kept throughout the entire trip.

The Aeon sailed from San Francisco July 16, 12 days ago, for Australia and is nothing has been heard from the vessel since sailing the gravest fears for its safety are entertained. Insurance today is quoted at 75 per cent.

BRONZE STATUE

To General Banks Was Dedicated

BOSTON, Sept. 16.—For the purpose of commemorating Maj. Gen. Nathaniel P. Banks, elaborate arrangements had been made for the dedication and unveiling today of the bronze statue of the general, recently erected on the state house grounds. All the living descendants of Gen. Banks, familiarly known as the "Babbin boy general," were participants in today's proceedings.

Rev. Paul Sterling of Melrose, his son-in-law, had been chosen to pronounce the invocation, and the general's grandson, Paul Sterling, Jr., being selected to read the stinging which caused the work of artist Henry H. Kitson to be exposed.

Gen. Banks' son and daughter, Joseph G. and Maud Banks and Mrs. Paul Sterling, were also present. In addition to a large representation of the officers, who had served with the general during the Civil war, there were present delegations from various patriotic societies.

Acting Gov. Eben S. Draper was the official representative of the commonwealth of Massachusetts, accepting the statue in his behalf from Edward W. Jones. The memorial exercises had been arranged to be held in the hall of the house of representatives, and Herbert Parker, former attorney general of Lancaster, was the chosen orator.

POLITICAL NOTES

Here's an interesting item for Capt. Joe Thompson. While the latter's term is by no means near its expiration two candidates for the position are already named, William Trull Sheppard and Clifton Tuttle. That's going some.

James F. Griffin of Fayette street is prominently mentioned as a candidate for the common council in ward five. Mr. Griffin's friends urged him to run last year but he was content to wait until this year and will now go out for the nomination. He is a popular member of the Y. M. C. I. and the Eagles.

ASSAULT CASE

Was Continued Until Next Monday

The case of Albert River, charged with assault and battery on Malcolm J. Lafrance, was continued till next Monday, owing to the fact that the complainant was unable to appear.

James Dacey, who was arrested last Friday for drunkenness on complaint of his wife, was placed in the hands of the probation officer.

Louis Lambert, a parole man from the state farm, will be returned to that institution.

Four first offenders were released without appearing in court.

Evaded Car Fare
Walter A. Sullivan, a porter, giving his residence as Somerville, was arraigned in police court this morning on complaints charging him, with neglecting drunk, also with evading car fare on the Boston & Maine railroad.

Sullivan, while in an intoxicated condition, boarded the train in Boston. When the conductor came around to collect the fares he found that he was on the wrong train and refused to pay his fare to the conductor. When Lowell was reached the conductor turned Sullivan over to Patrolman Frank Donovan.

A representative of the Boston & Maine was in court and informed Judge Hadley that he thought that Mr. Sullivan did not intend to evade car fare and did not care to press the charge.

The case against Sullivan was placed on file.

Case Continued
The case of Joseph Choquette, charged with cruelly driving a horse, was continued till next Wednesday.

Withdrew Appeal
Susan Marron, who yesterday was sentenced to three months in jail and appealed, was in court this morning and withdrew her appeal.

THE INDIANS.
Held Their First Practice on Lundberg Street Last Evening.

The Indian football team, who have been playing and won many games, held their first practice last evening on Lundberg street and all showed up well.

Capt. Billy Roark says that all the men who attended last night's practice are in good condition, and that he would like to arrange games with teams throughout the state. The average weight of his team is 170 pounds.

The next practice of the team will be held Friday evening and all candidates for the team will be given a try-out.

The case of Hugh E. Melton, proprietor of the St. Charles hotel, charged with the murder of a man, was heard in court today and he was acquitted.

Thomas Clarke, who is employed as a waiter at the Franklin House, testified in court today. On cross-examination Deputy Welch asked witness how many times he had been in the hotel and that question resulted in a lively tilt between the group and lawyer Hogan.

Deputy Welch, the night clerk at the St. Charles hotel, after giving over some of the testimony offered by the previous witnesses for the government, said that he had been cautioned by Mr. Melton never to sell any liquor after eleven o'clock at night. Continuing, he said: "During the early hours of the night room are let to parties who desire refreshments and after eleven o'clock the bell boys go around the different rooms and collect the empty bottles and glasses and they are then placed in a box which has been referred to as the baggage room."

"Shortly after midnight the four fellows from the Franklin House came in and asked me if I would go to Salter's bar in the morning. I told them that I was busy and would see them in a few minutes. They sat down to wait but when the bell boy started to search the room I told them to go to the private dining-room and I would see them in a few minutes."

Joseph Evelyn, bell boy at the St. Charles hotel, said that on the morning in question he had started to wash the office floor when a bell rang and he went upstairs, and on the way down collected a bottle of beer, a bottle half full and a glass half full. He left these articles in the private dining room and then went into the office to finish up his work.

Hugh E. Melton, proprietor of the St. Charles hotel, testified in part as follows: "I stay up till the last train comes in after midnight and am in the habit of looking out the street towards the depot to see if there are any passengers who intend to stop at the hotel."

"When I find that there are no guests on the train, I turn down the gas and lamps and turn on a couple of incandescent lights. That is done for economy."

Witness then went on to testify how he let Ford, Norton, Brown and Charles into the hotel. He said that when he opened the door for them they said they wanted to see Santry about a little trip they were going to take in the morning.

Witness said that he opened the door for Messrs. Atkinson and Dwyer, but did not allow them into the rear rooms. A little later Serg. Atkinson called me back and saying up a bottle said 'What does this mean?' Whereupon 'Mr. Melton said: 'That's a bottle of beer that has been lying there. It is stale.'"

Mr. Melton further testified that no man has any key to the ice chest and that he and the bartender are the only ones who have keys to the bar. He said that on Saturday nights he generally put a couple of cases in the chest in order that it could be served after 6 o'clock in the morning, as some of his bartenders did not get to work early on Sunday mornings.

After summing up the evidence in the case, the court found Mr. Melton not guilty, and ordered him discharged.

SUPT. R. J. THOMAS

Talks of Water Pressure on Andover St.

Supt. Thomas of the water department says there isn't any real cause for alarm relative to the water supply for fire purposes in that part of Belvidere where the hydrants were tested yesterday. He maintains that there is water enough and force enough behind it to cope with the ordinary fire.

He calls attention to the fact, however, that the high service system was built originally for domestic rather than fire purposes. The high service is a baby service and applies only to parts of Belvidere and Centralville.

The first pressure shown when the hydrants were turned on yesterday was about 80 pounds, a greater pressure than is found in the centre of the city. Mr. Thomas admits that the pressure was not maintained but that a pressure was maintained sufficiently strong to cope with the ordinary fire and he says there isn't any reason why insurance rates should be affected by the water service in that particular district.

Mr. Thomas called attention to the fact that there are points in the Highlands where the pressure is down as low as 20 pounds. At a point almost opposite the Highland club the pressure is only 21 pounds.

Mr. Thomas believes it is in favor of larger pipes in the Belvidere district in question not altogether because of water for fire service but more especially because the water would be better for domestic use through larger pipes and it would strengthen the high service system. A big main, he says, makes the water dirty. The change in the size of pipe as suggested for Belvidere would mean at least one mile of new pipe and Mr. Thomas said today that the department was not in a position to make the change at this time.

WOMAN ARRESTED

She Is Charged With Stealing Dead Girl's Clothes

NEWTON, Sept. 16.—Charged with stealing the clothes of a girl who is now dead and who had been her patient, Miss Margaret Burton, aged 31, of 81 Glenwood street, Roxbury, was arraigned in the court here today. She was fined $10 and given until 15th day to pay.

The girl was employed to nurse the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Brown of Salem street, Newton. She was found dead of a fever and was buried last Friday. After the death of the patient, Miss Burton left the house and left the care of her department several articles of clothing were missing. Miss Burton was arrested by Inspector Fletcher and O'Halloran on the charge of having taken the missing clothing.

TROUBLE FEARED WOMAN DROWNED

Because of the Strike at Hender- Body Found in New York---Be- son, Maine longed in Provincetown

HENDERSON, Me., Sept. 16.—The strike of machinists along the lines of the Canadian Pacific railroad which took almost 160 men out of the shops here, threatens to seriously disrupt the peaceful routine of this little town. The railway shop officials have opposed to them here two distinct forces, having as common cause and at any time it may result with three different parties taking sides. So serious is the situation regarded that the members of Company P of the second regiment, Maine National Guard have been ordered to be in readiness for a hurry call to Henderson in the event of a serious outbreak between the contending factions.

The arrival of about sixty laborers late last week who were refused work at the shops because they were unskilled has done more to cause trouble than any other factor thus far and it is believed that this element is the one most likely to precipitate trouble. These men have stayed in the town threatening the railroad officials and assuming a hostile attitude toward the strikers and their quarrelsomeness has already been responsible for the sending here of a force of deputy sheriffs from Dover.

Gov. William T. Cobb already has been urged to order a detachment of Company P to this town for the purpose of maintaining peace and acting as a check upon any attempt at riot but he stated that he did not regard the situation as sufficiently critical to warrant such action on his part.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16. The body of a woman about 20 years of age, who was believed to have either fallen or jumped from one of the sound steamers, was found in the water at North Beach, Astoria, L. I., today, and is now in the morgue there awaiting identification. A watch attached to a gold chain around the neck bore the initials "F. K." and a white leather purse suspended by a silver chain was stamped inside "Provincetown, Mass." In addition to the jewelry the material of her clothing further indicated she was a person of refinement. She was of the blonde type, medium in height and weighed 130 pounds. The coroner said the body could not have been in the water more than two days.

BISBEE, Ariz., Sept. 16.—The bodies of John O'Leary and John Poe, American prospectors who left last August on a camping trip, have been found in the mountains 35 miles from Montezuma, Sonora, Mexico. The bodies had been partially eaten by wild animals, but there were indications that they had been murdered and their camp looted.

FOR SCHOOL PUPILS

Postmaster Wants Them Instructed in Addressing Letters

In order that the number of letters which reach the dead letter office from mistakes in addresses may be reduced, Postmaster-General Meyer has issued a circular letter to the postmasters of the United States directing them to confer with the school authorities as to the practicability of delivering to school children short talks on how to address letters, and describing the scope of the postal service, the system of handling and delivering mails, the classification of mail matter and the registration and money order systems. Supt. Whitcomb said, this forenoon, that he had not heard from Postmaster Thompson and the latter said he had not as yet received the circular from the postmaster-general. Supt. Whitcomb, however, is in favor of the proposition. He thinks it would be a good thing and will be pleased to co-operate with the postal authorities in the matter.

The schools in Boston have been furnishing instruction from the lower grades up, on the matter of addressing letters properly. That has been part of the regular course for years.

Regarding instruction in the other branches of the postal service, it has been suggested that the most satisfactory way for the postoffice department to act in the matter would be to issue a book written for the purpose of being used for instruction.

During the last year the postoffice reports show that 13,115,172 pieces of mail matter were sent to the dead letter office. The total number of pupils enrolled in the United States is about 17,000,000.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC

Charles E. Blaney's great melodrama, taken from real life, "The Factory Girl," is making a big hit at the Academy of Music this week where it is being given a most admirable presentation by the Debon-Pitt Stock company with Miss Della Doshon in the title role. The play abounding in heart interest and strongly dramatic in parts has also a fine vein of clean humor running through it, which is finely brought out by Miss Doshon and Mr. Mackaye. The play is superbly staged, and the third act, the interior of the factory, is one of the most realistic interior scenes ever presented in a popular priced theatre. In this act a 100 volt dynamo is in operation during the act, and makes a production of impression. The voting contest for the most popular girl is going along fast and the number of ballots deposited is steadily growing. The ballots will be found on the program, and the winner will receive a beautiful gold watch. On Friday evening the amateurs will appear at the conclusion of the regular performance.

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE

The Clara Turner company presents "The Chorus Girl" before a large audience at the Opera House last night.

CLARA TURNER

Honorable: "Mrs. Do Shina," Miss De Ville; "Perchival Stone," E. Golden; "Jack Gray," Mr. MacDonald; "Chas. Goring," Mr. Morse; "Thomas Dougherty," Mr. Lovett, and Mr. Morse, Mr. Golden and Mr. Geary, in minor roles.

MICAGLIO'S BAND

There was great commotion among musicians in New York upon the arrival of the famous Giuseppe Micaglio and his international prize winning band at Paris, numbering forty-five selected artists. There was no such thing as shut-out then out at Ellis Island, as Signor Micaglio will take his band entire back to Europe immediately after the close of his American tour in January. Nevertheless, there were keen and inquisitorial eyes bent upon Signor Micaglio and his Italian companions in New York, but no opposition was offered. Micaglio is said to possess a wonderful repertoire. This magnificent organization will be heard here entire on Thursday, Sept. 24.

HATHAWAY'S THEATRE

Dan Burke and his school girls, featured at Hathaway's this week, are genuine entertainers and their little skit, printed with good music, first class singing and dancing, is pretty from its start to its finish. The quartet of women singers is the best ever heard here, strikingly good being the work of Miss Helen A. Hozza, who was formerly soprano soloist at St. Patrick's church here. Other members of the quartet are Misses Gertha Dunn and Mollie and Dagmar Meller. Mr. Burke is a remarkable dancer of the old school. The barefoot dance by the school girls is one of the features of the act.

The remainder of the bill is of the first rank, including Helen Pullman and Edith Shayne, in the sketch with heart throbs entitled "Black and the Dream Lady"; Thomas Trio of instrumentalists; Paulson, Golde and Lee, character comedians; Billy Van, musical monologist; Lancaster-Lucier, comedian, with Con Conrad as comedian in "The Foots Brethren"; Bert and Theo. Valente in comedy sketches; and the Hathaway quartet.

The advertised price will be given every afternoon and evening during the remainder of the week.

WILBUR WRIGHT

Broke European Records at Leman's Today

LEMAN, Sept. 16.—On the field of Auteurs this morning Wilbur Wright eclipsed all European records for sustained airplane flight. He remained in the air for 29 minutes, and 18 seconds. This gives the Wright brothers the records for both home-phases.

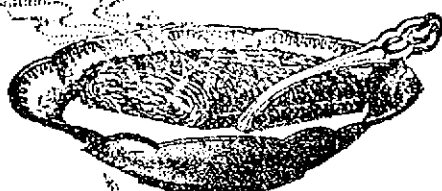

Mr. Wright circled over the field at an average height of 45 feet. His complete mastery of the aeroplane aroused great enthusiasm from the spectators. It is estimated that he covered 26 miles. Mr. Wright used his old motor which has been causing him so much trouble but which has been completely overhauled. Mr. Wright said he could have remained in the air longer had the gasoline not been exhausted.

HOT AFTER TAFT

Bryan Winds Up Strenuous Day of Campaigning

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 15.—Pouring hot shot into Mr. Taft and the republican party at every point where he stopped, William J. Bryan last night concluded a strenuous day of campaigning. Switching into national politics, he said that the republican standard bearer promised that there would be no panics, and that Mr. Roosevelt, as Mr. Taft's God-father, promised the same thing. He wanted to know how Mr. Taft could prevent panics when Mr. Roosevelt already had one on his hands.

Mr. Bryan's reception in New Jersey was a demonstrative one. At Washington park he addressed 20,000 persons. A statement by him that his nomination for a third time after two defeats and with no president to help him with his patronage, was due to the growth of the ideas for which he stood, provoked the wildest enthusiasm. His every utterance almost, was directed at Mr. Taft, whom he charged with running on the record of President Roosevelt.

En route here Mr. Bryan spoke at Camden and Burlington to great crowds and shook hands with many hundreds of persons. Incidentally he again attacked S. T. Coleman Dupont of the republican executive committee, reiterating his former charge that Mr. Dupont, as a trust magnate was unfit to occupy the position of attempting to institute reforms.

SKETCHES OF THE REPUBLICAN BARBECUE AT POINT OF PINES YESTERDAY.

G. O. P. BARBECUE

With Gathering of Leaders at the Point of Pines

BOSTON, Sept. 15.—Thousands of republicans from all parts of New England took part in the first great gathering of the national republican campaign at the Point of Pines, Revere, yesterday. The roasting of the oxen and the speech-making was preceded by a program of athletic events. After the speech-making was over the visitors were entertained by the different Massachusetts county delegations.

The list of speakers in the afternoon included United States Senator Wm. E. Borah of Idaho, Secretary of Agriculture James Wilson of Iowa and Lieut.-Gov. Draper of Massachusetts. The endorsement of the republican party and the Chicago ticket—Taft and Sherman—was the keynote of the speeches.

SPANISH QUEEN

Won the Empire State $10,000 Purse at Syracuse

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 15.—Spanish Queen won the Empire State $10,000 purse yesterday after one of the most stubbornly fought five heat battles of the season, over the fastest course that the grand circuit horses have raced on this year. Eleven good horses paraded for the word in the rich classic, but when the race was concluded honors were even between the fast daughter of Onward Silver and the champion four-year-old trotter of the year, Aquin of the Blingon tribe, for the Boston horse fought every heat to the wire, and after showing the way in the first two heats, he came back game and was beaten in the third heat by only inches.

After some tedious scoring the big field got away well punched, and at the eighth Aquin had the rail. Spanish Queen went to a long break and the Boston colt, carrying Dewitt to a break 50 feet from the wire, was eased up. A serious accident was barely averted at the far turn in the opening heat, as a local mare, May Kew, racing well to the front, went to a standstill break and caused havoc among the closely bunched trailers. Passenger Charm's sulky was cut down, but cool work saved a bad smash.

In the second heat Aquin raced off in front four or five lengths. The Spanish Queen getting around the big field at the half, could not get within striking distance of the great colt, who stepped to a new record, which is the best for a four-year-old trotter this year. The two high class trotters clinched from the word in the third heat, and racing like a pair, they reached the quarter in 23 1/2 seconds. Matching stride for stride, they raced around the last turn and were on even terms at the head of the stretch. A hundred feet from the wire Spanish Queen was a head and shoulders in front, and in that way they finished past the wire in the fastest heat of the race by only inches.

THE NASHUA RACES
NASHUA, N. H., Sept. 15.—The second day of the September race meeting at the fair grounds ended with two races unfinished, one of which, at least, promises some sport today. The 210 pace was started yesterday, but only one heat was raced. The scoring of the big field of horses in the 215 pace delayed the racing for the afternoon, but this race, with all its starters, proved to be one of the interesting ones.

Five heats were raced in this event, with not one of the 12 horses drawn out of the rule out in yesterday's final heat. Alice Mack and Asa Wilkes finished the day's work with two heats each, and Northern Spy with one to his credit. Every heat was a race, and several of them were stopped off in fast time.

Grace Maud got away with the first heat of the 210 trot, but Crovdon stepped in and handily took the next three. The summary:

Fletcher D. Proctor of Vermont, Governor Rollins S. Woodruff of Connecticut, Lieut.-Governor Ralph C. Walcott of Rhode Island, Lieut.-Governor Eben S. Draper of Massachusetts, Sen. Winthrop Murray Crane of Massachusetts, ex-Governor John L. Bates of Massachusetts, Postmaster-General George Von L. Meyer, Lieut. U. S. Grant, Ed. Irving Garfield, son of President Garfield, and John Hays Hammond of Massachusetts breakfasted at a local hotel. Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge sent word that he was ill at Martha's Vineyard and Gov. Curtis Guild was unable to be present because of his recent illness.

After breakfast automobiles were taken for the Point of Pines. When the 15,000 visitors had at last reached the Point, two big steers, two young pigs and a pair of lambs were hung over the fire, which had been burning since midnight Monday. They were finely roasted and were then served to the waiting republicans and their friends.

Lieut.-Governor Draper was the first speaker of the day. He dwelt at length on the principles of the republican party. He said that here in Massachusetts a lot of hard work was required. "Don't be too sure of victory," he said. "Get off your coats, republicans, and work."

Secretary Wilson of the department of agriculture was next heard and he was followed by Senator Borah.

Discussed the Effect of Watering Car Work

At a meeting of the water board, held last night, the question of the dirty condition of city water in certain sections of the city was discussed, and Capt. Thomas said that the rotten condition of the water was due to the use of certain hydrants for the filling of water carts and the big street car sprinkler. He said that the matter could be easily remedied if the street department would provide standpipes for the filling of the carts. This would prevent the water from sitting back in the mains and stirring up the extraneous matter.

WAGE REDUCTION

AT THE WHITINSVILLE COTTON MILLS IS ANNOUNCED

WHITINSVILLE, Sept. 15.—Notices posted at the Whitinsville cotton mills and at the Linwood mills at Linwood village announce a reduction in wages on Monday next, and an increase in the running time from 40 hours to 50 hours weekly. The cut will probably average 10 per cent.

The notices will also affect the North Uxbridge manufacturing company's mills at North Uxbridge and the Saunders mills at Saundersville. The Whitins of Whitinsville, owners of all four concerns, are the last of the cotton manufacturers in the Blackstone valley to make a wage reduction; the others did so some time ago. About 1000 persons will be affected.

NORTH BILLERICA

The fire department of Billerica Centre was called out Sunday afternoon to extinguish a fire which burned over land owned by Mr. Simmons of East Billerica. About 45,000 feet of lumber was destroyed. The loss will be about $5000.

NATIONAL BISCUIT COMPANY

CROWLEY WILL

ert went away. In May, Robert returned home, after an absence from home, and requested $200 of Mrs. Crowley, which the latter refused him.

Robert was at home on Christmas, 1907, witness said, and saw Mrs. Crowley. Witness was with Mrs. Crowley when Robert entered the house. Mrs. Crowley said she would not see him, and witness said, "Don't you; don't be hard on him; it's Christmas day." Witness then went down stairs, and told Robert to go up and see his aunt, and he went up and saw her. Mrs. Crowley told witness that Robert spoke to her about the water board and told her he was going to be mayor of Lowell. Mrs. Crowley told her that she told him that he would never be mayor of Lowell if he didn't behave himself.

A year ago last June Mrs. Crowley told witness, she said, that if Robert touched any more of her money she would prosecute him.

At this point Mr. Pratt objected to the witness' manner of answering questions, claiming that witness was not repeating Mrs. Crowley's language or the substance of it, in repeating their conversations, but was substituting her own conclusions. Judge Lawton instructed the witness how to answer.

Last December Mrs. Crowley spoke to witness about making a will and spoke of having Mrs. Reilly make it.

In the following January Mrs. Crowley told her that she could not die happy and meet her God and her husband if she knew that Robert was to have her husband's money and squander it in barrooms and on fast company. Mrs. Crowley told her that she would not give Mr. Crowley's watch to Robert as she did not want it to be pulled out in barrooms.

Witness recalled the fact that Mrs. Crowley told her three years ago that if Robert was going to carry on his old games he would find he was making a mistake. Witness related a conversation between Mrs. Crowley and Mr. Dow in which the latter told Mrs. Crowley that they were going to straighten out Robert and asking her to take him back. Mrs. Crowley said she would not give him any more money.

Cross Examined

Mr. Pratt at this point took the witness in hand and she said that she lived with her aunt and Robert, when she was at home, since Mr. Crowley died and she and Robert are living at the same place now. She said that Robert and Mrs. Crowley were very affectionate and that Robert always kissed her when leaving the house and again upon his return.

Miss Lyons stated that Robert was at home most of the time since his uncle died.

"Did you ever hear Mrs. Crowley express pride or satisfaction over the fact that Robert was on the governor's staff and when he was elected chairman of the water board?" asked Mr. Pratt.

"Yes, I have," replied Miss Lyons.

"When was it that Mrs. Crowley adopted Robert?"

"The January after Mr. Crowley died. I didn't hear about it until the following May."

Was Robert present when Mrs. Crowley told you that she had adopted him?

"Yes, he was there at the table. Uncle James found fault with it and they were talking about it."

"Did Mrs. Crowley say anything at that time about Robert's adoption having nothing to do with the money?"

"I don't remember." Witness couldn't remember what Mrs. Crowley or Robert said about Uncle James making a protest.

Miss Lyons was cross-examined at length in regard to her testimony to the effect that she heard Mr. Dow's conversation to Mrs. Crowley through the telephone.

Witness said that when Mr. Dow called at the house, Mrs. Crowley said that she had intended to leave the house in Mr. Washington's street to Robert, but on account of the way he was carrying on she thought she would not do it. Mr. Dow suggested that she leave it in trust for him. Mrs. Crowley asked Mr. Dow to be executor of her will at that time, and told witness of the fact. Mr. Dow came to the house on August 26, 1906, and Robert came back on that same day having been away since July 22.

Witness didn't see anything in Robert's conduct at this time that was displeasing to Mrs. Crowley.

In September, 1906, Mrs. Crowley told witness that she was going to Boston, and while there would make a will. On her return she said that she had been to the Old Colony Trust Co. and was making a will. She didn't mention Mr. Dow at that time. Robert was away at the time. The will came to the house later, by mail. Mrs. Crowley told witness at that time that she had left to witness the house and furniture, and to her brother $1000. She said she had left an income to Robert, to be paid to him twice a year.

"Did she later speak of a will?"

"Yes, last December, the first week."

"What did she say?"

"She said she was going to leave Robert only a dollar. She said she would leave me $3000, and that she was going to have Mrs. Reilly come and make the will."

"Was anything said about a residuary legate?"

"Nothing."

"Was anything said about the other will?"

"Nothing was said."

"Was anything said about Robert?"

"No."

On Jan. 31, witness and Mrs. Crowley had a conversation in the bathroom, and Mrs. Crowley said to witness: "I have asked Mrs. Reilly to make out my will and to have Mr. Reilly act as executor. Mrs. Reilly said she would ask her husband to act, and I want you to pray that Mr. Reilly will accept."

"On Feb. 6," continued witness, "Mrs. Crowley said: 'I can die happy now, as Mr. Reilly has consented to be executor.' The will was signed Sept. 12."

"On the Sunday before she died," said witness, "Mrs. Crowley said to me, 'I am going to die happy as everything is fixed up and I know you will carry out my wishes and will see that Robert will never want for a home or something to eat. Be prudent and don't give him any money.'"

Burst Into Tears

As Miss Lyons finished her testimony she burst into tears and retired from the court room.

Mr. Pratt, at this point read the first will in which Mrs. Crowley after leaving practically the same bequest as in the last will left the residue of her estate in trust for her nephew, Robert J. Crowley, the income to be paid him semi-annually and upon his death the trust to cease and the property divided among her heirs. A codicil attached to this will provided that upon the death of Robert the property was to be divided in nine parts, one to go to St. Patrick's church and the other eight to be divided among eight Boston relatives named in this codicil.

Mrs. Reilly Recalled

Mrs. Mary Reilly, the residuary legate, was recalled and was asked if she had any minutes of the last will that she had not produced in court. She replied that she had none. Other papers that she had, had been destroyed as she attached no importance to them.

Executor Testifies

Peter W. Reilly, executor of the last will, was the next witness called and he testified that he was related to the Crowleys only by marriage and had known them over 20 years. In response to Mr. Pratt's questions witness said: "I first learned that Mrs. Crowley wanted the assistance of Mrs. Reilly in her affairs in December. I didn't pay much attention to it at first. The will was executed at my office. I don't think it was read at that time."

"During the remainder of Mrs. Crowley's life you had the will and not she?"

"Yes, sir."

"Did you have any conversation with her in regard to acting as executor?"

"No, sir."

"Did you have any conversation relative to your wife being residuary legate?"

"No, sir."

Examined by Mr. Sughrue, Mr. Reilly said that Mrs. Crowley was a strong and high-minded woman and that she always took great interest in his family. Mrs. Crowley's relations with his wife were always very cordial.

"Did Mrs. Crowley get her money from her husband?"

"I recall that Mr. Crowley, the year before his death, showed me a memorandum in which he had put down that he was worth $34,000."

Re-examined by Mr. Pratt: "Wasn't there a time when Mr. Crowley was mayor that there was a breach in the family relations of the two families?"

"I don't think so."

"Didn't Mrs. Reilly suggest the appointment of a license commissioner to Mrs. Crowley which he indignantly refused?"

"Not in that way. Your Honor, I'd like to explain—" began Mr. Reilly, but he was told to answer the cross-examiner.

"On one occasion when you and Mrs. Reilly were in the presence of Mayor McGowan, didn't your wife solicit the appointment of a certain license commissioner?"

"My wife never solicited him," indignantly replied Mr. Reilly.

"Didn't something happen that caused your wife to become hysterical and burst into tears?"

"I never knew my wife to become hysterical. You have heard a little, haven't you, explain the rest."

"Didn't your wife burst into tears on this occasion?"

"She might have."

At this point Mr. Sughrue interposed to give Mr. Reilly an opportunity to explain, and Mr. Reilly said: "When Mrs. Crowley was mayor there was some talk about me being appointed license commissioner on account of my connection with him and he being an honest, high minded man felt grieved to think that people would think he would place one of his own in the position. There was something said about the matter one night we were at the house but it was a mere tempest in a teapot. There were no strained relations and my wife didn't ask for the appointment and I did not want it and would not take it anyway."

Miss Mary Ellen Reilly, daughter of the preceding witness, testified to carrying the will from her mother to Mrs. Crowley and arranging for a meeting at which the will was executed.

Noon recess.

Afternoon Session

Miss Reilly resumed the stand at the opening of the afternoon session and in response to Mr. Pratt's questions stated that her aunt asked her in December if she thought her mother would assist her with her affairs, that they were not in the order she wished them to be in. Witness said she thought her mother would be willing to assist her. Her aunt did not specify what affairs she meant or in what condition they were. Witness told her mother what her aunt said to her.

"What else did your aunt say?" asked Mr. Pratt.

"She said she was about to die and wanted her affairs attended to. She complained bitterly of Robert."

"What was the nature of the conversation that you characterized as complaining bitterly?"

"She said that Robert went off for weeks at a time and she didn't know where he was, while he didn't know whether she was dead or alive. She seemed very sorrowful."

"Some time in January," continued the witness, "I visited my aunt and she spoke about her affairs but up to that time my mother had not been up to see her. Auntie at that time said she had not much longer to live and she started to speak of what she was going to give me. I besought her not

AND BASEBALL ENTHUSIAST

WAS PLACED UNDER ARREST

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 16.—Umpire Jack Sheridan of the American Baseball League was attacked by an angry baseball enthusiast as he was leaving the American League park yesterday afternoon. Sheridan was jeered and hooted by a mob as he left the ball park. When one of the mob struck Sheridan, a policeman rushed into the crowd and seized the assailant. The crowd then pressed about the policeman and his prisoner, and the officer drew his revolver. Umpire Hurs, who was with Sheridan, struck one of the mob in an effort to protect his colleague. The man who was arrested escaped. The trouble was the result of ill-feeling over a decision by Sheridan in yesterday's game, declaring Outfielder McIntyre of the Detroit team safe, which proved to be the winning run.

WRESTLING NEWS

A strenuous wrestling battle will be pulled off in Associate hall Friday night, when Chief War Eagle, the famous Indian grappler, clashes with Young Prokos, the best wrestler of his weight ever produced by Athens. While War Eagle is not so well known in the east, his record in the northwest is one that any athlete might be proud of. Friday night of last week, War Eagle dropped off at Syracuse and in a grueling match, defeated the Syracuse champion, Leroy Kelley, in straight falls. The Indian's wrestling was a revelation to Syracuse sports. In Young Prokos, however, War Eagle is up against a superior man, one who is as clever as he is strenuous, and should the Indian win, he will establish his right to place in the very front rank of American wrestlers. War Eagle will have a weight advantage of several pounds.

The license for the match was granted by the board of police at a special meeting held today, the stipulation being that either Jim Gilligan or George V. Toubey be the referee.

Harry Metropole and Joe Contu are having a merry war of words over their last match. Metropole says Contu did not wrestle within the rules while Contu declares he violated nothing in wrestling law, and that had he done so, Referee Gilligan would have disqualified him. The pair are to settle the question of superiority in one of the preliminaries Friday night.

Annual Football Season Approaches

Outlook at Many Big Colleges Is Bright -- Elberfeld as Manager.
Burns' Shrewdness -- Baseball at Night

WITH baseball nearing the final stages of the great season of 1908, attention of the lovers of athletics will shortly turn to the gridiron. From all sections of the country come reports of the increased interest in football and predictions that the season of 1908 will be one of the greatest the game has ever enjoyed. The old timers who have played on the teams and those who have football ambitions have already begun to condition themselves for the annual fall grind. Although the conference teams are not allowed by the conference rule to begin practicing before Sept. 20, many of the players are learning the knack of throwing and have been kicking the ball and going on little jogs every day to harden their muscles so that they will be ready to take up hard work when the official practice day arrives. This year's changes in the rules will make accurate handling and passing of the ball of unusual importance. The sticky nature of the game has been done away with by the adoption of the changes. It is absolutely necessary to have the man who will receive the for-

TOMMY MURPHY.

TOMMY MURPHY DELIVERING NEW BLOW HE INVENTED.

Tommy Murphy of New York, better known as the Pride of Harlem, is a fighter who has a brain and who uses it. A specialty of his is the study and trial of new blows and variations, and occasionally he makes a discovery of more than usual value. The accompanying photo shows Murphy delivering against Leach Cross a new blow that is as useful as the Kid McCoy corkscrew punch, the Fitzsimmons solar plexus wallop, the Tommy Ryan kidney punch. Murphy's blow is delivered with the right hand when at close quarters during fighting. The fist is suddenly jerked upward to the point of the jaw and at the same time the body is given an upward lunge to add force to the blow. This blow must be executed very quickly, and it is very disconcerting to an opponent, for he cannot see it coming, as a rule.

Indians try with Minnesota. Cornell will journey to Chicago and play the maroons on their own stamping ground. This will in a way, give a comparative line on eastern and western football, but the comparative score method is a poor way of comparing the two sections of the country.

Elberfeld Won't Do as a Manager.

Norman Elberfeld as manager of the New York Americans will not do. Elberfeld is a ball player of more than ordinary ability, but when it comes to handling a ball team or directing its movements on the field he is several points shy, and this has been proved. One of the greatest requisites of a baseball manager is brains, and the individual who attempts to make good in the position without at least an ordinary amount of gray matter is sure to find himself a failure. The New York team in its present condition is weak, but it is hampered more by Elberfeld's guidance than by the absence of several good players.

A friend of the writer attended a game in Washington, recently between the home team and the Yankees. Elberfeld was shouting orders and abusing his players from a box next to the bench in a most boisterous manner. His players resented the interference by not heeding his orders. In the eighth inning of the game in question, the players openly refused to get on the coaching lines. How many managers would stand for this? Would Jennings, McGraw or Chance? I guess not.

Just how some of the players on the team regard Elberfeld is best shown by the remark one of the team made: "It's great to play ball on this team. We are down in the race and playing under the direction of a crazy man. He thinks he is a manager, but he can't convince any one but himself that he has the first qualification for the place. It's a joke."

Burns a Great Ring Trickster.

We must all doff our hats to Champion Pugilist Tommy Burns as a past master of shrewdness in the prize ring. Recently, in Sydney, Australia, Burns met Bill Squires for the third time. Previous to this Burns had twice clearly demonstrated that he was Squires' master in fistfights.

Their second scrap was held in Paris. In one of the early rounds of the fight Burns fell to the floor, ostensibly from a blow which Squires contrived to deliver. The cable said that the bell saved Burns. Two rounds later Tommy knocked out Bill, but stories of Squires' wonderful showing were quickly sent to Australia. The people in the antipodes were led to believe that Burns escaped defeat by a hair line. Philadelphia inventor, prove feasible, major league baseball fans will be able to witness games between the favor-

Then Burns had his agents in Australia work up interest for another fight between them, and finally a club offered a purse of $10,000, which was quickly snapped up by Bill and Tommy. In order to give the fight fans a run for their money and knowing that the longer he let the fight go the more cash he would receive from the moving picture concern, Burns permitted Squires to remain until the thirteenth round, when he could have done the trick just as easily in first or second.

"Have you got anything to do to-night, Bill?"

"No."

"Well, let's go out to the ball game. So-and-so is going to pitch. The game doesn't begin till 8 o'clock."

"Will the game be over before midnight?"

Two Dramatic Successes, One Partial, the Other Complete

[From Our New York Dramatic Correspondent.]

THE dainty little comedy, "Love Watches," which has recently launched winsome Miss Billie Burke into stardom at the Lyceum, has been given a very hearty welcome. There has never been the slightest doubt as to the quality of Miss Burke's personal attractiveness, and now it is equally manifest that she is as clever as she is agreeable to behold. It must be admitted also that the vehicle which has been chosen for the clever young woman's appearance in the stellar field is singularly attuned to her methods of expression.

It is not a stretch of the imagination to say that "Love Watches" fairly scintillates. The situations are fresh, the lines are unusually bright, and the underlying idea is one that is likely to appeal to those who enjoy a social comedy in which the dialogue is fairly good literature. Most adaptations from foreign languages suffer in the translation, but if "Love Watches" is not as good as the original French play of De Fiers and Cailhaviot there are few who will be the wiser. Miss Gladys Saxon has done the work into Anglo-Saxon with commendable skill. Wholesomeness is one of the comedy's best qualities. One does not always look for this in adaptations from the French, but "Love Watches" is as innocuous as it is amusing.

A Simple Story.

"Love Watches" is the species of play which cannot be done justice in the mere telling. The story is exceedingly simple, and it is the treatment that brings out its charm. Jacqueline, played by Miss Burke, is a lovely maiden, a veritable flower of a girl, whose pretty head is full of sentimental ideas. She falls in love at first sight with her cousin, Count Andre de Juveny. This happens one day when he has been thrown from his horse and is sitting forlornly in a mud puddle. Jacqueline tries hard for several months to conceal her passion, but finally gives up trying and tells the count frankly that she is very fond of him.

Andre has been something of a trifter in matters of the heart, but he is touched by his pretty cousin's artlessness and makes up his mind to marry her without delay. When they return from their wedding journey, with Jacqueline still pretty badly gone over her husband and the count now honestly devoted to her, it comes to the ears of the charming little bride that another woman, her cousin Lucie, had once formed an attachment for Andre and that the latter had been interested in her. Right here it is pertinent to record that Lucie's pet name for Andre was Snoodles.

Jacqueline is greatly disturbed over the matter and makes Snoodles promise he will never see Lucie again. That was an exceedingly rash promise, for in less than no time Lucie calls on the newly wed, and it so happens that Andre must see her home. That settles the business. Jacqueline sends word promptly to all the members of her family that she has left her husband and is about to console herself with another man.

This "other man" is Ernest Augarde, an intimate friend of the entire family. He is incapable of treachery, but he has long loved Jacqueline in secret, and the announcement of her arrival at his home sets him all in a flutter. A most amusing scene follows, in which the two children—for that is what they really are—attempt to make themselves believe that they are engaged in a desperate love affair.

Presently the relatives begin to arrive one by one to inquire after Jacqueline, who at the first jingle of the doorbell conceals herself in another room. When her relatives have all departed, still in ignorance of her whereabouts, she makes the discovery that she continues to love Andre, and after promising Ernest that she will never tell anybody she has been in his house goes back home. Ernest agrees to win back her husband for her.

When Jacqueline arrives at home the first thing she does is to give it all away, even to the name of the man with whom she has been trying to fix up her revenge. The family regards the whole business as a gigantic joke. When Ernest arrives on his mission of reconciliation he finds that Andre is the only one who does not know everything. He tells Andre how Jacqueline went away and spent the entire afternoon in the company of another man. At this shocking revelation Andre is properly heartbroken. As this moment Jacqueline, who has been eavesdropping, bursts into the room and berates Ernest for his cruelty to her husband. All forgetful of her promise, she tells the latter that it is Ernest whom she visited.

At this confession it is Andre's turn to laugh, and he does most heartily. Ernest is not quite sure that things are as funny as they seem, but in time he, too, sees the humor of the situation. At the last he is so inspired by the domestic felicity which settles down on Andre's household that he weds a young woman who has long been devoted to him, and everything turns out as it should.

A Tale of the Rifle.

Not quite such an unqualified success was the recent production at the Hudson theater of George Broadhurst's dramatization of Scott's "Edward White's novel entitled "The Conjuror's House." Mr. Broadhurst has renamed it "The Call of the North," and it is emblematic of a line of the rifle. Although it contains several very telling situations, and is really quite delightful in spots, it is far too wordy and possibly too artificial in its treatment to escape criticism. Mr. Robert Edison, as Ned Trent, makes the most of his opportunities and really does some very creditable work, and the acting of the company is vastly superior to the play.

DORIS KEANE, NOW STARRING IN "THE LIKES O' ME," GARRICK THEATER, NEW YORK.

Doris Keane has made great headway in the Frohman force. Her intelligent work in smaller roles has prompted her managers to put her in the stellar role in a curtain raiser, "The Likes o' Me," which precedes "The Mollusc," in which Joseph Coyne has opened at the Garrick theater, New York.

The story of the play is not especially novel or even striking. Ned Trent's father has been killed by orders of Galet Albrecht, superintendent of the trading post at the extreme north of the Hudson bay territory. That happened years before the play begins. Ned Trent is a free trader—practically an outlaw—with a price set for his capture—and he is forever in quest of information concerning his father's murder, bent on vengeance. He is captured by the men whom Albrecht has put on his track and sentenced to be left out on the great traverse alone and weaponless, with steadily redskins in his wake to make an end of him should he contrive to escape starvation or death from exposure.

In order to secure a rifle he resolves to make love to Albrecht's daughter, and he succeeds, of course—wins the girl and the coveted gun. At that stage of the business he doesn't want the girl, but he has very urgent use for the gun. So he grills his conscience as best he can and lets it go at that. It is quite essential for the purpose of the story that he should be recaptured, and he is. When he is brought before the irate Albrecht in the council chamber and is being tempted to name the person who provided him with the shooting piece Mr. Edison has an opportunity to get in some of the fine work of which he is abundantly capable, and he does.

One of the hits of the play—one, too, which came as a genuine surprise—was made by Miss Beatrice Frontier as Julie Bagnieu, a little French girl who had come to the post for news of her missing father and who, when she learned that he had been murdered, broke out into a paroxysm of grief, rage and defiance of the tyrant that was extremely realistic. Miss Frontier's effort was so well received that she came very near to "running off with the play."

An Influx of Russian Pianists.

According to the announcements already made, we are to have a veritable invasion of Russian pianists the coming season, all of them provided with the customary impossible names and branded by their enthusiastic admirers as the "best ever." Be that as it may, there is at least one Russian piano virtuoso who will always find a warm welcome in this country. Those who had the good fortune to hear Josef Lhevinne play last season will be gratified to learn that he will return this fall and will be heard in the larger cities. Since Rubinstein no Russian pianist has satisfied American lovers of piano playing so well as Lhevinne.

RHEA AND HER FATE.

Rhea, an actress of great dramatic power, who mastered the English language that she might play in it, just as Bertha Kalich has done since, died in comparative poverty in France. Norman Hackett, an actor whose home is in Detroit and who left the University of Michigan to become an actor in Rhea's company, started a fund for the purpose of marking in a suitable manner the final resting place of his former star. Fortunately he found that her relatives had cared for the little tomb.

LEADING POWER IN THE WORLD'S STAGE AFFAIRS.

The title of Frohman the Mysterious well applies to the head of the American theater world, who is now a leading factor also in England and the continent. Charles Frohman's person is surrounded by mystery. There is hardly a single photo of him in existence. He hates publicity regarding himself as much as he craves it for his stars. No one knows when he will appear at his office in New York or London or Paris. No one can tell at what moment "C. F." as his associates term him, will disappear from the haunts of men for an indefinite period. He obeys no man. He determines what to do, and he does it. Millions are his playthings, and the stage of two continents bows to him as its master.

CHARLES FROHMAN.

[From a snapshot taken in the Strand in London.]

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 19th, 1908.

Upon the premises, regardless of any conditions of the weather, beginning promptly at 1.30 o'clock in the afternoon, with Lot No. 1 (numbered 2 in plan) containing 12 acres more or less with buildings. The house is conventional style, 2 1/2 stories, has twelve large light pleasant rooms, with bath, pantries and open fireplaces, long oil and well arranged sheds and storage rooms.
Barns include large frame horse barn, with stalls for fifteen horses and large space for hay and grain, carriage and harness, ice house of fifty cows, large modern stable and lots for hay and grain. Large milk house with concrete floor, fully equipped with all necessary appliances. Ice house of 100 tons capacity. Two good hen-houses. The buildings are in good condition, inside and out. The location is perfect. The neighborhood is above reproach, situated on high land, among large shade trees, a beautiful view of the Merrimack river and surrounding country. The minutes walk to the Vesper-Center Club at Tyngsboro, and one-half mile to Tyngsboro depot and post office.
Cars of Boston & Northern Street Railway pass a short distance from house every half hour, only half hour's ride to Lowell, where there are thirty-seven trains to Boston daily.

The house sets back from the highway on a private circular driveway, and is extremely comfortable in appearance. Any one looking for an ideal country home should attend this sale. Absolutely no limit or reserve. Immediately after Lot
One is sold, the sale of the lots described below will follow in order.

A HURRICANE

THE WIND BLEW SIXTY MILES AN HOUR

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Sept. 16.—

Bermuda last night experienced the outer edge of a hurricane. The wind blew with a velocity of from 50 to 60 miles an hour. This morning the weather is abating. The damage is limited to the blowing down of a number of trees.

Octave club at Associate Thur. eve.

LACK OF PRESSURE

For Fire Service in Andover St.
Water Service

After testing the water mains in Andover street, near the scene of the Worcester homestead fire, which occurred several days ago, Supt. Hosmer declares that it would be impossible for the fire department to have property in that neighborhood in case of fire.

At the time of the fire at the Worcester homestead, it was found that the mains would not give up because of lack of pressure. The fact that there was any water resulted in a deal of criticism, and yesterday afternoon Chief Hosmer, accompanied by Assistant Chief Neeson and Supt. Thomas of the water works, went out to lower Andover street and tested the hydrants in the vicinity of the old Worcester house.

It was the same story as the night of the fire. The high street engine was coupled to the hydrant and for 30 minutes threw a rather ineffectual stream, and at the end of the 30 minutes the gauge showed no pressure at all.

Asked how he accounted for the trouble, Supt. Thomas said it must be that the mains are too small. The hydrants are fed from the mains laid on Burnan road, eight inch and six inch pipe, and he believes that the only way to remedy the trouble is to change the eight inch pipe to ten inch and the six inch to eight. Lower Andover street is in the high pressure zone all right, but the pipes are too small.

The views of Chief Hosmer as given above do not agree with Supt. Thomas' view of the matter as given elsewhere.

MATRIMONIAL

Mr. David Calvin Donaldson and Miss Grace May Hatch were united in marriage last night at six o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Hatch of South Loring street. The pretty little home was well filled with friends and relatives of the contracting parties.
Miss Ella Mildred Proctor acted as bridemaid and Mr. J. Wallace Fraser was best man and little Miss Marjory Chase, flower girl. The service was performed by Rev. A. R. Toothaker, pastor of the Faith Street F. B. church, of which both are members. Miss Ola M. Sargent played the wedding march. After the ceremony a reception was held and luncheon was served by Misses Isabel Wiggins and Hattie Johnson and Mrs. Arthur Leonard of Franklin, N. H.

Many beautiful gifts of cut glass, silver and miscellaneous articles were received among which was a beautiful silver candelabra from the Sunday school class and a large picture, "Madonna and Child," presented by the Sam Walter Foss Literary Club.

After a visit to the Adirondacks and other places Mr. and Mrs. Donaldson will reside on South Loring street.

LEDUC-STRAUSS

Mr. Frank Leduc and Miss Rosa
Strauss, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Strauss, were united in marriage yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents in Marlborough street. The house was prettily decorated for the occasion while in the reception room was an orchestra which dispensed pleasing music. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Henry Englander of Providence, R. I. The bride wore a handsome white Martin silk gown under lace robe and carried lilies of the valley.

After the ceremony a reception was held and a wedding dinner was served by the D. L. Page Co. Guests were present from New York, New Hampshire, Providence, R. I., and other places. After a tour in Canada and the north, Mr. and Mrs. Leduc will reside in Centralville.

HUGH J. MOLLOY

To Marshal Holy Name

Societies

The Holy Name society of the Sacred Heart parish, one of the most progressive in the archdiocese, held its regular monthly meeting in the vestry of the church last evening and it proved to be the most exciting meeting ever held by the organization.
Rev. John O'Brien, O. M. I., spiritual director of the society, recited the religious office, after which President James Ward took the chair and opened his business meeting. Secy Thomas Sheehan read his report of the last meeting and it was accepted.

The members first discussed the matter of participating in the centen-nary anniversary of the Boston archdiocese to be held in Boston, November 1, and voted unanimously to attend. The society will also purchase a banner, which will be used for the first time in this procession. Fr.
O'Brien read the rules and regulations governing the parade and also stated that the spiritual directors of the Lowell Holy Name societies held a meeting Monday and elected Prof.
Hugh J. Molloy, who is a member of St. Peter's Holy Name society, marshal of the Lowell division.

Reports were then read by the chairman of the breakfast and resolutions committees and the former committee was dismissed.

Officers for the coming reunion of the parish, which will be held October 7 were then elected. Pres. Ward being chosen general manager; Thomas J.
Kennedy, floor director, and James Kerwin, chairman, of the reception committee. The other officers for the occasion will be appointed by the general manager and floor marshal.

It was decided, after much discussion, to hold a smoke talk instead of the quarterly breakfast and the date for this event will be October 13. The following committee will be in charge:
Owen Farrell, chairman, Thomas
Gwen, James Gorman, Thomas J.
Kennedy and James Kerwin.

Prior to closing the meeting Pres.
Ward announced that a special meeting of the society will be held next week to further discuss the matter of attending the celebration in Boston attending the celebration in Boston on November 1.

ship Play

GARDEN CITY, N. Y., Sept. 16.—
With only six players still eligible for the national golf championship there was no let-up in the interest shown by spectators at the Garden City club links today.

The eliminating rounds have weeded the big field so that the survivors represent the west, east and metropolitan sections as follows:

Metropolitan, seven: New England, three; Chicago, two; Pittsburgh, two;
and Utica and Philadelphia, one each.

The match which attracted the greatest amount of interest today was that between the Chicago youth, Edwards, and the present champion, Jerome D.
Travers as the winner of this will be regarded as likely to work his way to the final of Saturday. W. J. Travis also is in the first part of the draw and judging from the game he played yesterday morning in the high wind the former champion ought to survive the semi-final stage on Friday.

ANNIVERSARY OBSERVED.
PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Sept. 16.—The celebration in observance of the centennial anniversary of the establishment of religious journalism in this country began last night was continued today. The gathering of clergymen and editors of religious publications of various denominations, which was present, participated in several devotional services, followed by addresses in connection with the religious press of America. Its last history, present standing and future prospect.

The exercises were begun with a forenoon session in the Unitarian church, at which the devotions were led by Rev.
John A. Goss of York, Me.

Among the speakers were Rev. D. R.
Atkinson of Munich, Ind., Rev. S. C.
Waterman of Boston, Rev. J. S. Swain of Boston, Prof. J. N. Dales of Toronto, and Rev. D. E. Hillard of Portland, Me.
